H. C. HICKOK, EDITOR.

O. N. WORDEN, PRINTER.

LEWISBURG CHRONICLE

AN INDEPENDENT FAMILY JOURNAL, Union county, Pannsylvania,

THRUS. $1.0 per year, for cash actorsis in advance $1.75, if paid within three months; $2.00 if paid within year; $2.50 if not paid before the year expires; 5 cents 6 single numbers. Subscriptions for six months or less, it

The Laborer and the Warrior.

BY EPPEN STRUCANT. The camp has had he day of song :

The camp has had he day of song: The award, the hey one, the p urns, Have crowded earl of thyme the bang. The plow, the streid and the learn? Oh! not upon our terried reids. Are fundame here as lead about? The training of the work-loop yields. More here's true than wer has known Who drives the holds, who showes the steel.

May with a heart as vallent smite, As he, who sees a fermion cost in blood, before his blow of might! That skill that conquere space and time, That graces life, that figuress tell. May spring from courage more validies. Than that which under a resim its spall

Let inher then look up and see Let inher then held up and see
His craft on althe of findir arche;
The scaler's title vet about he Less impored than the scanding of axe.
Let art his own as the finding of the Nor does that part or correct hight.
Can compagnete the most that her
In that to that her of the corn delight.

As the state of th

Education of the Beart.

not furnish the elements necessary to suc- haughty and overbearing in his disposition, not to sleep. cessful cultivation of it; and the child is seeming by his general confluct to have "Faulkner," whispered the captain, we solicited to reflection, when it is only been in the habit of commanding, rather are in a snug fix, for I have reason to befancy the strength and the memory are already began to exercise a sort of control and Russel have both been poisoned." the heaft. The father may instil more necessity, and Tom Roland was installed the same low tone, "and if I'm not mis-stuffed into the head of the child, people Ose morning, when Capt. Wallack and do not reflect on the anatomical fact, that his second mate had the morning watch, the brain of an infant is not the brain of they both kept the deck until Roland had requires repose; that to force the attention o'c.ock, they went below. When they to abstract facts; to load the memory with reached the cabin, Mr. Russell, the superchronological and historical or scientific cargo, was just rising from the table, and detail; in short, to extect a child's brain taking a book from the head of his berth to bear with impunity the exertions of a sat down upon a stool at the foot of the man's, is as irrational as would be to hazard ladder and commenced reading. He passed be devoted to the education of the heart his reading. Some five minutes had passed, to the formation of principles, rather than when Faulkner and Wallack were startled to the acquirement of what is usually by a sudden exclamation of pain from the termed knowledge. Nature herself points supereargo, and on turning, they saw that out this course, for the emotions are the he had dropped his book, and sat with both liveliest and most easily moulded, being hands pressed hard upon his stomach. as yet unalloyed by passion. It is from while his features had assumed a livid hue this source the mass of men are hereafter expressive of the most acute suffering. to show their sum of happiness and misery. The captain sprang quickly from the table. -The actions of the immense majority are and laying his hand upon the sufferer's under all circumstances determined much shoulder, exclaimed: more by feeling than reflection; in truth, "What is the matter, Mr. Russell?" life presents a happiness that we should "O, God! I don't know. Here it is! I feel rightly; very few instances occur where burn " uttered the suffering supercargo it is necessary that we should think pro- as he pressed his hands harder upon his

Up to the seventh year of life, very great changes are going on in the structure have you been drinking?" asked Wallack of the brain, and demand, therefore, the in a frenzy of anxiety. utmost attention, not to interrupt them by improper or over excitement. Just that the poor fellow. degree of exercise should be given to the Wallack east a trembling glance at his brain at this period that is necessary to its second mate, and for a moment they both it is, perhaps, necessary to add, that at same way." this period of this life special attention should be given, both by parents and countenance were a strange shade of doubt dispensable; and wherever they are with- features of the supercargo.

sufferings have, in innumerable instances, last, for the elastic and bounding impulses of first mate had disappeared a short time beour young blood - Quarterly Riview. fore, and then turning his gaze toward the with white arcenic, and he now knew that fast!

LEWISBURG, UNION COUNTY, PENN., FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1853.

