Your Mission.
BY MRS. RIVER M. GATES.
If you cannot on the ocean
Sail among the wildest seas,
Rocking on the highest billow,
Laughing at the storm you meet,
You can stand among the willows,
Anchored yet within the bay,
You can lead a hand to help them,
As they launch their boats away.
If you are too weak to journey
To the mountain steep and high;
You can stand with the valley
While the multitude goes by;
You can chant in happy measures,
As they slowly pass along;
Though they may forget the singer,
They will not forget the song.

The Editor.
Enclosed herewith is a notice at rest.
For the world's unaltered will,
Keeps asking for a shadow and a rest,
And cannot be—will not refuse.
Big sermons and speeches, oracles and rhymes,
With stanzas, both ancient and new,
Soothing the people, and saving the times,
Are full of faithful and constant review.
Not only deals he in subjects profound;
His reason will mingle with fun;
And the world will laugh and the joke go round.
When the editor writes a year,
And he, though not best, year in and year out,
For the editor's pen is his pen,
And for the editor's pen he has no doubt.
The poor fellow is starting today.

Choice Miscellany.
A Touch of Nature.
A car full of passengers, passed over the Western road, in which a singular but touching scene occurred, worthy of record. One of the passengers was a woman carrying in her arms a child who appeared every now and then by her piteous and crying. Mile after mile the passengers bore the infliction of its noise, which rather increased than diminished, until, at last, it became furious and the passengers nearly so. There were open complaints, and one man shouted "take the child out!" The train stopped at a station, and an old gentleman arose and stepped into the car, and said to the father of the child he had just recently away from home; that the mother had been on a visit to her friends, and had died while on the visit; that her dead body was on the train, and that the child was in the hands of a stranger. He was enough. There was melted into pity and patience. All selfishness was lost in thinking of the desolation of the poor little wanderer, who would have found a warm welcome in the hands that a moment before, would almost have visited it with a blow.

Two Ways of Doing a Thing.
In the mail train down from Harrisburg, recently, we had in the next seat forward of us a gentleman Jack Tar in a go-shore outfit, jolly, g-nated and happy, with a decidedly pretty specimen of eighteen-year old crime, and a bright and handsome wife, and was conveying Philadelphiaward.
Opposite Jack and wife were a couple that any one could see were on a honeymoon cruise, the bride all blushing, beauty and bashfulness, and the gallant brigadier all devotion and enjoyment.
At one of the way stations half way down the road, the cars stopped, and the careful, considerate gentleman bridegroom thus addressed his timid bride:
"My love, I am about to step out for a few moments to procure some refreshments. Do not be alarmed during my absence."
Gentleman Jack took the cue, and patting his wife on the shoulder, sung out, as if he were halting the main-top gallant yard in a gale of wind:
"I say, wife, I'm going ashore to wet my whistle; do not tumble overboard while I'm gone."
Marriage Notice.—A Western paper gives the following notice:
All notices of marriage, where no bride-cake is sent, will be sent up in small type, and poked in some outlandish corner of the paper. Where a handsome piece of cake is sent it will be put conspicuously in large letters; when gloves or other bride favors are added, a piece of illustrative poetry will be given in addition. When, however, the editor attends the ceremony in propria persona, and kisses the bride, it will have especially notice—large type, and the groom, borrowed, stolen, or coined from the brain editorial.

Fashionable Talk.
A lady thus addressed her servant in the presence of a fashionable party:
"Mary, relieve that burning luminary of the superincumbent dress that bears up on it."
"Ma'am" said Mary, confused at what her mistress could mean.
"Take," said the lady, "from that luminous body its superincumbent weight of consumed carbon."
"Ma'am" repeated Mary.
"Snuff" said the lady, "you hussy you," exclaimed upon him for obstructing his family matters upon the public.
A clergyman said in a recent sermon that the path of rectitude had been traveled so little of late years it had completely run to grass.
"Most bachelors are smart, but it is only husbands who are now shrewd."

Facts About the Mormons.

