

The Lewisburg Chronicle.

AN INDEPENDENT FAMILY JOURNAL, Published on Friday Mornings at Lewisburg, Union county, Pennsylvania.

Lewisburg, Pa.

FRIDAY MORNING, FEB. 16, 1855.

Advertisements—Merchants, Mechanics, &c. Public Offices in City and County. Publishers—All who wish to have or send their names to the Lewisburg Chronicle, which has a large circulation, should do so in a manner maintaining a large proportion of utility, and not merely for the sake of a few lines.

See New Advertisements. New Philadelphia and New York advertisements under the respective heads on the opposite page.

The next Union County Fair, is to be at HARTLEIGH. Good! Proceedings of Society next week.

Mr. Breckenridge having declined on account of private affairs, Gen. C. A. Dodge (just dodged out of Senate by the people of Iowa) is appointed Minister to Spain.

Whole Hogs—Two weeks since, John Alexander of Kelly Tp., Union county, killed two swine which weighed 1251 pounds. Pretty good pigs for hard times and short crops. Mr. Luzerne Union.

The Special Election on Tuesday in Philadelphia for State Senator, resulted in favor of Henry C. Pratt, the Whig and American candidate, by 2,242 majority. The vote is 10,000 short of the vote for Governor last Fall.

Monday, we tried the sleighing towards New Berlin—never better. Met forty teams (and no accident) on the way. Very slim attendance at Court. Grand Jury nothing to do, and Civil List not pressing. Court however made a notice of James Walls, and started John Quinn on the track in spite of the K. N.'s.

A White Deer Turpentine case was "on" at our last date.

The Easton Argus was going to "put a stop" to the people's electing clergyman to office, and wrote a violent article against them. We replied. The Argus retorts by a tirade of abuse against an absent gentleman who did not write the article, and who never saw it until after it was printed. You fire very poorly, Mr. Argus, for a Kansas man.

Quite a MISTAKE!—A gold watch being stolen at Reading, not long since, a description of the supposed thief was forwarded to officer Missimer, Pottstown, who watched especially the railway cars very closely. One day last week, he found a man sitting quietly in a car who answered his description so well that he made the protesting passenger a prisoner, conducted him to a hotel, and was about to institute a search, when the venerable Geo. Richards and others who know both parties arrived, and assured Mr. Missimer that he had in custody the newly elected State Treasurer, Col. SLIFER of Lewisburg, who was surely not the man he was after! The Officer was more scared than the Colonel, who consented to let it pass for a joke, but declined to allow any more of the same sort.

News Items from Other Counties. NORTHUMBERLAND—The Sanbury American and Milton Democrat look upon the division of Union county as "manifest destiny."—The Governor has appointed as his Aids from Milton, Messrs. Bogie, Frymire, Swank, Heinen, and Lawson.

—Late on Saturday night, 3d inst., a house in Duke street, Northumberland, was found to be on fire, and the inmates, Mr. Harrison and family, narrowly escaped with their lives, losing almost all their little property.—David Fisher proposes to run a tri-weekly luck, with the mails, between Sanbury and Millersburg, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays, and returning the following days.

A beautiful farm came upon the porch of the Shamokin Hotel, during the recent snow storm, and a Bear ventured near the Furnace. Both the animals were shot.

—The Lutheran house of worship in Milton is repaired and re-opened, under the pastoral care of Rev. C. C. Culler.

—Balance due on subscriptions to the Catawissa, Williamsport & Erie Railroad are called in.

BLAIR—On Sunday last, a young man was severely injured by a Railroad accident at Blair Furnace. It is doubtful whether he will recover.—Judge Taylor and Buckle's Law are playing havoc with the taverns and doggeries of Blair County.

MIFFLIN—The Gazette notices the manufacture of 500 this flour at the Lewis istown Mills in a day, and 1700 bbls. in a week.—Two men had their hands badly injured, while examining a corn sheller, their fingers having accidentally caught by the cog-wheels.—A camphine lamp, having as is supposed nearly burnt out, exploded in Milliken's store one evening, but fortunately little injury resulted, except that it caused an alarm of fire and the hauling out of "the machines" for a while.—A whiskey fight at Yeagertown, in which one man was so bruised that it was doubtful whether he would recover, and another had several severe cuts in his arms. The chief aggressor was bound over to Court in the sum of $500—but—who sold the liquor which was the cause of the mischief.—The Railroad Bridge over the Juniata a short distance above Lewistown, was destroyed by fire about one o'clock on Sunday morning, 4th inst. The spark took from a locomotive; there was a watchman on the bridge, but the water was so cold that it froze without abating the flames. The bridge was 620 feet long, and will be immediately rebuilt.—Adam Carl, formerly of Lewistown, while at work on a scaffold in Harrisburg on the 31st inst., fell and injured himself so that he died on Monday.

