THE SLIGHTED SCHOLAR.

Cases like the one I am about to relate are much too frequent in our country, and they are such, too, as should be guarded against by all who have an interest in edu-cation. This incident was brought to my poor boy. an establishment for the sale of Ments mind by the parent of a boy who had been grossly neglected, simply because he was

Many years ago, when I was a small boy, I attended school in the town of Among the scholars there was one named George Henry. His father was a poor, drinking man, and the unfortunate boy had to suffer in consequence. George came to school habited in ragged garments -but they were all he had. He was rough and uncouth in manners, for he had been brought up in this way. He was very ig-norant, for the simple reason that he never had the opportunity of education.

Season after season, poor George Henry occupied the same seat in the school room; it was a back corner seat, away from the should be rest of the scholars—and there he thumbed his lattered primer. The ragged condition of his garb gave a homely cast to his whole appearance, and what intelligence there of the way. The boy received no incentive to study, one of you that considers how dreadful and consequently he was most of the time dry I am!"

to watch the movements of the scholars, and studying the disposition of those with whom he had to deal. Upon George Henry his eyes rested with a keen, searching glance, but evidently made little of him during the first day, yet on the second he paid more attention.

It was during the afternoon of the second day that Mr. Kelley observed young Henry engaged in stringing flies upon a pin. He him for his idleness and took up the tat-"Have you never learned more than is in this book?" asked the teacher.

George looked wonderingly into the master's face, for there was something in the tone of the voice that fell upon his ear that sounded strange to him, and he thought as he looked around that the rest of the scholars regarded him with kinder countenances than usual. A dim thought broke in upon his mind that for some cause he was going to be happier than he was before.

After school was dismissed, George remained in his seat till the teacher called him up to his desk.

"Now," said Mr. Kelley, I wish to know why it is that you have never learned anymore. You look bright, and you look as though you might make a smart man.—
Why is it that I find you so ignorant?"
"Because no one ever helps me," replied the boy. "Nobody cares for me, sir, for I am poor." By degrees the kind hearted teacher got the whole of the poor boy's history, and while the generous tears bedewed his eyes, "You have been wrongly treated, George, but there is a time yet for redemption. If will try to teach you, will you try to learn ?" "Yes—oh, yes," quickly uttered the boy, in carnest tones. "Yes—I should like to learn. I don't want to be a bad boy," he thrillingly added, while his face glowed Mr. Kelley promised to purchase books for the boy as fast as he could learn to read them, and when George Henry left the schoolroom that evening his face was wet with tears. We scholars who had remained in the entry, and saw him come out, had our hearts warmed towards the poor boy. We spoke kindly to him and walked with him to his house, his heart was too full for utter-

As soon as the teacher treated him with kindness and respect, the scholars followed very poor and comparatively without the example, and the result was, that they found in the unfortunate youth one of the most noble-hearted, generous, accommoda-ting and truthful playmates in the world. Long years have passed since those schoolboy days. George Henry has become a man of middle age, and in all the country there is not a man more beloved and resit was for Mr. Lincoln.

The Cincinnati Gasette publishes the full testimony in the case of Col. J. C. Crane, an imprestor of the Quartermaster's Dapartment, who was tried by court martial, in July last, upon numerous charges of dis-honesty in office. The fifth charge was as follows:

Conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman. Specification .- "In this: that Col. John C. Crane, inspector, &c., having been duly as signed, &c., did write, cause to be written issue and send, and caused to be issued and sent, to Wm. Semple, A. B. Semple, and others, whose names are unknown, the said Wm. Semple and others being engaged in furnishing supplies for the use of said military railroads, a circular and letter, a portion of which circular and letter is in the letters and figures, and of the tenor following: 'To secure the election in every State, beyond the possibility of a doubt, not only does it require the patriotic efforce of every man; but it also requires money for campaigning purposes. It is expected that you that have received the liberal patronage of the government will willingly lend your means to the attainment of the object named. "I am authorized to say, gentlemen, to those who respond cheerfully to this call, that the patronage heretolore extended to them, shall, without doubt, be continued. In the transmitting of your subscription it is expected that the amount will correspond with the patronage you have received." This charge was sustained upon the trial by direct evidence of parties who had contributed to the Lincoln fund raised by Colonel Crane. One witness, Archibdd P. Cochrane, tes-tified that Colonel Crane purchased sup-plies from their firm on or about the 1st of November, 1864, and at other times before, which were furnished afterward : that Colonel Crane solicited money from the firm to pay election expenses. Witness produced a circular from Colonel Crane, asking for contributions, the genuineness of which the secused admitted. Cochrene further testified that the firm gave $1,000 in response to this solicitation.