THE SOLITARY FRIEND.

was launched from her stocks at mid-day, to stand on her course. on can said by the real stand on her course, at the first impress to the said when she gave her first impress to the said there and those on when she gave her first impress to the said requested. The requested the requested of the said requested the requested of the said requested the requested of the requested of the said reque when she gave her first impress to the salt requested the mate, if the wind should clasped his hands in silent agony. water. Several years subsequent to the haul round to the eastward any, to call "Lost." reiterated the captain. period when the story opens, she was driv-him. Reland replied kindly that he would, no, that can not be. Some of them will mand?" en upon one of the Martyr's Roefs, and but beneath the half curling smile that surely help us." her ill-fated timbers were strewed upon the rested upon his features, the captain the't

Ben Wallack, a powerful, broad-chosted bland frankness he wished his mate a man, but as kind and considerate as he pleasant watch, and went below. was fearless and strong. Scamen were: "Fauthner," said the captain, as he heard the whole plot, and every part and Roland grasped his companion by the with great difficulty, and under these cir- ladder, "let not a word escape you, unless, and all the men, with the exception of face, he went on and detailed the whole ship had been six days out, when the first eye open and follow my movements." mate, a Sir Gayan, from Providence, R. Fenckner did not start at this request, the first ship they could meet with that His recital was just the same that the see f. was subjectly taken sick, and on the for the same thought seemed to be passing next meaning medicle so clay was considered in his own mind. to the deep grave of the time Atlantic.

This matimaly event left Capt. Wallack 1 all clouck to be he rd on deck, "I must second mate, was by no mesor quames second mate, was by no mesor quames by the college ner would be have taken the you please."

As Wallack spoke, he reached over into the college material desired its part out his pistole, which responsibility had the captain desired it. As Wallack speke, he reached over into There was but one man in the ship who his berth and took out his pistols, which capable of sensation and emotion. In in- than obeying, on ship-board, and who had lieve there is mutiny on board. Gwynn men." only excited strongly by the sense and move over the crew. But the case was one of

they are expounded in stereotyped apho-rough navigator, and finished seamon, and No physician doubts that precocious Wallack began to think his misgivings knew from their manner that there was the physician doubts that products were entirely groundless. Over the crew mischief in their manner children, fifty cases for one, are much the were entirely groundless. worse for the discipline they have under. Reland had the most thorough control, the same sort of experiments on its muscles. a few observations upon the weather, as the The first eight or ten years of life should captain and his second mate went on with stomach.

"What have you been eating? What ner, "poor Gwynn was taken exactly the captain's directions. There were two se- a God in Heaven."

The seeds of protracted and hopeless company. Mr. Russell had breathed his

I think it is now about twelve years—it ful suspicion kept him back, and until the its symptoms had not been so palpable.

cob Morgan was commanded by Captain itself upon his countenance, but with a one solitary friend on board the ship!"

"het's see," said the emplain in a tone

It is the view of the age to substitute persessed afficient knowledge of seaman- he proceeded exceeding to lead, taking care learning for wisdom; to educate the head ship for the mate's berth, and though the while that his back was turned towards learning for wisdom; to enucate the head will be to him he must give the companion way. Paulkner followed and forget there is a more important educa-tion necessary for the heart. The reason the office, yet he did so with many misgiv-his example, and ere long the candles were is cultivated at an age when nature does ings. The man's name was Tom Roland, extinguished, and the two men retired but

"Yes. I saw Roland give the cook a small paper to-night, and they held quite a ready and efficient officer, and Capt. an animated conversation about it. I

"Then in God's name, what will gone. The mind seems to have been and even to be and even to be an and even to be and even to be an analysis of the even to be an and even to be an analysis of the even of those in the forecastle who do not join them. Would to Heaven I knew how

"You have a passage between the deeks

" Perhaps you might gain some information by listening."

"No. If Roland leads the plot-and l know he does -he would not dare to carry on his conversation upon there, for they would hear him "

"Hark !" whispered Faulkner, as a appressed voice at the wheel met his ear. He bent his head out from the bunk, and caught the following words, which he knew to be from the lips of Roland:

Hal. You look out for the deck a few mast." minutes, while I see the boys in the fore-ed Faulkner. "Now is your time to fol-

"No-you had better go, Faulkner, for no mistake. You know where the passage der. over to where the supercargo used to bunk, the deck.

