Gen. Bowman:

I shall commit to paper, with pleas me, my views with regard to the contemplated Plank Road from Hollidaysburg to Bedford, in which you take so much interest.

I have no particular experience in reference to Plank Roads, but, from representations by gentlemen of skill and intelligence, and who have been engaged in their construction, I possess some information which may have a tendency to induce the citizens of Bedford and Blair to undertake the construction of a road from Bedford to Holli-

An act was passed last session authorizing subscriptions for a plank road between those places. Its importance may be well radged of from the fact that such road would connect with the great central railroad, lead-Fg from Philadelphia to Pittsburg, and the compile road from the same point at Bed- as well as the cures effected upon thousands ford. The communication by rail-road of persons laboring under diseases incurable could not fail to be highly beneficial to the pul he generally, and especially to the citizens of the counties through which it would pass. The inhabitants of Bedford, particularly the farmers, would speedily realize benefits that may not at the present time be gladly embrace the opportunity of placing properly estimated. The produce of the farmer would at all times command an advauce in price proportionate to the diminution in the cost of transportation to the eastern market; and, as the cost may be fairly August, the usual vacation months, would set down at one half less by plank road than enable parents to visit their children and with over turnpike or the present road, the differtain air and of the mineral springs. ence would be the gain of the producer.-For instance, if the transportation of a barof flour cost 25 cents over a plank road ject, now hastily referred to, until the great and double that amount over the present purposes suggested shall be accomplished. road, the gain to the farmer would be 50 per cent. on the cost of transportation; and so with regard to all other agricultural productions. It may be remarked, that beside the general benefit to the country the stock or money invested would very likely yield a following article from that independent Robert W. that State, at its last session, granted 160 justice and popularity of the measure, charters for plank roads in different portions of the State—that many were granted the previous session—that several of the roads have been completed—and that all yield good dividends. One he referred to particularly of the measure, than indifference in regard to its adoption. The people of this portion of the State, of both political parties, we are satisfied, will support the amendment with great unanimity, as due to the warly, finished, I think, a distance of about with great unanimity, as due to the thirty miles, yielded the first three quarters growing intelligence of the people, and 12 per cent. each quarter on the capital the progressive spirit of our governstock.
