JUDGHENT OF THE PROPLE.

The American people will wise, they will know who are their friends and who are their exemies. A here endea-wored to be true to the people is all the po-sitions which I have occupied, and there is: hardly a position in this Government which I have not at some time filled. A suppose it will be said that this is vanity, [laughter] but I may say that I have been in all of them. I have been in both branches of the State Legislature. [A voice: "You com-menced a tailor."]

[laughter,] and I was always punctual to my customers, and did good work. Voices—We will patch up the Union yet. The President—No, I do not want any patch work of it; I want the original article restored. [Great applause.] But enough of this facetiousness. I know it may be said, "You are President, and you must not talk about these things;" but, my fellow citizens, I intend to talk the truth, and when principle is involved, when the existence of my country is in peril, I hold it to be my duty to speak what I think and what I feel, as I have siways done on furmer occasions. [Great applause ]

I have said, it has been declared elsewhere that I was guilty of usurpation which would have cost a king his head, and in another place I have been denounced for whitewashing. When or where did I ever whitewash anything or anything? I have been an Alderman of a town, I have been in both branches of the Legislature of my State, I have been in both Heuses of the National Congress, I have been at the head of the Executive Department of my State, have been Vice President of the United States, and am now in the position which I occupy before you, and during all this career where is the man and what portion of the people is there who can say that Andrew Johnson ever made a pledge which he did not redeem, or that he ever made, a promise he violated? I want the American people to be the witindirect remarks in high places, to be surgested to men who have assassination brooding in their bosoms, that there is a fit subject. Others have exclaimed that the Presidential obstacle must be gotten out of the way. What is that but, to make use of a strong expression, inciting to assassination? No doubt, I say, the intention was to incite assassination, so the peo-ple's choice here could be got out of the way. Are the opponents of this Govern-ment not yet satisfied; are those who want to destroy our institutions and to change the character of the Government not satiated with the quantity of blood that inps been shed? Are they not satisfied with one martyr in this place? Does not the blood of Lincoln appease their vengenuce, and is their thirst still unslaked? Dothey still want more blood? Have they not honor and courage enough to seek their end otherwise than through and by the hand of the assessin?
