

FREEDING THE NEGROES.

PROCLAMATION BY THE PRESIDENT.

By the President of the United States of America, I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States of America, and Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy thereof, do hereby proclaim and declare that hereafter, as heretofore, the war will be prosecuted until the object of restoring to the constitutional relations between the U. S. and each of the States and the people thereof, in which States that relation is or may be suspended or disturbed; that it is my purpose, upon the next meeting of Congress, to again recommend the adoption of practical measures tending pecuniary aid to the free acceptance or rejection of all slave States so-called, the people whereof may not then be in rebellion against the United States, and which States may then have voluntarily adopted, or thereafter may voluntarily adopt, immediate or gradual limitation of slavery within their respective limits; and that the effort to colonize persons of African descent, with their consent, upon this continent or elsewhere, with the previously obtained consent of the Government existing there, will be continued, that on the first day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, all persons held as slaves within any State, or designated parts of a State, the people whereof shall then be in rebellion against the United States, shall be then, thenceforward and forever free, and the Executive Government of the United States, including the military and naval authority thereof, will recognize and maintain the freedom of such persons, and will do no act to recognize, support, or defend any pretended title to the ownership of such persons, in any effort they make for their actual freedom; that the Executive will, on the first day of January aforesaid, by proclamation, designate the States and parts of States, in any, in which the people thereof respectively shall then be in rebellion against the United States, and the act of the any State, or the people thereof, shall on that day be in good faith represented in the Congress of the United States, by members chosen thereto at elections wherein a majority of the qualified voters of such State shall have participated; that in the absence of strong countervailing testimony, he deemed conclusive evidence that such State and the people thereof are not then in rebellion against the United States; that attention is hereby called to an act of Congress, entitled "An Act to amend the act of March 6, 1862, approved March 3, 1862, and which act is in the words and figures following:

Be it enacted, etc., That hereafter the following shall be promulgated as an additional article of war, to be observed by the army of the United States, and shall be observed as such article:

All officers or persons in the military or naval service of the United States are prohibited from employing any of the forces under their respective commands for the purpose of retaining fugitives from service or labor, who have escaped from any persons to whom such service or labor is claimed to be due; and any officer who shall be found guilty, by a court-martial, of violating this article, shall be dismissed from the service.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Also, to the ninth and tenth sections of an act, entitled "An Act to suppress insurrection, to punish treason and rebellion, to seize and confiscate the property of rebels, and for other purposes," approved July 17, 1862, and which sections are in the words and figures following:

Section 9. And be it further enacted, That all slaves of persons who shall hereafter be engaged in rebellion against the Government of the United States, or who shall in any way give aid and comfort thereto, and captured from such persons and taken refuge within the lines of the army; and all slaves captured from such persons or deserted by them and coming under the control of the Government of the United States; and all slaves of such persons found on, or being within any place occupied by the forces of the United States, shall be deemed captives of war, and shall be forever free of their servitude, and not again held as slaves.

Sec. 10. And be it further enacted, That no slave escaping into any State or Territory, or the District of Columbia, from any other State, shall be delivered up, or in any way impeded or hindered of his liberty except for crime or offense against the law, and that no person shall be held to answer for the crime of harboring such fugitive, unless he shall first make oath that the person to whom the labor or service of such fugitive is alleged to be due is his lawful owner, and has not borne arms against the U. S. in the present rebellion, nor in any way aided or comforted the rebellion, nor engaged in the military or naval service of the United States; and, under any pretence whatever, assume to decide on the validity of the claim of any person to the service or labor of any other person or surrender up any such claim to the claimant, on pain of being punished therefor as a felon.

And I do hereby enjoin upon, and order, all persons engaged in the military and naval service of the United States to observe, obey and enforce, within their respective spheres of duty, the acts and sections aforesaid; and that the President be and he is authorized to issue such orders, and to cause to be published, that all citizens of the United States who shall have remained loyal throughout the rebellion, shall, upon the restoration of the constitutional relations between the United States and their respective States, and if that relation is or may be suspended or disturbed, be compensated for all loss by acts of the United States, including the loss of slaves.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington, this 22d day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-seventh.

LATEST WAR NEWS.

(From the Sun of Saturday.)

Information is received that General McClellan still has his headquarters at Sharpsburg on Thursday. On that day the Federal forces occupied Maryland Heights, and also Bolivar Heights in Virginia, an artillery force forcing the river. A heavy portion of the army was sent to the Potomac. The Federal pickets occupy the country in Virginia three miles out from Harper's Ferry, where they meet the outposts of the Confederates. The Confederates occupy Warrenton with a force of one regiment. They are engaged in rebuilding the bridge over the Rappahannock, indicating that they intend to dislodge the possession of the country between the river and Washington.

