The world is very tanciful, And changing all the time, And some are fond of politics And some are fond of rhyme.

Of wickedness are some, One lectures on sobric'y, Another treats on rum.

Some are the soul of honor. A blessing where one lives. Some (on the whole) have little soul

Some will rebuke you harshly Yet be your friend the while, While some will smile before your face

Some are in love with gambling, Some are in love with girls, Some hide their talents in the earth,

The trader likes his custom, The miser likes his heap. The merchant sells at prices dear-

The lawyer likes a parchment, The doctor wants a skull. The actor faucies most to see

Parquette and boxes full.

The school-boy likes a show, While the girl I ween of sweet sixteen

A "lassic likes a laddie,"

And a dandy likes to look upon A monkey in the glass.

A tailor's fond of cabbage,

A millwright studies wheels and streams, While a pedias's all for clocks.

A medium, bugs called "bum," And with her toe she loves to show

Some try to follow fashion

To have one grand display.

Some talk of foreign things, While they who stop to keep the shop

Go "just to see the Springs." Some visit lands as Patriots In a Fillibuster ship. While others stay at home and pay

Their tills in "Cubs scrip. Some strike for abolition

(Men of no small renown) And in the cause of ' higher laws' Knock the High Sheriff down. And others preach secession,

Talk of a Lonely Star, And rave and swear by earth and air "Our voice is still for war."

Oh, this world is very fanciful, And changing all the time-While some are tond of poetry,

Others prefer the thyme. Providence, R.I. Maz.G.W. PATTEN.
