

What advantage do the slave States expect from this bill? Certainly they expect the extension of slave power, and slave population. That may prove a fallacious expectation. The question of slavery in these Territories, if thrown open to territorial action, will be a question of numbers—a question of the majority for or against slavery: and what chance would the slaveholders have in such a contest? No chance at all. The slave emigrants will be outnumbered, and compelled to play at a most unequal game, not only in point of numbers but also in point of stakes. The slaveholder stakes his property; and has to run it off, or lose it, if outvoted at the polls. I see nothing which slaveholders are to gain under this bill—nothing but an unequal and vexatious contest, in which they are to be losers. I deprecate such a contest, and did my part to keep it out of the State of Missouri when her constitution was formed. I was not a member of the convention, but was a chief promoter of the clause which forbade the Legislature to emancipate slaves without the consent of their owners. I pointed that clause for the sake of peace—for the sake of keeping the slavery question out of our elections and legislation—for the sake of preventing perpetual strife among the people. What I did for Missouri, I would do for the Territories; and if it was an open question would vote one way or the other to settle it; but it is not an open question; and can not be opened without a breach of faith, and the destruction of the peace of the country.

Sir, the question has been decided. The free States are against this bill; and it is an ill return for their past generous conduct to endeavor to force it upon them. They have not only just, but magnanimous to the slave States. What was the condition of the slave States thirty years ago in relation to the use of the soil within their limits? Debarred of a great part of its use; an Indian population covering more or less of almost every slave State, and preventing the expansion of its population. What is it now? All relieved. The Indians all gone; their lands all brought under the dominion of the white man; and the area of slave population, and of slave cultivation, greatly increased—to the extent of a third or a fourth of its soil in some of the States. How was this done? Certainly by the help of free State votes, (for it could not have been done without them;) by the help of their votes in procuring the appropriations, and ratifying the treaties which the removal of the Indians required. Missouri got her fine southwest quarter relieved by these means. The same votes gave us the Platte country; seven fine counties added to the State; and that by altering the compromise line to include it, and actually converting that fine region from free soil to slave soil. Northern votes enabled it to be done; northern votes altered about an hundred miles of the compromise line for our benefit, upon our request; and I will never be ungrateful to the North for it, nor requite it by a breach of the line to their prejudice. And how did we obtain the northern votes which were necessary for all these measures—the appropriations and treaties for all these Indian removals, and for that alteration of the compromise line which gave us the beautiful Platte country? How did the Missouri delegation of that day—the most amiable and talented Dr. Linn and myself, in the Senate, and General Ashley, in the House—how did we obtain that great boon for our State? Did we get those votes by belching abolitionism against the North? No! no! we got them by appealing to the justice, and the fraternal feelings of our northern brethren, and to which we never appealed once in vain—why, in the last hard trial to get the Cherokees out of Georgia, gave us fourteen affirmative votes to balance seven negatives from the South, and saved the treaty by one vote. And I, who was part of all these transactions, accustomed to solicit northern votes, and express thanks for them, will not now return them evil for good by attempting to deprive them of their share of a compromise which we imposed upon them.

It is now four months since this movement for the abrogation of the Missouri compromise commenced in this Congress. It began without a memorial, without a petition, without a request, from a human being. It has labored long and hard in these halls, and to this hour there is not a petition for it from the class of States for whose benefit the movement professes to have been made!—not a word in its favor from the smallest public meeting or private assemblage of any slave State. This is the response of the South to this boon tendered to it by northern members under a northern President. It is the response of silence—more emphatic than words—and worthy of especial note in this debate. It argues well for the harmony of the Union, and goes to show (what in fact has been often seen) that the troubles of the country come from uneasy politicians—its safety from the tranquil masses.

JOHN CHARLES GARDNER.—On Monday last, the case of this individual, charged with perjury and false swearing as a witness, on the trial of his brother, Dr. Geo. A. Gardner, was called up at Washington, D. C. The defendant was called, but did not appear, and his recognizances were therefore forfeited. It is said that he left Washington some two weeks since, for some place beyond the United States.

From Philadelphia.

PHILAD. Monday, May 8, '54. DEAR CHRONICLE: Did you ever see such weather? I've asked the question of the "oldest inhabitant," and he says, No! Spring styles, and merry parties, and it is generally supposed, peaches, have been knocked into a cocked hat. I know one young lady, at least, who though she broke the fourth commandment about four weeks ago, working to somewhere among "the wee short hours about the twal" of a Saturday night—(I don't know whether that isn't a bull,) to finish a spring dress, has not been able to appear with it to this day, and now it is time almost, for summer clothes. Horrid isn't it?

We have had a truly new item for once—a steamboat disaster on the Delaware, killed 5 persons! It sounds so strange; especially when every paper one takes up is the bearer of such news from other parts; but, on the Delaware! We can hardly realize it. And why is it not so everywhere else? Is there any good reason why it should not be so; that persons might travel in safety, and not be every moment in apprehension of losing their lives? It is very rare that the slightest accident happens on our rivers, and we must attribute it, suppose, in part to the excellent machinery, and part to careful officers.

Politics are a "little more lively since our last"; the different parties having made the nominations; and now comes the "tug of war." The candidates for Mayor—Robert T. Conrad, and Dickey Vaux, of shirt collar notoriety—are both well known citizens. Mr. Vaux was formerly, and for a long time, Recorder of the city, and before I finish this sentence let me introduce an anecdote, a Tristram Shandy. I was once present in a Methodist meeting house, just after Conference, and a new minister was about entering upon the charge, who, wishing to have the names, residence, and occupation of each of the members, took that opportunity after other business was gone through, of collecting them, v. v. voce, then and there. A large list had responded to their names, and gave in their residences and occupations—carriers, laborers, shoemakers, tailors and gentlemen. At length the name of Bro. C. was announced; residence, Thirtieth St., business—"you know the business, Bro. Cooper," responded one of the members from the neighborhood of the dock, and so Mr. Cooper went on to the next. Now the fact was, Bro. C. was the richest man in the congregation—but he had made his money as a shoemaker; and Mr. C.'s wife and daughters were present. The fact is, Mr. Conrad, you know, and a good many think he is the last man for the office, though he may be the man.

I see by the Chronicle that you have a local excitement of your own to attend to; but who would ever have dreamed of a single county in Pennsylvania undertaking to dissolve the Union! We trust there are enough righteous men in the Valley to avert such a calamity, and that the big high gathering around the big heart of the nation may be permitted to go off without an explosion. But we are not enough at home in the Constitution to fully understand the question.

The Coroner's Jury in the case of the Broadway [New York] fire, rendered their verdict yesterday, to the effect that the deceased were killed by the falling of the building, which building had been improperly constructed, contrary to the fire laws then in force; that the whole building was a complete death-trap; that the parties responsible for its perilous condition are the architect, C. H. Mountain; the mason, N. B. Fros; the carpenter, C. J. Ketchum, and the lessee, Taber & Babby, for whom the alterations were made; that the fire was caused by incendiaries who entered for purposes of plunder, and that W. J. Jennings & Co., are exonerated from blame. They also recommended changes in the fire laws and in the manner of executing them.

There were 231,791 soldiers engaged in the Revolutionary war. Of this number, there are now less than fourteen hundred living, whose ages must average nearly ninety years. Seventy-three have died during the past year. A few years more, and these venerable octogenarians will only be known in the pages of history.
