Worms in Horses. There are two kinds of worms that inhabit intestines-the long white worms which considerably resembles the earth worm, except in color, and a smaller, darker colored worm called the needle worm.-The former inhabits the smaller intestines. They sometimes prevail in such numbers as to affect the appetite, produce coughs, gripes and other ailments, but are generally not so hurtfull as commonly supposed. A good dose of physic is perhaps as good as anything to cast them out of the intestines. We have seen an incredible number voided under the operation of physic. The best medicine to physic a horse is, four to seven drachms of Barbadoes aloes, mixed with a drachm of ginger, to prevent griping, and formed into a ball. This will not injure the horse, and is an excellent purgative. But, before administering the ball the horse must be prepared for the medicine. Warm branmashes should be given two or three days beforehand, or long enough to soften the evacuations of the bowels. The medicine will then act expeditiously and with no comparative pain; but if the lower intestines are obstructed by hardened dung, more medicine will be required and more pain and injury caused to the horse. The horse should have some walking exercise the day the medicine is administered, but when it begins to operate he should not be taken from the stall. A mash and a little hay may be given him and also water, but is better not to give cold water; take all chillness off by adding warm water, and let him have gradually what he may want. If ne cessary to give another dose, do not do it for five or six days, letting him recover from the effects of the first before doing so, and giv ing mashes in the meantime. Do not commence working a borse that has taken medicine till he has recovered his strength. An interval of ten days or two weeks should elapse before he is again put to work, and then the work should be moderate at the outset. Many a horse has been killed by being put to work too soon after taking medicine. His system has been debiliated, his porcs opened, and he is left in a condition to take cold-or the lung fever and death frequently ensues. If horses are kept in well-ventilated stables, have good hay and oats, and mashes twice a week, and moderate exercise and good care, there is no danger of worms or other sickness. - Rural

HINTS FOR THE MONTH.—The month o June is now upon us, and yet, owing to the backwardness of the season, farm work is not much more advanced than it was in April. Should a little fine weather be now granted us, the work will undoubtedly be pushed ahead. Corn planting is the chief feature of the month. If an early maturing kind is selected, and the ground in proper condition, a good crop inevitably results. It is not too late to sow the large Tar Sugar Beet and Mangel Wurtzel for stock; nor | PORKS HOTEL, nor is it too late to put in a good supply of cornfodder to help out the pasture. As the weeds appear, the plough and hoe should be kept busy in the early planted corn and potatoes. Every farmer should have his compost heap secured from the rain ready for corn planting; if this has not been done attend to it at once. Watch young chickens ducks and turkeys. The latter are apt to wander off to hunt a place for hatching, so keep an eye over them, but let them take their own course, it is much better than to pen them up. See that all tools necessary for hay making are in good order, so that there may be no delay when this season comes upon you an their use is required.

SPICED BEEF.-Procure a piece of thin flank of beef, about ten pounds in weight, which salt as above for about a week .-When ready, split it open with a knife; and lay it out flat upon a dresser, having previously prepared six onions chopped very fine, with about ten sprigs of thyme, the same of marjoram, two ounces of mixed spice (with out cinnamon), and half an ounce of black pepper. Mix altogether, spread half upon the beef as it lies before you, then fold it over to its original shape, lay on the remainder of the preparation, roll it up tightly in a cloth, and boil. When done, take it up, remove the string, tie the cloth at each end and put it upon a dish, with another dish over, upon which place half hundred weight, leaving it until quite cold; then take the meat from the cloth, trim and glaze it light- MANHOOD: HOW LOST, ly, and serve garnished with a few sprigs
