As Described by Hon. John Van Buren. Hon. John Van Buren made a tening peech at Bridgeport, Conn., on the 7th inst., from which we make the following interesting extract :

worked into a light, porous, warm seed-bed if in proper condition for plowing before being worked. They (the Redicals) insist upon it that there was a great want of dignity in the President on the 221 of February. It is AT The Fruitgrowers' Society of Western New barely possible they may have been apoiled by what has gone before (laughter), and that or linary Democratic manners offend York lately took a vote upon the best varieties of hardy Grapes. Thirty-one persons voted, and those grapes which had over ten votes were, in the order of the number of votes they received, as fol-lows: Delaware, Diana, Isabella, Hartford Prolific, the fastidious tastes of those that are ac-customed to the high aristocratic tone of his late lamented predecessor. But, fur-ther, they charge him with imitating Crom well, and they say that there are indica-tions that he intends to treat this Congress as Cromwell-treated the old Rump Parlia-ment after the execution of Charles the First. Let us look for a single moment, as we are upon the question of dignity, at what Cromwell did, and I will read you a little extract from Hume, as to the manner in which Cromwell discolved that Parliament : "And saddenly starting up, he loaded the Parliament with the vilest reproaches for their tyranny, oppression, and robbery of the public. Their stanging with his foot, which was a signal for the soldiers to enter, 'for shame,' said he to the Parligment; 'get ye gone; give place to honester men, to those who will more faithfully discharge their trust. You are no longer a Parlia-ment; I tell you you are no longer a Par-liament. The L rd has done with you; He has chosen other instruments for carrying against this work. Sir Harry Vane exclasining against this proceeding, he cried with a load voice, "On! Sir Harry Vane, Sir Harry Vane! the Lord deliver me hom Sir Harry Vane! Vane l' "

Ithink the Sir Harry V ne of that day

Thou art a druck ird and a glutton,' and "Thou an'extortioner,' to a fourth. "He commanded a soldier to seize the mace. What shall we do with this buble? here, take it away. It is you,' said he, ad-dressing himself to the House, 'that have forced me upon this. I have sought the Lord night and day that He would rather slay me than put me upon this work.'?

A correspondent of the Mt. Sterling Having commanded the soldiers to clear (Ky.) Sentinel gives the following account the hall, he himself went out the last, and ordering the door to be locked, departed to of a fiery fiend visible in Bracken county :
