His location is about coul-distant from the three principal points of legal business -New Berlin, Mifflinburg, and Lewisburg; and he would be easily accessible from cither place.

Variations of Tune!

The Star which "arose to rise" for Mifflinburg, for some weeks assailed Lewisburg with reasons why it should not be the county seat. Last week, however, it tries a new tack, and "wooes us gently as a sucking dove." The Editor describes Lewisburg as "beautifulty located"-"business place"-" great grain, flour, and produce market in general of Buffalo and other vallies"-"river and canal trade"wealthy, populous, and beautiful place' -"schools of lower and higher order that compare favorably with any of the old towns of Pennsylvania"-"has Telegraph, and Railroad within sight"-"same fertile valley which so gracefully surrounds our own place" (how condescending!)...but-But what? Why, with all these, Lewisburg wants to be a shire-town, also-(a tog elections in their respective Boroughs and Townships, on SATURDAY, SEPT. 1st, 1855, nifested for some years, and which several of the Townships as vigorously responded to, while Mifflinburg by her acts declared over and over she did not want it.) And does the Star suppose any sersible man would vote against Lewisburg because she has these and other advantages? or is it yet unaware that these very attractions are what draw the people towards Lewisburg ! appoint Delegates to the next State Conven- It is for our undeniable resources and facilities, that farmers around and beyond Mifflinburg will vote for our town, which is most control for business and population.

Saturday the 1st of September next, at &c. Ah me! what has occurred to ruffle that temper so generous and placid at the commencement of the same article? The Editor says we are "trying to remove the Union Seminary from New Berlin" to our town'; and the fact seems to distress him considerably. Not that it would injure Mifflinburg a whit, or that he is a member of the denomination whose private concern it is: but then there is a chance to curry favor or excite prejudice among those who Delegates from each whole District, and from the half districts of Union and our neighbor's affliction is unnecessary. We have been told that some of the Evanbe nearer the line of trade and travel; but Lewisburg is not making an effort to wrest it from New Berlin. If we lose the County Seat, however, there may be some money to invest in something else, and if removal is still desired, a town so well circumstanced as ours might obtain it. In no other contingency do we regard the disinterested alarm of our neighbor as at all necessary;

LULE SEPREMOR, OR BOARD THE NORTH STAR, Startley, Aug. 11, 1855

MY DEAR SIR: With astonishment and indignation I have learned the story of your imprisonment, and now, from this

From beginning to end-from side to ide, and in every aspect—this transaction ean be regarded only as a clear, indubitable as a steady attack a particular and attacks approximately and attacks approximately and utterly unmitigated outrage. The new-fangled doctrine, that a slave-master can voluntarily import his alleged slaveof course with all the revolting incidents of Slavery-into the Free States, is not more odious than it is preposterous. It is scouted by reason and disowned by universal jurisprudence. You were right in disregarding it. In stepping forward to remind persons, claimed as slaves on this pretext, that all such claim is baseless, you did a good work. It was this knowledge which filled them with confidence to regain their God-given liberty. And for this it appears that you have been brought before a man who, " dressed in a little brief autherity," has east you into prison. This outrage is rendered more outrageous by the way in which it was done.

It was perpetrated through the perversion of the great writ of habeas corpus. This writ of freedom and deliverance. which in England has often been styled the palladium of the Constitution-which is recognized as a distinctive feature of Constitutional Government-which finds no place in a despotism, and which is the no place in a despotism, and which is the limits 2 years very master-key appointed to unlock prisonal destructions of the contraction of the contr on-doors and let the oppressed go freehas been made in your case, by a hocus. best floor pocus without precodent, the instrument best see with one or more of her pige to be shown of imprisonment and oppression.

incessant toil? But there must be an end to these things; and as Shakespeare found a jewel in the toad's head, so do I find a cheering omen even in the injustice which has made you its victim. There is an old saying handed down from distant antiquity, that archy is mad, and their overflowing madness runs through every agent and tool. In all that they do-especially in the Fugitive Slave bill and its cruel enforcement, the Nebraska bill and its felonious administration, and now in the imprisonment of an unoffending citizen-I rejoice to believe that there is unmistakable evidence of that madness which precedes a fall. Verily the day is at hand when returning justice will once more bear sway; then, among the triumphs of Freedom, will be a reckoning with unjust judges.

Meanwhile accept my congratulations on the portion of responsibility and dignity, which is yours. It is a privilege to suffer for truth ; and I envy not the meanness of that soul which would hesitate to prefer 24 best bedepread your place within the stone walls of a prison to the cushioned bench of the magistrate by whose irrational and tyranical best Knit Tippet edict you have been condemned.
