

LEWISBURG CHRONICLE

DECEMBER 16, 1853.

The Business Men... The Lewisburg Chronicle has the largest circulation of any English newspaper in this county.

Lake Erie and the New York Erie Canal were still open, and business brisk, on Monday of this week.

The Cashier of the Northumberland Bank advertises the following list of Deposits in that Bank remaining unclaimed for three years and upwards: H. P. Groves, residence unknown, $ 22.90 Philip Freedman do 100.00 James Lowrey do 40.00 George Kremer, Union Co. $49.44 W. H. Ludwig, Lewisburg, 21.26 Warren Mordock, agent, Danville 21.69 Unclaimed Dividends, none.

The following are the names of the persons, belonging to the surveying party of Capt. Gunnison, who were murdered by the Utah Indians on the 20th October, on the Sevier River, near Sevier Lake: Capt. J. Gunnison, commander; R.H. Kern, topographer; Crutfield, Bismont, and Wm. Foster, guides; privates Canfield, Lipler, and Melton, company A. mounted riflemen, and John Bellam, employe. One half the company escaped.

The Turkish War.

Latest accounts give no news of any great or decisive battle between the Russian and Turkish armies. Several skirmishes between detached portions of their armies, have resulted generally favorably to the Turkish cause. Both parties however appear to be preparing to enter into winter quarters.

An engagement between the fleets of the contending nations, has resulted in the defeat of the Russians. The Cossacks have also been successful in every meeting with their old enemies the Russians. On the whole, the news is decidedly favorable to the Turkish cause, and their national pride is fully aroused.

Alliance between England and France on the Eastern Question.

The Herald has special information, upon which it places entire reliance, that on the eleventh day of November, in the city of London, a most important treaty of alliance was agreed to and signed by Count Walewski on the part of France, and Lord Clarendon on the part of England, in reference to the Eastern Question. The treaty stipulates that England and France were despatched immediately by couriers to Berlin from Vienna, with an intimation that from the day of its arrival at each of these capitals a period of seven days would be allowed to the cabinets of Prussia and of Austria to determine upon their assent or refusal to enter into the arrangement. It is agreed to, well and good; if rejected, it was to be understood that France and England would take the settlement and the responsibilities of this Eastern controversy into their own hands. It is further understood that from the terms of this treaty, Russia will be required forthwith to evacuate the Danubian Principalities, or that in refusing, she hazards the momentous consequences of an immediate joint declaration of war from England and France. And as the shortest road to peace, when once this declaration is made, the Herald thinks we may safely assume that the active operations of the allies against Russia will be of the most effective and formidable description, by land and sea.

This positive and warlike alliance between France and England is due, first, to the unquenchable wishes of the French army, the French people, and the natural inclinations of the Napoleon dynasty, resting, as it does, upon the glories and the unavenged disasters of the empire. And, secondly, this alliance against the timid and trifling expedients of Lord Aberdeen is due to the free of the public opinion of England, which is beginning to have a voice even in its foreign policy.

33d Congress--1st Session.

The Whigs, Free Soilers and Herds voted for Mr. Tucker.

In the House, Mr. Houston is Chairman of Committee of Ways & Means, Mr. Bayly of Foreign Affairs, Mr. Boscawen of Naval Affairs, Mr. Benton on Military Affairs.

Mr. Gerrit Smith presented a petition from the New York Temperance Alliance, asking Congress to take action for the suppression of intoxicating drinks in the District of Columbia, and asked for a special committee. Mr. Richardson objected, and it lays over.

Mr. Cobb introduced the Homestead bill, referred to Com. on Public Lands. Mr. Wentworth (Ill.) offered resolution that Congress has the power to construct a Railroad for our National uses from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and ought immediately to exercise that power. Laid on the table by a vote of 126 to 72.

Destructive Conflagration! Harpers' Establishment in Ruins. Sixteen Buildings Consumed.

The most alarming fire that has visited New York City since the terrific conflagration of 1845, occurred on Saturday afternoon, in Cliff and Pearl streets, and Franklin square, and within a few hours the immense Book Publishing House of Messrs Harper & Brothers, together with other buildings, were a mass of smouldering ruins. Within the same time about two thousand artisans and workmen, engaged in comfortable occupations, were robbed of employment and thrown idle upon the world. In all the conflagrations that we have witnessed--and their name is legion--we have never seen anything to equal this in grandeur.

At 1 o'clock in the afternoon the City Hall and other bells throughout the City rang forth an alarm for the Seventh District, and in a few moments thereafter a dense smoke might have been seen rising up from the eastern section of the City apparently near the river, between Beckman and Franklin streets. With the first sound of the Hall bell the firemen were on the alert, and the various companies, with their apparatus, appeared in every street in the lower part of the City, moving rapidly toward the scene of the conflagration, in the extensive publication establishment of Harper & Brothers, located in Cliff and Pearl streets, near Ferry st.

It seems that a plumber who was at work in the lower part of the building, arranging some water pipes, lighted a piece of paper for the purpose of lighting his cigar or pipe, which having done, he carelessly threw the burning paper into a vessel containing embers, the man supposing it was water. In an instant the liquid was a blaze; the flames communicated to a thin partition, burning through into a small apartment where was kept a considerable quantity of camphene, for the purpose of cleaning the rollers of the printing presses. The fluid in this room was instantaneously in a blaze and the flames were carried by a strong draught through waifers, into every story of the building.

