Call for the National Democratic Convention.

The National Democratic Committee, by virtue of the authority enforced upon them by the last National Democratic Convention a meting held this day at Wasthington, D. C., voted to hold the next Convention for the purpose of nominating candidates for president and Vice-President of the United States on the 4th day of July, 1868, at 12 o'clock M., in the City of New York.

The basis of representation, as fixed by the last National Democratic Convention, is double the number of Senators and Representatives in Congress of each State under the last apportinoment. the 1st of July until the close of the

Each State is invited to send delegates accordingly. AUGUST BELMONT, Chairman.

FREDRICK O. PRINCE, Secretary, Washington, February 22, 1868.

The New York Convention,

The paramount importance of the ques tions affecting the settlement of our national difficulties is sufficient warrant to the public journals of the country for bringing these questions, in some form or other, constantly before the people. New issues are continnally arising, and every election in which the nation participates generally, forms an epoch in our history. The affairs of the country are the affairs of the individual, and he who neglects the one, is false to the interests of the other. Honest, quiet, homestaying men little think by what magical springs their social and pecuniary interests are touched ; how much or how little of good, ently and boats fired into. Men, it is true, are, in the abstract, nothing. Principles are every thing; but public men are commonly known and recognized as white children with them which they had the exponents of settled principles. This being the case, the selection of the man to fill a high legislative, judicial, or administrative office, becomes an important public trust; a share of which trust no good citiand a half breed were killed during the rezen can refuse to take upon himself without being rendered liable to just public censure.

A JUST LAW .- Among the general laws of the State no act is accepted as more just than that which authorizes the Auditor General to open and readjust the accounts of the different counties against which there are deficits of taxation charge in his Department. According to the finding of the Board of Revenue Commissioners many are indebted to the State many thousand dollars. The act in question authorizes a reduction of fifty per cent.on the amount thus charged against these counties for each of the three years since the Board levied this ize the taxation for State purposes in the Commonwealth, the Revenue Board was massacre are in the neighborhood of Fort governed by the estimated value of property therein as returned and appearing in the tax. THE New York Post says, an inquest was held on Saturday, on the skeleton of a man found near Patchogue, Suffolk county, Long Island, supposed to be the remains of Geo. Miller, who suddenly disappeared from that place about eighteen years since. It was believed at that time that Miller had been murdered by a man named McGregor. The latter was accordingly arrested, but the evidence was not sufficient to hold him, and he was dischäfged. After a thorough investigation on Saturday the jury rendered a verdict "that the bones were those of George Miller, and that he came to his death by as the Democratic nominee for President. violence at the hands of McGregor."
