

FOREIGN NEWS.

NEW YORK, July 11. The steamship Arctic, with four days later intelligence from Europe, arrived at her dock at half-past two this afternoon.

The Arctic left Liverpool at noon, on the 30th ult., and brings 123 passengers, and a fair amount of freight.

Owing to the continued unfavorable weather, the market for Flour and Wheat was a shade better; the business, however, was quite moderate. The former had advanced 3 pence per bush, and the latter one penny per 70 lbs. Yellow Indian Corn was scarce, and 6 pence per quarter dearer, while white do. was dull at previous prices.

ENGLAND. In Parliament nothing of general importance was doing.

The papers were still discussing the moral effect of the verdict in the Achilli case.

Accounts from Australia to the 31st of March, being three weeks later, have been received. The gold fields continued to yield abundantly, and prices had declined to 2 pounds 18 shillings per ounce.

Provisions and other necessities of life were becoming dearer. Flour had advanced to 22 pounds per ton for the finest quality. Shipments of gold were being made to Adelaide, from both Sidney and Melbourne, for the purpose of passing through the Assay office there. The imports of bullion at London for the previous fortnight, were one million pounds sterling, one hundred and thirty thousand pounds consisting of Australian gold.

Parliament was to be prorogued on the first of July, and it would be dissolved immediately afterwards by royal proclamation. The new Parliament will not meet before the middle of October.

Her Majesty and Prince Albert will visit Osborne for a short period previous to her visit to Scotland.

On Monday, the 28th ult., 246 sail of merchant ships entered the Thames.

FRANCE.

Letters from Paris announce that the session of the Corps Legislatif was brought to a close on Monday. The President addressed a message to it, couched in the most conciliatory terms, thanking it for its loyal co-operation, and promising to lay before it on its re-opening, some projects tending to diminish the country's expenses without injuring the public service. It is said to be in contemplation to enter into an international convention between France and the United States, Russia and Holland, to regulate the whale fishery on a new basis.

Cutting Grain Early.

Grain growers are almost universally in the habit of cutting their crops early—i. e. before the grain has become fully ripe. By this practice much is gained and nothing lost. Wheat cut in the milk, or just after the pulp has acquired a sticky or doughy consistency, and left to ripen on the stalk, is preferable for flour.

"Early cutting," says the "Western Farmer and Gardener," is the practice of the best wheat-raisers, whether the grain is needed for flour or for seed. The grain fills out after it is cut, and the wheat is plump and heavy—Dead ripe seed wheat better than those that are only just ripe; but seed simply ripe will germinate sooner and stronger, than dead ripe seed—Where one desires to keep seed for long voyages, or for years, it should be ripened thoroughly. Where it is to be kept for few months—from summer to spring, or from spring until autumn—seeds are even better by being gathered full early.

Nothing is probably added to the nutritious property of seeds in the last stage of ripening. The changes which they undergo are those that will preserve their vitality.

To cut, or gather before the final elaboration of carbon, by which they are to be preserved, takes from the seed, then, nothing of its richness, nothing of its weight—nothing but the quality of long keeping for planting purpose."

We have so often presented to the readers of the Telegraph facts relative to the advantages of early cutting, of so decided a character, that no one can any longer question the advantages of it.—Ger. Tel.

The First Potatoes.

We dug on the "Telegraph Farm," on the 14th of this month, (June) potatoes of this year's growth, of suitable size for cooking. They were planted on the 11th of March, in a rather deep furrow, between good layers of horse manure, and notwithstanding the cold weather subsequent to that period, and the heavy snows that covered the earth for several days at a time, the potatoes came up finely, scarcely one missing, and are now of ample size for use, and the vines are well hung. Last year we planted on the 4th of March, and the first dug was on the 18th of June, making a difference of eleven days in favor of the present season with all its backwardness.

The variety planted was the Mercer; but buying them at a store in the neighborhood at different periods, we found there was a full week difference in their coming up—a difference that is still apparent at the writing of this article. The later growth came directly from the east or north-east, while the other was of Pennsylvania growth.

Now, we should like to know who can beat the "Telegraph Farm," in out-door cultivation? If the lucky individual does exist, we should like to know his age, pedigree, and habitation.—Ger. Telegraph.

