experimented with it in various field and garden crops, to possess a value equal to that of the best guano, even when mixed with half its bulk of garden mould. By mixing the excrement of hens with muck, or well decomposed peat, and saturating the whole with urine, or diluted sulphuric acid, a compound of great energy will be found, and which, when applied to the purposes of vegetable curichment in the ordinary way, will insure the best and most salutary results on any crop.

GOOSE DUNO, although possessing, in its crude state, qualities highly uncongenial and even deleterious to plants, is nevertheless endued with principles which render it capable of being transformed to a good and salutary manure. To secure this result, it may be thrown into a heap, after being previously saturated with water in which salt has been dissolved, and mixing it with fine caustic lime, gypsum and wood ashes, one bushel of the three last ingredients, in equal proportions, to six bushels of the excrement. The compost should be allowed to remain six weeks undisturbed, before being used, and then ap-to the duties of his profession to merit a share plied in the same manner as guano and poudrette. For Indian corn, it does well in the hill, but for grain and grass crops, it should be broadcasted. Twenty bushels to the statute acre, will be found a liberal tem of me to the statute acre, will be found a liberal tem of medicine, and attended Lectures in one application for well set-sward land, or land of the Oid School Medical Colleges of Philadunder wheat, oats, or rye. When used as a garden manure, it should be sown broad-cast, and worked in by the spade or rake.

cast, and worked in by the spade or rake. There are very few pivoting roots, which do not receive great and obvious benefit from this application. PIGEON EXCREMENT.—The stale from the dove cote, like the excrement of the hen, to which it is stongly assimilated, is another valuable fertiliser. It may be ap-plied to soils and crops in a perfectly crude state, and always with admirable success. It is of a warming nature, rich in all the essential elements of nutrition, and exerts its energies at once. It is less durable than some other manures, and owing to its energy, requires to be applied in less quantities, especially on cultivated crops. For roots and bulbous plants, it is invalu-able. Curr MaxIng mark be paraded as ha able.

CHIP MANURE may be regarded as belonging to the same category as muck and peat. When decomposed, it is fine and light, and when analysed presents a heavy preponderance of vegetable and mineral constituents. It possesses a high degree of value as an ingredient in composte, especially these which are mostly of mineral nature. Its effects on Indian corn are well known. The finer it is, the more immediate and efficient will be its action, though in this condition it is less durable than when applied in a coarser state. Currant, gooseberry and other bushes of a fruitiferous chale, are greatly benefited by annual applications of this article ; it tends sides supplying a healthy pabulum, favors the expansion of the spongioles, which it vivilies and strengthens.

FOREST MOULD OR SCRAPINGS .- These articles are also of vegetable origin, being derived principally from the decay of leaves, wood, &c., and consequently possess in themselves many of the more im-

RECOMMENDATIONS. PHIAMS., Aug 13, 1847. 1 have this day carefully impected a conductor of Lighting Red, with wane and index, erected by Mr. Thomas Armitage, on Relievue House, Gloncester, and have no hesitation in saying that it is not only the best 1 have serve is een, but that it is the only one I have set commend that is constructed on strictly scientific princi-pies. It is with much pleasure that I recommend his conductor to the attention of owners of buildings. B. McMuRTHE.

I. MCULTRIE.
T am well satisfied that the Magnetic Lightning lid menufactured by Mr. Thomas Armitage, of Philadephia is the best that has ever been made. I have spent seven years in the study of the laws of electricity and magnetic ion, and have no hesitation in raying that these kids are constructed upon the only principle of safety. The electric shock is received and dispersed by the magnet at the top of the real, and it would be impossible, according to the laws of attraction and requiring when protected by case di these roots. I have been acquimited with Mr. Armitage for several years, and before he commenced the manufa-ture of these roots Learning the principle on which they are senstructed, and foil envinced that their adoptian would be attended with complete success. The increasing demand for these reads, and the catentizeties in all parts example. The ACM F. WALLER, M. D. River, S. C. WILT and SAMUEL HOOVER. Harileton, Union Co. Pa