CLINTON.—A Jersey Shore paper states that a fire in Lock Haven destroyed the Arcade, owned by Mrs. Kintzinger.—Prof. Isaac N. Loomis, while engaged in lumbering, cut one foot very severely with an axe, but is supposed to be out of danger.

LUZERNE.—The Furnace below Wilkes Barre has been blown out for some time past.—A "cute Yankee" liquor seller in Wilkes Barre, sold on Sunday, but early Monday morning informed upon himself and paid his fine without troubling any of his neighbors about the matter.—A man was knocked down in the street and beaten by a brute of a fellow to whom he declined giving credit a year ago.—A four year old Durham, weighing nearly 2,000 lbs. on foot, was slaughtered at Pittston. It was raised by Judge Laporte of Bradford county.—A new Democratic paper, the Spirit of the Valley, has been started at Scranton by Allegar & Adams.—The Wilkes Barre Times reports a thermometer 12 degrees below zero at sunrise in the open air on the 6th inst.—Miss Harriet A. Underwood, is missing from Fort Fort, and her friends are fearful she has been foully dealt with. It is some weeks since she disappeared.—A camphine lamp exploded in the Wilkes Barre post office without doing material damage.

CUMBERLAND.—The two Whig papers have made an arrangement by which each gives news only from the date of the other—making substantially a semi-weekly paper. The Valley Record appears on Tuesday, the Register & Examiner on Saturdays. Farm sales reported week before last, varied in price from $63 to $109 per acre.

—Fox hunting is becoming quite a nuisance to the stand old farmers of Chester.—Two farmers in Kennett, each having places worth about $20,000, made a sweep after a consultation of four minutes. One had waited upon the other to get a gift of the right of way for a railroad, and said if it were his farm he would grant it, the other then hauled him to trade farms—and they traded.

LYCOMING.—The Press has a lengthy account of the efforts to make some great thoroughfare from Philadelphia (via Sunbury) to Erie, and states that a Canal was projected in 1762. We hope the Centennial Anniversary of that conception will bear witness of the birth of the Railway connection.—The News Letter denounces indecent and swindling advertisements, and advocates a more rigid tariff on all medical advertising.—Mr. Gibson has drawn a view of Jersey Shore, which the Republican recommends to have lithographed. (VOLKMAN can do it for you.)

—A Washington correspondent of the Williamsport Press states that Col. John F. Carter has experienced another streak of luck, by which he realizes a handsome sum.—The churches of Williamsport have established a home Mission—W. H. Field, agent.—The Jersey Shore News Letter notices the death of "Catty," or James Smith, at an advanced age. He was a black man of Herculean strength, the News Letter alleging as a fact that in one of his river trips he carried a weight of fourteen hundred pounds of iron from the beach to the wharf [at one load?].—A fire at Pennsville on Wednesday night of last week destroyed the Store of Thomas A. Warner and a Millinery shop owned by Thomas McConnell. Warner was insured $3,100 in the Lycoming Mutual.

JUNIATA.—A son of John P. Thompson, fell upon the iron while driving the horses at a threshing machine, and the foot and ankle of one leg were crushed to pieces, and the leg had to be amputated.—The Sentinel notices a powerful revival in the Lutheran and Methodist churches, Millington.—John S. McCurdy, of Oakland Mills, and Adam J. Greer, of the Sentinel, are promoted to the rank of Aid to the Governor.

CENTRE.—The Aaronburg Berichter notices 15 to 18 inches snow in that quarter, and plenty of folks using it.—The Whig notices a six legged calf from a cow of Jacob Struble. The extra legs were from the shoulders.—Dr. Dougherty of Bellefonte made a successful operation for the relief of club-foot on a child of J. S. Parson's.

MONTOUR.—The Danville papers speak with much interest of the interchange of visits between the Danville and Lewisburg Singing classes.

COLUMBIA.—Only one week's Court, and that closed on Thursday.

Mifflinburg, Attention! Honors thicken upon your esteemed fellow citizen, JAMES W. PENNINGTON, who has received the commission of Lieutenant Colonel from Gov. Pollock, and is to be obeyed accordingly.

The Mayor of Boston has effectually suppressed Sunday liquor traffic in that city. But one shop was reported open last Sabbath.

The bill to confer the title of Lieutenant General on Winfield Scott, has passed both Houses of Congress.

For the Lewisburg Chronicle. Lecture III. As previously announced, the Third lecture of the Lewisburg course was delivered by Prof. J. R. Loomis, D. Ph.

