We have so frequently, but from questionable quarters, heard strange perversion of constitutional laws in social relations, should start madly from the graceful orbit that we have become somewhat dulled to the sound of it; but when such leveling doctrines proceed from the mouth, and are spread before the world from the pen, of such men as Dr. Orville Dewey, we feel it nature and necessity asigned to him, trail our duty to protest.

the advice of the apostle, counseling to the Bloomer costumes? meeting in public Dewey declared it as his sentiment, that lation fit only for a dark age. In ragard tian obligations, and their fitness for to the changes of time and the superior the law of God, written not more strongly light of the present day, we will observe, in the Revealed Will, than in Sex, with that if the women are since greatly advanced, so also, we will sudpose, are the men; and if the husband, in the mental darkness of that age, might properly be regarded as the head of a household; so may the men of a day of comparative bright light be worthy of that position. A so, thou h to the wives it is said, "sub mit yourselves," yet we can neither recall nor find any passage in the Bible, where sympathizing mothers, training up the the husband is told to command the wife. On the contrary, the government of the husband is only recognized as a govern- joy on earth; our benevolent mistresses of ment of love and protection. The union of the two principles, of reverence in the wife, of affectionate guardianship in the of their superfluity of time, or means, or husband, seems to us to give to the comfort, to at least one of the thousand relationship an elevated moral beauty worthy of the Creator's constitution, worthy of the wisdom of God.

But more than this, the principles, or rather the non-principles, the disorganizing, leveling tendencies of this particular phase can contemplate with satisfation.