The flames burst through the partitions with great fury, and swept in all directions of the rooms, from building to building, until five of them were entirely enveloped in flames. The spread of a fire thus started in an establishment filled with such combustible material, as not only bound but unbound books in immense quantities in the drying-rooms and binderies, may be better imagined than described. There was a large number of employes engaged in the establishment, including about four hundred females employed in the extensive binderies. The panic among the latter class was terrible, and the escape of many of them from the prison-house of flame, would, without aid have been impossible.

When the flames first made their appearance the scenes were of the most thrilling character. Some six hundred human beings were in the establishment, scattered through the different floors, crying and screaming for assistance to save them from perishing in the fiery element that nearly surrounded them on all sides. Young girls between the ages of twelve and nineteen years rushed to the windows of the second, third, fourth and fifth stories of all the buildings on both streets, imploring aid. The panic was terrific, and strange to say, not a single life was lost by the disastrous occurrence.

The first and most important work done was the rescuing of the male and female operatives by the Hook and Ladder Companies, assisted by their brother firemen, Police and citizens.

The long ladders were quickly hoisted to the windows on both streets, and by careful and judicious management the vast number were carefully landed in the street within the short space of 20 minutes from the time the alarm was first sounded by the Hall bell. Several of the girls were very nervous, and while descending the ladder with firemen and others, two or three of them fainted, but were speedily resuscitated at a drug store in the immediate vicinity.

In little more than an hour after the alarm was given, the spectacle was awfully grand. By this time the flames had swept through from Cliff to Pearl street, scarcely anything remaining of this immense publishing house but the bare walls; within these the flames were furiously raging, having the appearance of a great lake of fire. Adjoining the Harpers' establishment on the south side of Pearl street, was the large six story building, Nos. 321 and 323, occupied by Messrs. Geo. F. Colledge & Brothers, extensive school book publishers and dealers. The fire communicated with this establishment at the attic stories, and all efforts to subdue the flames were of no avail. About 24 o'clock a portion of the walls of the Harpers' and Colledge buildings on Cliff and Pearl streets, fell with a tremendous crash.

A more signal calamity has never fallen upon a private business house than the terrible conflagration of Saturday. The destruction of important works literature and science, is extensive and disastrous to the extreme. For the last six months, the publications issued by Harper & Brothers, were of a more interesting and valuable character, than the usual average of their editions. The plates, however, are preserved, and we trust, will speedily furnish the public with new editions of the books, the loss of which would be a damage to literature. Of the works going through the press at the time of the disaster, we are compelled to give a different account. For the most part, these are irretrievably lost. The hopes of both author and publisher, in regard to them, are destroyed at "one fell swoop." Among these, was the Magazine for January, the last sheets of which were on the press, when the fire broke out.--N. Y. Tribune.

Messrs. Harper & Brothers--The entire loss of this firm is estimated at one million four hundred thousand dollars, of which $400,000 was in their buildings, the remainder being their immense stock of publications, presses, type, and the other materials of their vast publishing establishment. The insurance on the whole amount is but $200,000. With the exception of a policy of $20,000 in a foreign Insurance Company nearly every office in this city has a risk of $5000. Their buildings fronting on Cliff street contained a number of mammoth steam power presses, which were entirely destroyed. The three other beautiful buildings of the Harpers, on the corner of Cliff and Ferry streets, escaped any damage whatever. The mass of the valuable stereotype plates owned by the Messrs. Harpers are saved, as they were all packed away in the large street vaults.

New York, Dec. 13--The Harpers' Beckman street, corner of Cliff, in the building occupied as a type foundry by John T. White. Their safe was taken there yesterday, and their account books, policies of insurance, &c., &c., found to be perfectly safe. A large quantity of books rescued from the building during the fire, was also removed thither, and although insignificant compared with their aggregate stock, proved to be larger than was supposed.

A NEW REPUBLIC--LOWER CALIFORNIA.

[Extract from the log book of a Panama correspondent of the N.Y. Herald.] SUNDAY, Nov. 20--At 6 P. M., saw a bark bearing S. W. of us, about eight miles distant, carrying all sail, and endeavoring to cut us off and firing signal guns; she proved to be the bark Carolina, from Cape St. Lucas; she bore a flag consisting of two red horizontal stripes with a white stripe between, containing two golden stars; she reported a new Republic had been proclaimed in Lower California; the Carolina is the same vessel that left San Francisco in October, bound on a filibustering expedition in Guaymas, numbering in all about fifty men, commanded by Col. Walker; they landed us a paper, in which they stated they had taken the town of La Paz; that they had on board, as prisoners, ex-Governor Espinosa, and the public documents; a few days after they took as prisoners, Col. Robello, who had been seized by the Mexican Governor to supersede Espinosa; these with their own self-made Governor, Walker, they had three Governors of Lower California on board the Carolina, and I should judge from their number that their whole battalion, as they term it, was on board the bark, and had left St. Lucas to save their heads. The vessel was apparently beating up the coast, evidently bound to San Diego, as their document, handed unsealed, was directed to the editor of the San Diego Herald; gave them some morning papers, and left them, only regretting that I had not the authority to take the vessel as a prize, and instead of which I lost fifteen miles from my day's run, in endeavoring, as I supposed to relieve a vessel in distress.
