Sized Seens and Characters—By the Rev. J. T. Readles. This work may very properly be considered a combanion to the "Sacred Mountains," by the same author be object is to illustrate and "render near Richies" the treat writings. It is not the author selection to supersells to Riche. But his wish is to excite a solicitude to obtain, with the become intimately acquainted andperfectly familiar with its history, doctrines and laws to know its truth, to misble its spirit, feel its power, and partake of its salvation; in a word, to prize in some measure as it discress this treasure which is indeed beyond prize. We predict for it a circulation far beyond any of the anthor's former works.—The News, Jan. 7th.

Sacred Scones and tharacters—By the Rev. J. T. Headley, author of the "Sacred Mountains," &c. This work will add greatly to the reputation of the author. In integer merit it more than equals his "Sacred Mountains." It leading accels in his glowing style and vivid descriptions. His works are a rich treasury of all the sublimity of thought, moving tenderness of passion, and vigorous strength of expression, which her to be found in all the languages by which mortals declare their minds.—[See laily Globe, Jan. 5th.

Readlet and Sketches—By Rev. J. T. Headley. We have not for a long time set down to a book with more pleasing anticipation, or found these anticipations more fully realized, than in the perusal of the work before us, and we know it will be hailed with gadification by the many admirers of the talented author. His "Napoleon and his Marshals" was perhaps, as popular, and found at least as many enthusiastic readers as any book that can be itsentioned. We think the Rambles and Sketches are designed to be as popular at least as any found the least as many enthusiastic readers as any book that can be itsentioned. We think the Rambles and Sketches are designed to be as popular at least as any of his previously published works. There is not a dull chapter in the work, and a c the st and attractive style by the publisher.—[See Portland Transcript. Ddc. 15th.

Mr. Headley is one of the most premising writers of this country, and we have here one of his best books—to so which he can safely rest his fame. It possesses the water graceful frankness pervading the composition, which agages the interest of the reader in the author as well as in the subject. His rambles about Rome, Paris and Custom, which a man of tasts will delight to lunger, which a man of tasts will delight to lunger. We predict for this a cale equal to that of any of the anterest work.—[See New York News.]

The collection is one of which no author need be ashated. It consist, indeed, of some of Mr. Readley's most brilliant and highly finished compositions, of those speciences of his abilities by which he may be judged with the createst asfety to his fame as a work-painter and thinker.

See New York Tribune, Dec. 17, 1848.