forecastle, where the men had congregated his first mate had come to his end the same Faulkner was by the wheel, and several way, though the desc of the latter must Roland east a furtive glauce around him. per, and then raising his voice, he said: dies on the spot! Alia, my fine fellows, THRILLING EPISODE OF OCEAN LIFE. times as the captain approached him in his have been much smaller than that which and then looking fixedly into his companwalk, did he start to join him, but a fear sent poor Russell to his untimely end, and ion's eyes, said :

gan," a ship of seven hundred tons burden, spoke a word, save such as related to man- brain, Faulkner returned from his espion- the captain!" sailed from Brunswick, Georgia, for the agement of the ship. At eight o'clock. age, and as he crept stealthily post the foot East Indies. She was a noble ship, but if Roland came on deck for the first watch, of his bunk, Wallack fancied he could we believe the assertions of one who sailed The ship was upon the starboard tack, hear his heart beat in his bosom.

in her, she was built for misfortune. She close hauled upon the wind, and just able "What news?" asked the captain, almost fearing to put the question. "We are lost !" uttered Faulkner, as he

he could detect a lurking spirit of evil, in a tone that made the captain's stour who is there but you that is qualified At the time of which we write, the Ja- He let not a shadow of his doubt manifest heart beat more quickly, "you have but "But if I were captain would you follow

> "All but poor Nat Faulkner. I have flag, so that I had revenge." to run on to the coast of Benguela, and he said :

take in a look of slaves for either Brazil or in a critical situation. Nat. Manifester, his ran overage reckinding before I turn in. Cuba. When the blody villian first besecond mate, was by no messes qualified Mr. Fullburr, just hand me that chart, if gon to falk to-night, he had some thoughts be my hand that finds the life of Captain I killing you and then trying to main me Wallack." idea, and to-morrow we both die."

"Don't give up yet," said the captain. then in their villiany."

son they will yet kill us. But there is one down between St. Matthews and Ascen-deed. consolation-we will die together, honest sion."

" Yes."

called at midnight.

an hour before the cook had prepared their who were mere hirelings, following what-can see him. He's caught the life busy." When the Jacob Morgan returned to the breakfast. The captain walked up and ever fortune turned up for them, most of The boat pulled eight ears, and with a United States, Capt. Wallack learned that acingly in his face, he uttered:

time you have, by your lubberly careless- as all hands would be on the alert for ac- and then be seen, as he rose and fell upon in guilt, had indeed met the same grave to ness, torn up the paper containing my tion before the morning watch was set. the life busy, he sprang forward and se- which they had consigned poor Gwyan day's work. Now if you do it again' I

" Do it as soon as you please," returned Falkner, his face reddening with apparant "He's going to the forecastle," whisper- anger. "You won't frighten me.

"Don't be insolent, sir."

"I am not insolent." " You were."

may be that some one will come down "It's a lie!" uttered Faulkner, actuto see me, and in that case our movements ally trembling at the sound of his own would be discovered. There's mutiny, and words, addressed to his herieuean commanmaintmast it takes a short turn to starboard the word dropped from his officer's lips, did he walk from the wheel to the main- "Belay that, and jump to the head bra-"Nothing, nothing. Oh! oh!" ground and follows along the check, down to the on the next instant he dealt him a blow mast and back. At the sixth turn, just ces. That will do-belay." tanks. Slip out from your berth, and go upon the breast that prostated him upon as he reached the rack in which were coiled. As soon as the head braces had been bethrough one of these the second mate soon in. Twice did Roland start to follow him, same appearance of cool thought once more back. teachers, to the physical development of the child. Pure air and exercise are inlast.

Capt. Wallack and Nat. Faulkner had direct mutiny, and his former fears with caboose and gave some hurried directions top-sail and top-gallant sails.

Capt. Wallack and Nat. Faulkner had

top-sail and top-gallant sails.

Faulkner to his side.

"Hoot, woman," was the answer, "I weall not do it if ye was his wife, much

"Mr. Faulkner," said the captain, again

"Mr. Faulkner," said the captain, again simply through ignorance of this great fundamental physical law; and the time

