At a time like this, when our afflict-ed neighbors are bowing their heads in a sommon sorrow, when men of all parties mite in affording relief to the sufferers without inquiring into their political creeds, there is an almost hellish melignity in the expression of such a sentiment as this, such as we are celly conceived even the Heavian as we scarcely conceived even the Hessian Bergner to be capable of. The man who can thus gloat over the misfortunes of his political opponents, would resort to deeds as glaringly infamous as those perpetrated by the rebel hordes themselves. The peo-ple of the Cumberland Valley have much to lay to the charge of Bergner—they have frequently been vilified and misrepresented by him.
