WOMAN.

That woman's love is shown :

Tis not when hopes are brightest,

When blest with all we love,

Nor when our heart is lightent,

Can we her value prove.

But when the ties are broken

And by the world forsaken,

Which bind us to the earth,

We then can feel her worth.

May gather round our path,

Though sorrow and affliction

'Tis not in hours of gladness

But when we gine in sadness,

Neglected and alone.

A Singular Incident The Lynchburg Republican publishes the following incident, femarkable alike for its melancholy fulfillment to the brother of one of the parties concerned :

Just before the war broke out, and before Lincoln's proclamation was issued, a young Virginian named Summerfield was visiting the city of New York, where he made the acquaintance of two Misses Holmes, of Waterbury, Vermont. He became somewhat intimate with the young ladies, and the intercourse seemed to be mutually agreeable. The proclamation was issued and the whole North thrown into a blaze of excitement. On visiting the ladies one evening," at the hour of parting they remarked to Eccentice Constitue-Robert McCurdy, Jacob would probably be their last; they must hurry home to aid in making up overcoats and clothing for the volunteers from their town. Summerfield expressed his regret that they must leave, but at the same time especially requested them to see that the overcoats were well made, as it was his intention, if he ever met the Verpiont regiment in battle, to kill one of thein and take his cost.

Now for the sequel. Virginia seconded .and in that meriod has not to interest on the second Vermont regiment a portion above named, we again nove in eight of proves with a source of the second Vermont regiment a portion lind, which proved to be the Island of.