Capt. Wallack and Nat. Faulkner had tegard to Roland had nearly been quieted, to the cook. After that he took two or stopping in his walk near the mainmast, at three hurried turns up and down the stopping in his walk near the mainmast, at the last dog watch. Roland had gone but now the suspicion had been been sudden the last dog watch. Roland had gone but now the suspicion had been been sudden the last dog watch. Roland had gone but now the suspicion had been been sudden to the cook. After that he took two or stopping in his walk near the mainmast, at the last dog watch. Roland had gone but now the suspicion had been been sudden to the cook. After that he took two or stopping in his walk near the mainmast, at the last dog watch. Roland had gone but now the suspicion had been been sudden to the cook. After that he took two or stopping in his walk near the mainmast, at the last dog watch. Roland had gone but now the suspicion had been been sudden to the cook. After that he took two or stopping in his walk near the mainmast, at the last dog watch. Roland had gone but now the suspicion had been been sudden to the cook. After that he took two or stopping in his walk near the mainmast, at the last dog watch. Roland had nearly been quieted, to the cook. After that he took two or stopping in his walk near the mainmast, at the last dog watch. Roland had nearly been quieted, to the cook. After that he took two or stopping in his walk near the mainmast, at the cook is a proper word. has come when the united voices of these down into the cabin, while the foremost den, and it was strong even to the very quarter deck, and then beckoning to Faulk- the same time motioning for his second ell. innocent victims should ascend "trumpet- hands, with the exception of the man at certainty. A thousand little instances ner, who stood sulkily leaning against the mate to come to him. tongued," to the ears of every parent and the wheel were all forward. The captain came back to his mind, which singly had lee rail, he walked forward to the bitts. "I have it! Watch my every motion, drew a heavy pistol in each band, while teacher in the land. Give us fresh air paced the quarter-deck in a thoughtful, appeared as nothing, but which now helped The second mate followed his silent reand wholesome exercise, leave our expanding energies to be developed in accordance troubled mood, ever and anon casting his to solve the mystery of Gwynn's death. Quest, and in a moment after he passed At the first opportunity you get, as soon the wheel a single spoke, or leave the helm Liquor Law," is in this State operating in quest, and in a moment after he passed ing energies to be developed in accordance to the laws of our being, and full of scope eye towards the companionway, where his without my order, you are a dead man! favor of his darling measure. He lectared as the men are all up, secure the cabin and without my order, you are a dead man! favor of his darling measure. He lectared as the men are all up, secure the cabin and without my order, you are a dead man! favor of his darling measure. The lectared

he then asked

"But who would take his place in com-

"Ben Wallack," returned the the mate, perfect appearance of honest intent. "Why

" All! all! are they ALL against us?" | "Yes, even to the hoisting of the black scarce, and the ship's crews were obtained cast a furtive glance at the head of the parcel of it. Roland is an old slave dealer, hand, and after gazing a moment into his counstances, men had been hired who it be of common place affairs, until we four, whom he frightened or persuaded to plot he had formed for taking the ship, would otherwise have been rejected. The turn into our berths; but keep your weather join him, are from St. Domingo, from landing the cargo on the coast of Lower whence they came in company to pick up Guinco, and going into the slave trade.suited their purpose. We are to be mur. oud mate had heard while listening at the dered to morrow, and then Roland intends, forecastle bulk-head, and, as he concluded

"Yes, readily; but remember, it shall

"But, say, Roland, why have you not footfail at the companion way, and fearing ly careful, for Roland's eyes were open to to cast off anything !" in the morning, they came upon deck half watch, while there were some six or seven the captain, "and you'll save him yet. 1 voyage. could come to their rescue; but whatever erew who were too intently watching the the Cape Verds. "Mr. Falkner, that makes the fourth was done must be done before midnight, mate, whose white shirt could every now The villain Roland and his companions

"They are both asleep before this time, will disrate you and put you before the took the first watch. Nine o'clock passed that the men could not readily obtain their the blue bosom of the Atlantic bear them and so did ten. Wallack paced the deck arms. When the beat had neared to where on in their ungedly enterprise, but its relin a steady, thoughtful mood, ever and anon the mate was rolling about in his salt bath. Jing waves were only destined to hurst casting his eyes about upon the crew, most the captain gradually gave the ship weath- open the gates of etercity, and usher their of whom were forward. The moon threw or helm until the maintonsail was filled souls into the presence of Him who crushed its pale beams upon the herculean frame abaft. Then as if the affair was the result them in their path of sin! of the captain, and a close observer might of an accident, he exclaimedhave seen the iron muscles as they worked "Hallo, I've let her off! Mizzen brain his limbs. His countenance betrayed ces, boys, and we'll wear around on the the varying thoughts and intense anxiety other tack." runs between the boxes; just abaft the Capt. Wallack took one step forward as the bell had told that ten o'clock had passed ute the mizzen topsail was squared. and move that panel, it moves easier than "Capt. Wallack," said Faulkner, as he with a nervous quickness, while the flash-main, not yet suspecting that anything but dent elect of the United States is traveling grose from his fall, "you shall suffer for ing of his eyes and the instantaneous con- accident had to do with the movements of around so much with any other woman health; and the nest is moral instruction, examplified by the objects which strike the captain's directions. There were two set a crou in reactions. There were two set a crou in reaction and characteristic full idea had shot into his mind. He quick- ing away from the boat which had just assure them that Blackwood's Magazine. ship through the cabin bulkhead, and quickly upon his heel, he went to his cab- ly resumed his walk, however, and the picked up Roland and had turned to come which is high aristocratic authority, has

