He tried various experiments, such as tying down the branches to the ground to cheek the flow of sap, but all without effect, and as he had about one hundred and fifty trees, he thought he had made a very poor invest-

He read the report of a viewing committee at some fair which gave him encouragement. It was this: There were exhibited some fine specimens of pears, and it was ascertained that the tree stood where it received the sweepings of the blasksmith shop, which led to the conclusion that iron was beneficial to the pear. Acting on this hint, he procured a quantity of turnings and filings from a machine shop, and as he rlowed his car lon, seattered the iron in the tring the true the maned as usual and about a perk of their rates to perfection. is lelines as ever was grown. The tree by produced full crops ever since. One year it bore sixteen dollars worth of pears. He tried the iron on several other trees with very good effect.

ENGRAVINGS.

There is a certain portion of the war that will never go into the regular histories, nor be embodied in romance or poetry, which is a very real part of it, and will, if preserved, convey to succeeding generations a better dea of the spirit of the conflict than anr many dry reports or careful gossip, the fun, the pathos of the war. This illustrates the characters of the leaders, the humor of the soldiers, the devotion of women, the bravery of men the pluck of our heroes, the romance and hardships of the service.

The Valiant and Brave Hearted, the Picturesque and dramatic and Witty and Marvelous, the Tender and Pathetic, and the Whole Panorama of the War are here thrillingly portrayed it a masterly manner, at once historical and romantic rendering it the most ample, singue, brilliant and cadable book that the war has a field forth.

Amusement as well as instruction may be found in every page, as graphic detail, brilliant wit, and authentic history, are skilfully interwoven in this work of literary art.
