The administration officials here feel very vania. They had been led to believe, after the immense sums of money spent and the peculiar influences which were brought to bear, that the Keystone State would give a decided Republican majority. The fact that, in spite of these exertions, it has gone Democratic, fills the office-holders with the greatest alarm and, in their wrath, they bave fallen to abusing each other. It is now charged that Cameron pocketed the money that was furnished him to carry the doubtful congressional districts. For ney is supposed not to feel very bad over the result, as he was immensely disgusted when Cameron was chosen to be the dis-burser of the funds instead of himself. The War Department people are very hister against Governor Curtin, whom they charge to this. with treachery.