When Faulkner came up to the bitts, This Wallack spoke in a hurried whis first pass that moves an inch till I bid him. "Mr. Faulkner, will you go below and you are well caught! That boat astern the ulmost importance." his gaze, assured him, and he immediately with the other six, for if one of you dure Roland's eyes sparkled as he heard this: went below to do his errand. In a few speak a mutinous word-av, if you dare moments he returned, followed by the first look a mutinous look, that man is dead on mate, who had not stopped to dress him. the very next instant! Walleigh, Burn-> step this way out of the car shot of Faulk- then he said : ner, I will tell you?"

stood leaning against the rail at the mate's free will?"

"Look out, sir! look out, Reland, or did it to save our lives." ou'll be overboard."

As Wallack uttered the first syllable of us be turned to the man at the wheel,

Some plan may be devised to thwart tends to touch at the Cape Verdes, and we mutineer by the leg, and ere the last syling thou, and we couldn't help it." are not more than three days' sail from the of this exclamation full from his lips, "Well, my men, I believe you," re-"No, no, Wallack—there are sixteen there at the furthest, so you must have Roland was plunged headlong into the sent turned Captain Wallack, in a frank tone, of them, and we know not how or where him out of the way to-night. I want to All hands on deck had heard the captain's "and if you prove faithful now, I will not

"A man overboard " shouted Wallack, "Oh, God bless you, sir," ejaculated not die!" uttered Wallack, in a tone so It seems to me, if I had been in your place, land is overboard! Cut away the life buoy er-beaten checks. solid and available instructions in an hour into the office of first mate, and quartered taken, there'll be poison in our coffice cup them. No, no, Faulkner, let me think. a peculiar, meaning smile; but you see I buntlines! Mr. Faulkner, rouse up all sincere in their protestations. "Now bring the main take and me some seizing-stuff from the long boat, had that it might have proved dangerous. I should have made quick work of it." There, one of you! Main and maintopsails "That will do-I will trust you now," You say Roland thought of retaining you have been picking them off carefully. Had hands quick! Let up the main tack and me some seizing stuff from the long boat, lack would not have been living now." ces and round into windward! work live- Roland's two remaining companions." "Then'I have it. I'll tell you on the Before night, Wallack learned the result 'ly, men, or we shall lose him! Haul out The two men were bound without trou

But the most difficult part of the work was the ship was hove to, with the maintopsail The ship was soon in good sailing trim, to be accomplished, for they had sixteen to the mast. The boat was lowered from head put N. E. by E. and in four days she The remainder of the night passed on stout men to dispose of. Faulkner had the davits and hauled under the quarter, was anchored in Funchal Road, where the without disturbance. Wallack and his learned that five of the principal mutineers and those who were most anxious to save two mutineers were delivered up to justice,

At length the captain and second mate cured the fore-castle companion way, so and Russell. They had thought to make the mainsail halyards, he stopped quickly, layed, part of the men came aft to the of morality to hear it said that the Presi-elapsed ere he returned, and during that a strange light in his eyes as he caught the The wind was now blowing a good top- of the men who had stopped at the startime the captain's mind was tortured by revengeful expression upon Faulkner's gallant breeze from S. S. E., and the ship beard mainbrace, "take the helm a mohald the consequences will be certain to ex-tend themselves over the whole future life, ceaseless waves over another of the sing, various fearful emotions. Until the death countenance, and then, as if a sudden tho't was close hauled upon the star-board tack, ment. Lay aft here all hands," he order-by a customer. "Do you know," said the of Russel, he had not held a suspicion of had struck him, he went quickly to the

"No!" thundered Capt. Wallack, as he

VOLUME IX .-- NO. 41. WHOLE NUMBER, 461.