The subject was South America. The lecturer confined his observation, however, to Peru and Bolivia, which he had visited about two years since.

These two countries were united under the ancient government of the Incas and were designed by nature to be but one. But, unhappily for them, they had been divided, through the ambition of Bolivar, in order that his name might be given to a portion at least of the continent. They are divided naturally into three portions—the Pacific coast region, extending from the Andes to the ocean; the Mountainous region; and the Eastern slope. The latter is inhabited principally by the Indians; the other two, by the descendants of the Spaniards.

The Coast region is generally barren; some portions absolute deserts. No showers of rain ever fall. The nearest approach to it witnessed by Prof. Loomis in this part of Peru, were a few drops that fell from a cloud overhanging the Andes while the sun was shining brilliantly when he stood. The prevail of winds of the southern portion of the continent, are from the south east. Though moist as the come from the Atlantic, and fertilizing to the eastern slope of the Andes, in passing the mountains they reach a temperature so low as to condense all their moisture and leave them exceedingly dry before they reach the western slope. Hence the want of rain in the latter region. For agricultural and domestic purposes, the inhabitants are dependent upon the small streams which flow down from the mountains. If these are wanting, the only water to be had is brought in ships. Such portions are completely sterile—not a green thing is to be seen—presenting a striking contrast with the boundless luxuriant and impenetrable forests of the Isthmus of Panama. In Iquique, the lecturer met an old man, who, though his business occasionally took him several leagues from home, had never seen a vegetable, of any kind whatever, growing. Where streams exist, advantage is taken of them for purposes of irrigation. By dividing them and conducting their waters over their farms, the inhabitants raise quite an amount of agricultural productions. So that the market of Lima is as well supplied and with as great a variety (red peppers, the indispensable to a South American palate, always abounding,) as that of Philadelphia or New York—making due allowance for the difference of population.

Guano (pronounced man), South American Saltpetre, and small quantities of silver and copper are the chief articles of wealth and trade in this part of Peru. The guano is found on the Islands of the coast, and is not only a valuable article of commerce, but is the chief means on which the government effects its loans. The Saltpetre is found in vast quantities on the mainland. Geological indications and actual observations prove that the land has emerged from the ocean, having been more or less elevated at different and distant intervals. Shells were found by the lecturer at a considerable elevation above the sea, in a perfect state of preservation, and precisely similar to those now abounding with their living inmates in the neighboring waters. The sea, on retiring from these regions, left as the evidence of its former occupancy these marine deposits of shells and salt.

While in this part of Peru, the lecturer was permitted, much to his gratification, to witness the shock of an earthquake. Though the creaking and cracking of the saline rocks around him was not exactly agreeable, the distant roar was sublime beyond description. The enthusiasm of the philosopher triumphed over the fears of the man, and threw him into an ecstasy of delight, which, combined with the vibration of the earth, rendered it extremely difficult for him to maintain his perpendicular.

The Mountain region is the richest in mineral resources. The mines of Potosi were particularly described. Under the old Spanish rule, they had been wrought with great energy and success. Some of the ore is worth $180 per hund. lb. Still, there is little energy displayed at present in obtaining it. The prejudice against certain kinds of labor, including that of mining, is so strong that a Spaniard would rather starve than submit to it. The Indians will not work more than three or four days in the week. The wood and charcoal used in smelting, has to be brought a distance of ninety miles, on the backs of mules. No machinery over three hundred pounds in weight could be transported thither, nor could it be propelled at present if there. But Prof. Loomis considers that there are indications of coal near Potosi, and the time may yet come when the power of steam will be brought to bear upon these rich deposits of silver.

Some of the principal tributaries both of the La Plata and the Amazon, head not far from Potosi. The Providence of God seems to have reserved their fertile valleys for the Anglo Saxons—a race more energetic and liberal than the Spaniards, who confined themselves to the mountain districts. The jealousy of the Brazilian government, now interposed as an obstacle, will probably be overcome, and the free navigation of these rivers, opened to all nations. Rail-roads may be constructed along them, and the agricultural and mineral resources of the continent be developed.

The above report is too brief to do justice either to the lecturer or his subject. It is given with the hope of exciting a deeper interest in the lectures.

The audience was larger than on the last (23rd). The pleasant colloquial style of Prof. Loomis, suited his subject, and interested his audience. The only thing in the whole proceedings to be regretted was the rude expressions of applause given by some of the boys (?), as distasteful to the lecturer, and most of his audience, as they were contrary to the wishes of those whose house of worship was opened for the entertainment and instruction of all who pleased to attend. It is earnestly hoped that a due respect for a place of worship will prevent the recurrence of any thing of the kind.