Barr, Kingston, Plymouth, 15 cents; to Peach Creek, Millburg, Bellefonte, 15 cents; to Milton, 17 cents; to Milton (contracted), 30 cents; Each additional word 1 cent; All off this line an addition to present rates of 4 cents.

At a meeting of the Directors, last week, in Danville, two per cent. dividend was declared on the last five months' proceeds, payable after the 1st of August.

"NATIONAL PORTRAIT GALLERY."

This is a publication intended to give biographical Sketches and Portraits, of over one hundred and twenty of the most eminent American Statesmen, Generals, Lawyers and Authors; among the latter of whom will be found a number of females.

The work will be completed in forty Numbers with three plates in each, at twenty-five cents a number. The first number contains nearly forty pages, together with two portraits of General Washington, and one of Martha Washington, his wife.

The National Portrait Gallery is published by Robert E. Peterson & Co., N. W. Corner of Fifth and Arch streets, Philadelphia.

The Programme of the approaching University Commencement, in this week's issue, presents an attractive bill of fare for "feast of reason and flow of soul."

The two Alumni, Messrs. LINS and IDE, are young gentlemen of acknowledged talent; JOHN S. BOWEN, Esq., has a high reputation as a writer and speaker; and BENJ. F. TAYLOR is known to our readers as one of the most gifted of the sons of our State. The occasion promises to be one of unusual interest.

The "Times," with characteristic effrontery, publishes a list of names of gentlemen whom it appoints Committees to urge people to attend its mass meeting on the 31st inst. The list includes many respectable citizens whom we know to be opposed to the factious movement; and others who, whatever may be their views upon the abstract questions involved, we are sure have no wish or willingness to be dragged into the ring in this manner.

Rev. E. W. Dickinson delivered an appropriate discourse, at the Baptist house on Sunday evening last, with reference to the death of Henry Clay.

Sunbury & Erie Railroad.

At a meeting of the Select Council of the City of Philadelphia, held Thursday evening of last week, (we copy from the Daily News)—

Mr. Wetherill offered a resolution, that all the memorials presented for a subscription to the Sunbury & Erie R. R. Co., be referred to Joint Special Committee. Mr. Perkins expressed his intention to oppose any further subscription, unless it came up in a form different from that originally introduced into Council.

Mr. Lancaster said that those members who had opposed the Railroad, were reviled by the Directors of the Company; that notes of the most insulting and authoritative character were sent to the members.

Mr. Waterman also made a few remarks on the subject. He said that he saw from the minutes of the Company, that Mr. Miller, the President, was to receive one per cent. on the subscriptions, but on what subscription, whether the City's or not, he could not say. He said he would oppose the measure at the present time, and hoped it would be postponed.

Mr. Hagert likewise made some remarks against the proceedings of the Company. The resolution was postponed for further consideration. Adjourned.

One per cent. commission—in addition to a liberal salary as President—is unreasonable and corrupting compensation. A million subscription from the City, in addition to the $995,000 already obtained from other corporations, would be $20,000 in the pocket of one man, for doing what he has (as we are informed) a salary of $5,000 a year for doing—all he can honorably advance the Company's interest!

We clip the following notice from the same No. of the News:

The First Instalment of Ten Dollars per share on the new subscriptions to the Stock of the Sunbury & Erie Railroad Company, will be due and payable at the Office of the Company, No. 56 South Front Street, (up stairs) on Monday, August 16, 1852. Interest will be paid semi-annually on each instalment from the date of payment—interest will also be allowed on all payments made in anticipation.

Fire Proof Building.

One afternoon last week, the roof of Christ & Frick's Foundry was ignited by sparks from the cupola; but the alarm of fire was raised, and the conflagration was arrested. Had the same accident happened in the more compact part of the town, at night, with the roofs prepared by the burning sun like cinder, and a wind blowing, what could have prevented the destruction of whole blocks of valuable buildings?

A daily paper of yesterday has a notice of a burning of twelve hundred buildings, in the single city of Montreal, and of hundreds more in different parts of the country.

About 1849, a writer in the Dollar Newspaper made an estimate, from the best of his knowledge, of the losses by fire in a few years in certain towns, numbering 725,000 inhabitants. The loss was $50,000,000 in all, or $60 per head, or $5.30 per year. Of this, $35,000,000 was in buildings. This $50,000,000 did not simply change hands, but was absolutely lost—lost not only to the owners, many of whom had toiled hard all their lives to acquire it, and were beggared in their old age, but lost to all mankind.