tell my mate that I should like to see him wever will return to this ship. I threw "Faulkner, have you the courage to fol a moment on deck?" Then he added in your scoundrel leader overboard, and then may be thirteen—since the "Jacob Mor- watch was changed, neither he or Wallack While the captain lay thus racking his low up the revenge you have sworn against a whisper, "Tell him I have business of I sent nine more after him. They may find the same resting place that they gave Faulkner looked a moment into his com- to poor Gwynn and Russell ! Ten of the "But you would not dare to take his mander's face, as if he doubted whether sixteen individuals who thought to murder this order was given in carnest, but the me, have been disposed of by stratagem, "I dare take ony man's life that siciles confident, resolute countenance which met but by heaven, I shall need no stratugem > self, but came up in his simple robe de bam and Vaughu, step forward here." As the captain spoke, the three men "Mr. Roland," said the captain, as his thus designated advanced from their commate came on dock, at the same time step. panions, and trembling at every joint, they ping over under the lee of the spanker, awaited his will. A moment he looked at I should not have called you had I not them as though he would have utterly anthe most urgent necessity. If you will just nihilated them with his very gaze, and

> "Tell me, my men, and mind that you Roland stepped to the lee rail, and lean | tall me truly-were you frightened intoed his back against it, while the captain this bloody mutiny, or did you join of your

> "O, Captain Wallack," exclaimed Wal-"Roland," continued he, "I'm afraid leigh, as he fell upon his knees and class-Mr. Faulkner is up to some cyll dusign." ed his hands, while the other two followed "Ah," uttered the villion, while a need his example, " we were drawn into it, sic. lian speakle that forth from his eyes. "Per- Gwynn and Rossell had both cone when aps he has not forgotten the blew you Roland threatened us, if we didn't toin thim. As there is a God in Heaven, we

> > "And you, Howell," said the captain.

of killing you and then trying to gain me Wallack." this exchangement, he placed his hand upon "Wallack "Then be it so," returned Roland. Reland's mouth, and with a crushing ir not during to let go the wheel, but laying "And now we must have the matter set- resistible force, he bent him back over the his right hand upon his heart, " that I retled as soon as possible, for Wallack in rail. At the same instant, he caught the fused at first, but there were twalve of to meet them. If we drink not their poi- keep away to-morrow morning, and run apparent warning but none had seen bis only fergice you, but I will never speak of your fault to your harm."

"By the power of great Heaven, we will put Wallack out of the way before this? helm from him who held it. "Mr. Ro- itude rolled thick and fast down their weathas he sprang to the wheel and took the they all in a breath, and the tears of grat-of his own and Faulkner's stratagem of the the spanker !- now spring to the stern da- ble and placed in the long boat for safe As the captain spoke, he heard a slight morning, but the two had to be exceeding- vits, beys! Cut the lashings-don't stop keeping. They begged and they prayed gone. The mind seems to have been and even those men who had evinced to do?" uttered the captain. "Their plan his back, laid his hand upon the butt of that if their deception was suspected, their as rapidly as they could be obeyed, and by actuated them, and he would not trust that they too might be pardoned, but Wal-

the brain of an infant is not the br down the lee side of the quarter deck sev- whom were stationed in the watch with hand at the tiller, she had nine men in her her owners had given her up as lost. A eral times in a sort of angry, troubled their leader. Wallack's main hope was when she put off, and as Wallack had ex- homeward bound East Indiaman had picked mood, and muttering stifled curses to him- in disposing of the five leading mutineers peeted, these comprised the men he most up one of her boats, which was found botself, until, at length, he stopped before his in his watch, by some stratagem, and then feared. Faulkner saw the whole in an in-tom-upwards in the water, twelve hundred second mate and shaking his finger men- dispatching Roland before the watch below stant, and unobserved by the rest of the miles to the northward and westward of who is considerably of an orbiter elegantithat moved within him. Five times after The men mistrusted not, and in a min. arms, which means a man of taste, says: "We wish the Democratic papers would call Mrs. Pierce the wife of th sleet, instead of his lady. They are legally married, and she is entitled to the name of wife. Besides, it shocks all our ideas fully endorsed it in a long and excellent "Here, Howell," said the captain to one article, the text of which was taken from

Lady vs. Wife. The editor of the Providence Journal.

for wife or woman is in shocking taste.'