All the leading statesmen and divines in England were to be murdered. Three or four schemes had been formed for assassinating the king. He was to be poisoned in his medicine. He was to be shot with silver bullets. The public mind was so sure and exciteable that public mind was so sure and exciteable that on which villainy seemed to be written by these lies readily found credit with the hand of God. vulgar; and two events which speedily took place led even some reflecting men to suspect that the tale, though evidently distorted and exaggerated, might have some foundation. Edmund Coleman, a very busy and not very honest Roman Catholic intriguer, had been among the persons accused. Search was made for his papers. It was found that he had destroyed the greater part of them. But a few which had escaped, contained some passages which, to minds strongly preposessed, might seem to confirm the evidence of Oates. Those passages, indeed, when candidly construed, appear to ex-press little more than the hopes which the postures of affairs, the predictions of Charles, the still stronger predictions of James, and the relations existing between the French and English courts, might nat-nrally excite in the mind of a Roman Catholic strongly attached to the interests of his church. But the country was not then in-Shormaker, and is now prepared to manufact clined to construe the letters of papists ture work to order and to attend to all kinds candidly; and it was urged, with some show of reason, that, if papers which had been passed over as unimportant were filled with matter so suspicious, some great mystery of iniquity must have been contained in those documents which had been carefully committed to the flames. The capital and the whole nation went mad with hatred and fear. The penal laws, which had began to lose something DESCRIPTION. idence in his favor. Some of those whom there no remedy for the nullification of our own laws, or shall we not have an inquilone of them said anything tending to his vindication. One of them, the Earl of Huntingdon, bitterly reproached him with having deceived the houses, and drawn on them the guilt of shedding innocent blood. He was convicted on both indictments.-His offence, though, in a moral light, mur-der of the most aggravated kind, was, in the eye of the law, merely a misdemeanor. The tribunal, however, was desirous to make his punishment more than that of frightful torments. He was sentenced to be stripped of his clerical habits, to be pilloried n Palace Yard, to be led round Westminster Hall, with an inscription declaring his infamy over his head, to be pilloried again in front of the Rayal Exchange, to be whipped from Aldgate to Newgate, and after an interval of two days to be whipped from Newgate to Tyburn. If against all probability he should happen to survive this horrible infliction, he was to be kept a close prisoner during life. Five times every year he was to be brought from his dungeon and exposed on the pillory in different parts of the capital. This rigorous sentence was vigorously executed.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH.

The New York Tribune professes to feel especially disgusted with the Roman Catholic clergy because they do not give their days and nights to preaching the "gospel" of negro equality. It is seserted that the Catholic clergy are especially "disloyal," giving little or no support to the war.— Their crime, therefore, appears to be that they have not advised brothers to shed the blood of brothers, but have persisted in preaching according to John Brown.
