GETTYSBURG, PA., MONDAY, MAY 21, 1866.

48TH YEAR.—NO. 34.

Rare Opportunity for Profitable Investment.

REVENUE EXTENSION

Silver Mining Co. of Nevada.

CAPITAL STOCK $500,000. Divided into 50,000 Shares, at $10 Each. OFFICE: No. 25 Third Street, Philadelphia.

President—Hon. GEORGE F. FISHER, Judge of the Superior Court, Washington, D. C. Vice President—T. R. EMERY, Philadelphia.

That the business of mining and reducing silver ore is immensely profitable, is amply attested by the results which have been achieved from the mines of Mexico, Peru, Germany, and other silver-bearing countries.

Prof. William, whilst in Nevada, delivered a lecture in the city of Austin, during which he said: "We cannot mine silver in Nevada until we have a revenue extension law."

WHAT OTHER COMPANIES ARE DOING? There is not a single company now in operation in Nevada, which is not a complete success.

OWN NINETEEN parallel silver-bearing ledges situated on Lander Hill, near the city of Austin, Nevada, which are nearly all worked.

THE GREAT HOPKINS TUNNEL, commencing at the foot of the hill, and designed to penetrate to the level of the mines, is now being worked.

When it is remembered that every company at present engaged in reducing ore from Lander Hill is a complete success; that one alone, in the month of August, has produced $100,000 in silver, and that official reports show that the average yield of ore from the Reese River District, in Nevada, is $100 per ton.

THE ULTIMATE SUCCESS OF THE COMPANY is, therefore, not only certain, but ACTUALLY AT HAND.

Selected Poetry.

The following is a real gem. Our Scrap Book contains a number of others, which will appear (or, rather, re-appear) in this column successively.

THE BELLS OF SHANDON. Sabbath pango, Pungo plango, Solemnis clango.

With deep affection And recollection I often think of Those Shandon Bells.

I've heard bells chiming! Full many a time, Telling of glad days in Cathedral spire.

There's a bell in Moscow, While in town and Krakow, In St. Sophia.

There's a bell in London, And in the tower of Babel, And in the tower of Babel.

There's a bell in Rome, And in the tower of Babel, And in the tower of Babel.

There's a bell in Paris, And in the tower of Babel, And in the tower of Babel.

There's a bell in London, And in the tower of Babel, And in the tower of Babel.

There's a bell in Rome, And in the tower of Babel, And in the tower of Babel.

There's a bell in Paris, And in the tower of Babel, And in the tower of Babel.

There's a bell in London, And in the tower of Babel, And in the tower of Babel.

To the Editors of the Baltimore American: Gentlemen—In the Hagerstown Herald and Torch, of the 19th instant, noticed in The American of this morning, I find my name announced as one of those expected to be present at a Convention of the State.

"Your only unmarried daughter?" observed William Pierson, in a low tone to Mrs. Belleville. "All married, except my dear Henrietta, and I believe it would break my heart to part with her."

"It is too much—the creature—where could I have learned such words?" said the parrot, in the house of Mrs. Belleville.

One of the best things we have read since our Columbia correspondent sent us a description of a contraband wedding is a description of a similar character described by the Rev. Mr. H. J. Stabile in the Compiler.

This protest opened the squib's eyes to the full measure of the harvest. He asked the editor of the Compiler, when the representative of the Bureau informed the Justice that they were ordered by the Freedmen's Court to be married, and he came up to see the sentence executed.

Neither men nor women wear hats except as a protection against the rain; the fan is deemed a sufficient guard from the sun, and perhaps nothing will more strike the newly-arrived European than this fan, which he will see in the hands of the girle of every human being.

In selecting flour, first look to the color. If it is white, with a yellowish, straw-colored tint, buy it. If it is white, with a bluish cast, or with white specs in it, refuse it.

HOW SHE LOST A HUSBAND. A very select party congregated at the house of Mrs. Belleville to celebrate the birthday of her daughter, the youngest of four, the fair Henrietta, who, at the time we write, had entered into her nineteenth year.

Living Without Food.—How long can horses live without food? This question is decided by experiments recently made in France. It was ascertained that a horse will live for twenty-five days without solid food, merely drinking water.

The Death of the War.—The Provost Marshal General has completed a careful compilation from the muster-rolls of all the deaths in battle, from wounds and from disease, in every regiment and company of every loyal State, from the beginning to the close of the war.

True.—Whenever a set of ministers take office, by virtue of their ministerial office, it will be found that more harsh language, uncharitable conclusions, bitter aspersions of character, and motives, sneers and taunts, abound than with any other class of men.