Question by Judgo Advocate—Please state the circumstances of the payment. Answer-I had come to the military rall-road department from home, for the purpose of settling our accounts, and I stepped into Colonel Crane's office; he told me he was just on the eve of sending a circular to us; he then picked up the circular, signed, addressed, and handed it to me for perusal; at the time he handed it to me he said he had the sanction of the Secretary of War to collect this fund. I told him I would consider upon the matter; the next day I met him, at his office, and responded to that amount, I responded under the full convic-tion that it was a proper object, and I did it cheerfully; Colonels Crane had no hesi-tancy in handing me the circular; it was done publicly; there were several parties in the room at the time. [Witness further testified that he had, at the time, vouchers in his possession to the amount of thirtyfour thousand dollars, for which he expec-ted to get the money; and that he received payment in full for all the vouchers in a check for certificates of indebtedness, less the amount the firm contributed.]

On his cross-examination Mr. Cochrane said:
With regard to the one thousand dollars

These remarks are so bitter and so clearly aimed at the Chief Magistrate of the United States, that if Capt. Thaddeus Stevens, late Provost Marshal, had not unfortunately been mustered out of service, we should rely on his zeal and loyalty for the immediate arrest of Private Tnaddeus Stevens. Member of Congress, for the heinous crime of "speaking disrespectfully of the Presitude that the framers of the Constitution never imagined any American could be guilty of it, and therefore (or for some other reason) made no provision for its punishment.

Nor is this the worst that Mr. Stevens says of the President in his Gettysburg speech. Referring to the interviews the President has granted to Southern delegations and his speaches to them, Mr. Stevens uses the following terribly surcastic lan-tion for him and his chief ministers, whom these men have persecuted, and placed rewards on their heads, and attempted to as sassinate, to see them ranged by fifties at his footatool, begging his pardon, and to lecture him in a patronizing way, and listen to their submissive answers, and see them clap their delicate hands in constrained ap-plause; to tell them not to be alarmed at phause; to test them not to be starmed at the Radicals, that they are under his pro-tection, and under the shield of the Con-stitution which they had never abjured; that he loves them like a father, and will love them all the more for this little family As if this were not bitter and insulting enough, Mr. Stevens proceeds to say that if the President's language to the Southern delegations "be not wrong to the living traitors, it is a mockery to the loyal dead!" dent.

True Christianity .- The following is reported of the venerable Bishop Hopkins, of Vermont, as having occurred in New York while on his way to the General Convention of the Episcopal Church, now in session at Philadelphia: Some one asked the Bishop if he thought there would be any trouble in re-admitting the Southern Bishops to the Convention. His reply was characteristic: "I see in the Garrer, a well known minister of the Lutheran Church, which occurred at Greensburg, Pa., on the 30th of September. He was a noted traveller and his writings about the Holy Land have been extensively published.

His reply was characteristic: "I see in the papers to-day that the Oid Fellows' Grand Lodge at Baltimore are having a great family reunion, and that the Southern delegates have been as cordially received as those from other sections of the Union. Why cannot we follow the example? With the Odd Fellows Fellowship Love and Cambbi odd Fellaws 'Friendship, Love and Truth' are governing principles, but Old Fellow-ship is a voluntary affair. When professing Christians come together, sir, they are commanded to love one another, and that command I shall do my best not only to obey myself but to persuade others to obey also."