There is nothing of importance to report from the West.

Southern papers claim the battle of Antietam a moderate success, estimating their loss in the engagement at five thousand and killed, wounded and missing. Gen. Stark, of Mississippi, and Branch, of North Carolina, were killed, and six others wounded.

The towns of Charleston, Ripley and Spencer, in Western Virginia, are now occupied by Confederate troops. With the exception of Point Pleasant, the Federal troops do not hold a single spot south of the Little Kanawha river.

Yesterday a number of the Governors of the loyal States, who participated in the late conference at Altoona, called upon President Lincoln and presented an address, in which the Governors—speaking for themselves and the people of the States which they represent—pledged to support and maintain the constitutional authority of the President, and to give him their aid in all measures calculated to bring the war to an early termination. They congratulate him upon the emancipation proclamation, believing that it is a measure of sound policy, and that it will result in the freedom of the United States and the act of the any State, or the people thereof, shall on that day be in good faith represented in the Congress of the United States, by members chosen thereto at elections wherein a majority of the qualified voters of such State shall have participated; that in the absence of strong countervailing testimony, he deemed conclusive evidence that such State and the people thereof are not then in rebellion against the United States; that attention is hereby called to an act of Congress, entitled "An Act to amend the act of March 6, 1862, approved March 3, 1862, and which act is in the words and figures following:

SOLDIERS' RELIEF.—The Ladies Relief Association of Gettysburg, forwarded to the care of Rev. Mr. Bucher at Keedville, on Saturday night, two large boxes of Bandages, Linen and Delicacies, of the choicest kind—some of which was kindly contributed by the Ladies of Cashwton and vicinity, and send down by Mr. Henry Micky: to whom and the lady contributors the thanks of the Association are sincerely tendered for their prompt and kindly aid to the suffering.—The box sent by the Association contained the following articles: 131 bandages, 5 packages lint, 23 shirts, 13 pair drawers, 8 arm rest, 2 towels, 3 pillow-cases, 1 pillow, 1 pair slippers, a number of banders of all linen and cotton, compresses, 18 jars and tumblers jelly, 4 cans of fruit, 10 bottles of wine, 6 packages of corn-starch and farina, sugar, barley, 1 bag biscuit, 5 pieces soap, &c. &c.—all of which were collected in two days by the kind contributions of our Ladies. The box sent from Cashwton and vicinity was large, and consisted of Bandages.

We are requested to say that the Ladies of the Association are preparing another box for the relief of the suffering, and will be glad to receive contributions therefor as promptly as possible.

There were also three boxes sent under the kind supervision of the Mrs. Fainstuck to Hagerstown, containing choice articles for the sick and wounded.—Sentinel of Wednesday.

We understand there was another large box sent on Friday last to Frederick, containing a great variety of useful articles and delicacies for the sick and wounded soldiers; but the ladies desiring to send it without display, we have not been furnished with a list of the articles or the names of the patriotic contributors.

McClernan, in Gettysburg, on SATURDAY, the 18th day of OCTOBER, 1862, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

Significant.—An Abolition Serenade came off at Washington on Wednesday evening, occasioned by the President's Emancipation Proclamation. The President, Secretary Chase and Cassius M. Clay made speeches. Attorney General Bates made some remarks, but he refused to speak of the Emancipation Proclamation, which refusal created considerable comment. While he was speaking of the Mississippi Valley, persons in the crowd repeatedly asked, "what about the proclamation?" and at last, when their cries were redoubled, as he seemed about to retire without alluding to it, he said, "I have no change to make, and I will not make the actions of documents of my superior before a promiscuous crowd." A portion of the populace then proceeded to Secretary Seward's residence, and called for the Secretary, but he failed to appear.

Terrible Railroad Collision.—On Friday morning, a troop train and a freight train came in collision (because of a dense fog) on the Susquehanna Bridge, by which the cars of the three trains, and a total of twelve soldiers were killed and about thirty wounded. They were returning to their homes, at Reading and Philadelphia.

The New York Express of Thursday evening says: "The stock market was immensely inflated today—first by the proclamation, and next by the radical triumph in this State over the conservative republicans in convention.—Fancy stocks jumped up three per cent, railways two per cent, and gold one per cent. Gold has gone from 117 a few days before the proclamation to 120 1/2 today, with an upward tendency, after a few local causes have ceased to operate. The business public reaction that, as the proclamation was indefinitely prolonged, the war was protracted, and the probable length of the war, and hence this rise in stocks, gold, &c."

At Philadelphia the same excitement prevailed.