Polygamy introduces many curious cross relationships, and intertwines the branches of the genealogical tree in a manner greatly to puzzle a mathematician, as well as to disgust the decent minded. The marrying of two or more sisters is very common; one young Mormon merchant in Salt Lake City has three sisters for his three wives. There are several cases of men marrying both mother (widow) and her daughter or daughters; making the "old woman" for the sake of getting the young ones; but having children by all.
Brigham Young's wives are numberless; at least no one seems to know how many he has; and he has himself confessed to forgetfulness in the matter. The probability is he has from sixteen to twenty genuine or complete wives, and about as many more women "leased" to him for heavenly associations. The latter are most pious old ladies, eager for a seat in the Mormon heaven, and knowing no surer way to attain one than to be hooked on to Brigham's angelic procession. Some of these sealed wives of his are the earthly wives of other men, but, lacking faith in their husbands' heavenly glory, seek to make a sure thing of it for the future by the grace of gracious Brigham. Do you see, you know, many a husband calculates on stealing into heaven under the pious pretensions of his better half; here the thing is reversed, and women go to heaven because their husbands take them along.
In many cases, the Mormon wives not only support themselves and their children, but help support their husbands. Thus a clerk or man with small or limited income, who has yielded to the fascinations and desires of three or four women, and married them all, makes his home with No. 1, perhaps, and the rest live apart, each by herself, taking in sewing and washing, or engaging in other employment, to keep up her establishment, and be no charge to her husband.
When President Young goes on a journey through the territory, on private or public business, he takes a considerable retinue with him, and always a wife and a barber. The former is more his servant than his companion in such cases, however. His household is said to be admirably managed. A son-in-law acts as commissary; he carries the baggage, and whenever they want to buy or supply and whenever they want new clothes or pocket-money, they must go to this chief head of the family bureau. Considering his opportunities, the head of the church of Latter Day Saints has made a rather sorry selection of women on the continent, so many false, mean, and lying bullheads were fabricated at H. M. H. that at length, when any one would signify his disbelief of a statement, he would say: "That is H. M. H. or H. M. H.," and thus "That is H. M. H. or H. M. H.," and thus a common expression of incredulity.

A Pun that is no Joke.
A Frenchman near the Canada line, in Vermont, sold a horse to his Yankee neighbor, which he recommended as being a very stout and serviceable animal, in spite of his unprepossessing appearance. Every inquiry of the buyer respecting the qualities of the horse, the Frenchman gave a favorable reply, but always commenced his commendation with the deprecatory remark: "He's not look ver good."
The Yankee caring very little for the looks of the horse, which he judged for himself, without the seller's assistance, and being fully persuaded after a moment's inspection, that the beast was worth the moderate sum asked for him, made the purchase and took him home. A few days afterwards he returned in high dudgeon, and declared that he had been cheated in the quality of the horse.
"What is the matter?" said the Frenchman.
"Matter?" said the Yankee, "matter enough; the horse can't see; he is as blind as a bat!"
"Ah!" said the Frenchman, "at I was told you, he was not look ver good—be gar, I don't know if he look at all!"
"When?" asked the New York Times, "are we to hear once more the pleasant jingle of gold and silver coin? How long is this filthy and disgusting rag money which now represents the aliquot parts of a dollar to defile our pockets and fingers?—if the country should be visited by a communicable pestilence, the foul, ill-smelling 'fractional currency' would unquestionably propagate it with fearful rapidity. Faith! it is enough to turn one's stomach to look at the dirty stuff; and to handle it is defiling to men."
A Queer Case.—Some time ago a man named Molanthon arrived at Lewistown, and after due time married a widow lady residing there. The couple lived happily together till within a few days, when a woman with several children arrived from Philadelphia, and laid claim to M. as her husband, which claim he at once acknowledged. An arrangement was finally made by which in consideration of Mrs. M. No. 2 receiving and agreeing to return to the city, leaving the couple unmolested. No. 2 fulfilled her part, but No. 1 broke faith and took the husband with her, and thus No. 2 was left with the children, to get along as best she could.

Chances in the Cabinet.

The Washington correspondent of the Sunday Mercury says:
Rumors are rife, and we believe them to be true, that Mr. Lincoln is to be succeeded by President Johnson. The names of distinguished statesmen are mentioned, as probable, to occupy these high positions; but with what certainty, will alone devolve. Prominent amongst those whom reports are freely upon is the Hon. Thomas B. Florence, of Pennsylvania, who so long, acceptably, and so faithfully represented the vital and material interests of the city of Philadelphia in the Congress of the United States. It is said and believed that Mr. Florence has been invited to occupy the post of Secretary of the Treasury in the Cabinet of President Johnson. The names of the Hon. Charles Mason, of Iowa; of the Hon. W. G. Washburn, of Ohio; of Gov. B. F. Perry, of South Carolina, as probable occupants of seats in the reconstructed Cabinet of President Johnson, are freely discussed.

The Freedmen's Bureau.
General Howard said, in a speech at Lewistown, N. C., on Thursday, that the bureau would be closed in one year, probably longer. It had no means at hand, and this was the reason why officers already in the pay of the Government were assigned to this duty, because they could draw their pay as such officers. He would have preferred to have the bureau closed in one year, but his means had been limited. As soon as North Carolina was restored to the Union the freedmen would be turned over to their care. This is where the matter properly rests. In the mean while he came to cooperate with the Freedmen's Bureau, to establish local courts for the adjudication of all difficulties between the races until the bureau ceased to exist and the State took the charge upon herself.

To Revive Faded Black Cloth.
Boil two or three ounces of logwood in vinegar, and when the color is extracted, drop in a quantity of carbolic acid, which is of the same nature as rust of iron, and as a chestnut, let it boil. Have the coat or pantaloons well sponged with soap and hot water, lay them on a table and brushing the nap down with a sponge.
Then take the dye from the table and sponge the cloth with the dye, taking care to keep them smooth and to brush downward. When completely wet with dye, dissolve