And yet, doubtless 90 per cent. of this loss might have been avoided, had absolute Fire Proof Buildings been erected, in place of wooden or half-protected brick or stone buildings—the former a temptation to bonfires, and the latter little better.

Supposing fire-proof buildings should cost 30 per cent. more than good brick houses, yet in permanent value, in consciousness of safety, and in saving of insurance, they would be really worth over 30 per cent. more than those not thus built.

Even fire-proof buildings are not perfectly secure against fire by carelessness or design from within, but there would be little or no danger of a fire in the interior of one building necessarily communicating with the next; and in a town or city thus built, and well supplied with water, a large or general conflagration could hardly occur in a thousand years.

We throw out these opinions for the consideration of our town people, builders generally, and the public press. It appears to us that loss of property by fire, is the most unnecessary and therefore the most culpable of all losses.

Engine companies and fire-plugs are good in their place, and insurances may make some amends for losses of property by fire, but not for loss of life, of health, or of security; and after all, the property is lost to our race, and in the end all must share the loss.

The best of all security is prevention, by means of fire-proof buildings, universal, and carefully built. At the present day, with stone, brick, lime, sand, iron, zinc, lead, asphaltum, glass, putty, tin, clay, buildings may be up which will defy the thief, the flames, and everything but the undermining assaults of Time.

HARRISBURG, JULY, 1852.

Patent Medicines, Almanacs, and Signs.

On leaving home, your last if not some solemn injunction to me was, "Write: write: often." Well, I have just commenced my journey, and with it must commence my epistle. I have reached the Canal, and am now bearing under a July sun as a philosopher only could. Three hours too early for the packet, and not a single newspaper in my pocket, only think of that! Fortunately, a gentleman came that way; his kind eye rested upon me for a moment. I could see the milk of human kindness welling up into his countenance. Either pitying my loneliness, or from my thin, lony appearance, supposing me out in quest of health, he handed me a book. I grasped it eagerly, and as eagerly opened it, but, lo! nine-tenths of its pages were puffs of patent medicines; the balance was an almanac. I read it from A to Z, and though I do not as yet fully understand the whole science of medicine, I think one more reading would put me through. As to Almanacs, I shall not need to look into another for a year to come, unless it be for the proper sign to trim my corns or to cut my toe nails. Unfortunately that book had no picture indicating the signs, and I believe it to have been a most lately designed omission—Give the people light on the subject of signs, and they will plant their potatoes, cabbage, beets, onions, squashes, and beans, in such sign as will make them grow up so tender as to destroy the demand for Peppin. In the good old days when we bought—I say bought—almanacs as were almanacs, we could tell what the weather would be each day for twelve months to come, and have our time so allotted as not to go out when it was too cold or too damp, and of course need no sugar-coated Pills, nor Jayne's Expectant, or other such stuff, to drive away colds and coughs.

Had that golden age continued a little longer, we should not have needed a Maine Liqueur Law, for it was even then known to a few that only the children born in the sign of the Fish would be afflicted with dryness, and we could either have dispensed with that sign, or had no children born in it, and drunkenness would have been extinct. Don't you see that sticking out, clear as mud?

We have fallen upon evil times. A great man once said, "let me make the songs for a people, and I will mould and fashion public sentiment to my own liking."—Some master of roots and herbs has caught up a more sublime idea—he wields a power more potent, by furnishing the people with almanacs, minus the signs. You see ignorance, gross and dark, is already prevailing on that important science: we sow and reap, we plant and gather, we eat and drink, we marry and are given in marriage, all at random. His come thick and fast upon us, and though we get our almanacs for nothing, the pills they recommend are not so cheap. If the people would banish patent medicine almanacs from their families, and pay a sixpence for the old fashioned kind, the abatement of human sufferings would be greater than we may at first sight imagine; such men as Brandreth, Jayne, Townsend, and a thousand others, would cease fattening on the credulity and ignorance of the masses; their rioting and sumptuous living on human woe would be ended.

But the sun has reached me, and I must shift my position, and with it my subject. What a delightful view presents itself from this point, and as I look out upon the immense valley before me, upon its thousand fields of waving grain whitening for the harvest, its princely mansions, its thriving villages, its flourishing boroughs, just emerging from the town into the city, and
