Don't Bet.

Amasa May was cured of betting! How? Keep quiet and I'll tell you.

Not a thousand miles from Jamaica Plains lived Lem Seaver, Bob Emmons and Amesa May. Lem was fond of shoot. ing, could shoot well, and was rather proud of it. It happened on a bright Oc tober day that he had been hunting the cover on the Newton side of the pond, and came out by the old barn where Bob Emmons was at work. After a little talk Lem left his gun and fixings standing outside, and want into the barn to look at the cattle, and finally passed through to the eider will, which stood just beyond; for half a day's tramp in the woods makes a man dry, you'd better believe. While he was gone, Bob, who was always at the bottom of all the deviltry done in the vicinity, dropped an extra charge of ahot into each barrel of the gun, and stood by into each barrel of the gun, and stood by Christie's Calvanie and Magnetic Curatives, waiting for fun. Presently Amasa came have been quietly working their way among the most intelligent and respectable classes, and are constantly achieving cures in an alarming train of formed plan that floated in the brain of Bob was instantly completed and put into action, as follows:

Hailing Amasa—

"Come quick," says he, "let's have some fun with Lem. We'll draw out his shot, and bet he can't hit your hat."

"Capital good idea," replied Amasa.

"Lem thinks be can shoot; we'll open his eyes! hey?"

Bob carefully drew out all the shot he had just put in, and put the gun tack, where he found it. Just then Lem came back, having sucked cider enough to make himself comfortable, and prepared to go.

"Hallo, Lem," says Amasa, "what are you toting that shooting iron about for" exclaimed Amasa, "bet an eyster supper fer the boys to-night "

Amasa put his hat on a post, and measured the six rods, almost bursting with suppressed laughter at the imaginary idea of Lem's looks when he should find that chuckling at the prospect of the success of his plan, and Lew, pleased with the idea of winning the bet. He brought the gun up to his face to fire.

"Double your bet, and give it both barrels," said Amasa.

"Aye! aye!" replied Lem, and he let drive, right and left, in quick succession. Before the smoke rolled away, Amasa jumped forward, with a shout and a laugh, to show Lem that he couldn't hit a hat in broad daylight. But-where was it? Bies of fur here and there, and a miserable, dilapidated wreck of a hat, that looked as all the woodcocks in Norfolk county had stuck their bills through it, was the sight to greet his eyes. The sudden and instantaneous change of his countenance. told Bob who had lost the wager.

And that was the way Amasa was cured of betting .- Boston Carpet Bay.

He wore a flashy waistcoat on the night when first we met, with a famous pair of whiskers, and imperial of jet. His hair had all the baughtiness, his voice the manly tone, of a gentleman worth forty thousand dollars all his own. I saw him but a moment, yet I think I see him now. with a very flashy waistcoat, and a beaver on his brow. And once again I saw that brow - no neat beaver was there, but a shocking bad 'un was his hat, and matted was his hair. He had a 'brick' within his hat; the change was all complete; and he was flanked by constables, who marched him up the street. I saw him but a moment, yet methinks I see him now, charged by these worthy officers with kicking up a row.
