Liberty Tp., Tioga Co., Oct. 25,'53.

About 3 o'clock, P. M., we started again from Trout Run, with a load of seven passengers only and a stouter apparatus, animate and inanimate, to persuade us onward. You are aware that this is a very hilly road, one mountain requiring nearly two miles to ascend. Trout Run is a primitive retreat for fish, beasts, and menportions of it seem as though the sun could not visit it till noon-silence profound, and | year?)-but here it is the topic of consolitude almost eternal-only two houses in ten or a dozen miles. But about 9 of a star-light evening, over the remains of a 10 or 12 inch snow almost fit for sleighing, we pulled up for the night.

"Block Hauss" (or Log House) settlement, was made a prominent point for travelers, about the end of the last century, in consequence of the opening of this route for travel by Mr. Williamson, agent of Sir Wm. Putney, who owned lands in the Chemung region of New York. A road from the West Branch by Lycoming present. The feud in the Democratic par-Creek, Trout Run, and Tioga River, to the Chemung, greatly facilitates travel beand Lake country.

The original proprietor of the Block House Hotel, and the sole settler for miles sylvania, notwithstanding his removal. around, was named Anthonysen. He was of Germanic origin, but more French than German, as he was engaged in some of the earlier horrors of the French Revolution. By his own accounts, he had been guilty of almost every crime forbidden by laws human and divine; and very many be lieved him to have not added the guilt of falsebood to his other enormities when boasting of them. As his large block tenement was the only building in this region-located in a small flatt near a branch of Pine Creek-travelers were forced to seek his hospitality, or go much farther or perhaps far worse. For a time, he had no provender, but charged for the use of his trough, and of his fire. There was a large windfall of trees near his place, into which were said to be blind paths, where the cattle of emigrants often strayed, and from which they never strayed back. In the morning, the anxious and often poor owner would seek for his cattle, far and wide; day ; but all their search was To faithas Anthonyson never led them to the windfall. They would at last, after paying a handsome sum for their accommodations, pass on to their destination, promising him a handsome compensation if he should ever find and let them know of their lost cattle. But he never had occasion to trouble them with letters. Soon after, however, he ould have good luck in hunting, and his smoke-house was fragrant with elk meat. The horns and hide of this enormous species of game, he always declared were too heavy for him to bring in; and by some accident they were never found, nor were any other hunters sharers of his success in elk hunting. Such is the tradition ; and men passing this route have sometimes disappeared quite as mysteriously. "Old Anthonyson" has also disappeared,-some say he removed to parts unknown. He has doubtless ere this gone to his long account; the county is now dotted with small towns all around his solitary blockhouse; there are now nearly 400 taxables in the township, Yankees and German, who find a good soil with good culture; and the old block-house itself has been razed to the ground, and a neat and well-appointed and weil-provisioned and exceedingly well-kept " hostelrie" is now maintained upon its site by Mr. J. H. Woodruff. N. Y. Tribune, Monday. This (Liberty) township, three miles from this centre, was for a long time the residence of the gifted and amiable Mrs. Lydia Jane Pierson. She came from Connecticut when but a young girl, and with faw subsequent advantages has acquired a good reputation as a writer of poetry, of December, 1854. ELMIRA is gaining most of any village in New York, but many of the new houses are of the most ordinary character. If there are no better new buildings than those seen from the Railroad, her property is not of the most substantial nature, or does not indicate much increase of wealth. POLITICS is now quite an interesting subject. We heard nothing of it in Pennsylvania-(did you have any election, this versation. The Democrats are divided into the Hards and Softs, or Adamantines and Puttyheads, or Hunkers and Barnburners, who appear to be of about equal force, as regards the Press. In this region, the Barn burners-aided as they are by the State and National Governments-appear to have the advantage. The Silver Grevs appear to be attempting to make a similar division from the Whig party ; but their efforts will be of little account, unless more vigerous and well-sustained than at ty is much more bitter than it was in 1848. #### Alarming Railroad Accident on the Hudson River Railroad.

The 4 o'clock, P. M. express train from New York, of Saturday last, met with : frightful disaster at Yonkers. Through the carelesness of the person having charge of the switch, the train, a very heavy one, with two locomotives attached, was run upon a side track which does not extend beyond the lower end of the ticket office at Yonkers, and nearly every car was completely demolished. The forward locomotive (the "Saratoga,") was run into the ground to such an extent that the hindermost end is elevated to an angle of 45° The second locomotive(the "Kinderhook") received comparatively little damage, having only, as far as we could discover, the flue-cap, cow-catcher and railings knocked off. The baggage car is completely smashed, as also nearly all the passenger cars.
