A SUGGESTION.

The life of a soldier who lies wounded in a hospital is monotonous and irksome in the extreme, Racked with pain, among strangers, homesick and impatient, uncheered by that blessed light and comfort which had once shone upon him from the eyes of the loved ones in that paradise which we call "home," he lies through long hours, his weary eyes vacantly traversing the bare white walls before him.—Now, we have a suggestion about those same walls. They are very white and clean, but they are too bare, too blank, too unsuggestive. Any person who has passed a few weeks upon a sick bed knows what we mean; he will remember how the eye wandered over the wall in front of him, and still returned to the weary search after something new—some new and heretofore hidden figure in the wall paper, some new crack, cranny, or flaw in the wall—in short, anything but the old shapes and images which had repeated themselves before his tired gaze for the thousandth time. How much more stale and wearisome to the sufferer must be the prospect of walls utterly bare, with not even a covering of figured paper to tone down their severity. They are as wearisome and uninviting as a desert, and are a miniature Sahara without an Oasis. This defect in our hospitals could be remedied by embellishing the walls with paintings, portraits, &c., of all sizes and descriptions. We suggest that those of our readers who have a collection of such pictures should loan them temporarily to the nearest hospital. They would not be injured in the least, and would serve a better purpose than they now do while hanging in darkened rooms or stowed away in dusty garrets; they would serve to break the monotony of bare walls and lighten many a listless hour.

DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT.—The President of the Union Bank, Rochester, cautions the public against receiving $20's on that institution, as none of that denomination are paid out, and the plate is to be destroyed to beat the counterfeiters. By magnifying the vignette, a marked difference can be discovered between the genuine and counterfeit notes, and even with the naked eye there can be noticed in the counterfeit the absence of the radiating sun-beams in the water scene. By extending the engraved line under the date of the counterfeit, it passes through the foot of the female figure at the instep, while in the genuine the same line extended, intersects the foot higher, passing through the heel. The signatures are evidently traced from the genuine bills, but the President's signature is too light to be seen distinctly through the paper, and is generally a bad imitation.

STATURE OF DRAFTED MEN.—Boards of enrollment are informed that no limits of stature are established for drafted men, below and beyond which they shall be exempt from military service. The matter of stature will be considered by the board only in the general examination as to the physical fitness of the man for military service. Conscripts of small stature, who have been felicitating themselves on the prospect of measuring less than "five feet three," will receive this news with heaviness of spirit.

ELECTRICITY AND FIGHTING.—There seems to be some unaccountable sympathy between the magnetic telegraph and the draft. In Lancaster city both of the telegraph operators were drawn, and in Philadelphia fifteen have been drafted from the office of the American Telegraph company. Is there some mysterious connection between the subtle current and the wheel of chance? Or may it not be that Providence has wisely selected these operatives for artillery on account of their long experience in handling batteries?

Why is This?—We learn, from our western exchanges, says the N. Y. World, that for the present there will be no enforcement of the draft in any of the States north and west of the Ohio river. It will be noticed that Colonel Fry, in announcing the resumption of the draft, mentioned the Middle and Eastern States as those in which the conscription was to be immediately enforced. There is, doubtless, some reason for this discrimination, though we do not see its justice.

Castor Oil Administration.—The medical men of Paris recommend the following way of administering castor oil to children: The quantity of oil prescribed is poured into a small earthen pan, over a moderate fire, an egg broken into it, and stirred up so as to form something like what cooks call battered eggs; when it is done a little salt or sugar, or a few drops of orange water or some currant jelly should be added.—The sick child will eat it eagerly, and never discover the fraud.

☞The Washington letter to the News, says that Vice President Stephen's ostensible mission to Washington covered a secret one, viz: to inform Mr. Lincoln that it had been determined to appeal to Louis Napoleon, offering him whatever he required, and asking that, to avoid foreign interference, an armistice should be granted, and convention of all the States held.

☞Julius, who has heard some one reading the President's Message—"Pompey, what for de President say free Americans of African descent?" Pompey who considers himself one of the enlightened—"Why, Julius, he meant dat free Americans hab de scent what de oder Americans habn't got."

To Preserve Meat in Summer.—Cooking meat with wheaten flour will retain it sweet for a three-fold lengthened period, even in tropical climates. The flour acts as an insolator against air and moisture.

☞It takes some beef to feed an army—35,000 bullocks were devoured by the Army of the Potomac during the interval of their march towards Fredericksburg under Burnside, and their return under Hooker.

☞The enrolling officers of Clark county, Illinois, or many of them, have been compelled to give up their enrollment lists to parties of men who destroyed them.

☞Great men may sacrifice prudence in the pursuit of great objects. He can well spare his mule and panniers, who has a winged chariot instead.

☞There are two classes of disappointed lovers—those who are disappointed before marriage, and the more unhappy ones who are disappointed after it.

☞The heart that soars upward escapes little cares and vexation; the birds that fly high have not the dust of the road upon their wings.
