A Chapter on Tomatoes.

I send you my ways of disposing of the Tomato, which I call the vegetable of vegetables. If any of your housekeepers can add to or improve this list I trust they will do so.

I shall say nothing about stewing tomatoes, as it is to be presumed that everybody knows how. One thing, however, should be remembered that nothing should be mixed with the pure article, which should pass through a sieve or colander before sent to the table.

Take ripe tomatoes and scald them just sufficient to allow you to take off the skin; then let them stand for a day, covered with salt; strain them thoroughly, to remove the seeds. Then to every two quarts, add three ounces of cloves, two of black pepper, two nutmegs, and a very little Cayenne pepper, with a little salt.

Another Way.—Take one bushel of tomatoes, and boil them until they are soft. Squeeze them through a fine wire sieve, and add—half a gallon of vinegar, one pint and a half of salt, two ounces of cloves, quarter of a pound of allspice, two ounces of Cayenne pepper, five heads of garlic, skinned and separated. Mix together, and boil about three hours, or until reduced to about one-half. Then bottle without straining.

Beat six eggs, mix two tablespoonfuls of flour in a little water and add some salt and pepper; peel and chop very fine four tomatoes, stir this all together. Put a bit of butter half the size of an egg into a frying pan, heat it hot, turn on the mixture, stirring it all the time until it begins to thicken, then let it stand to brown three minutes; lap it half over; slip it on a dish, and send it to the table very hot.

Always use those which are thoroughly ripe. The small round ones are decidedly the best. Do not prick them, as most receipt-books direct. Let them lie in strong brine three or four days, then put them down in layers in your jars, mixing with them small onions, and pieces of hyacinth radish; then pour on the vinegar, (cold,) which should be first spiced as for peppers; let there be a spice-bag to throw into every pot. Cover them carefully, and set them by in the cellar for a full month before using.

Another Way.—Take small, smooth tomatoes, not very ripe; scald them until the skin will slip off easily, and sprinkle salt over them. After they have stood twenty-four hours, drain off the juice, and pour on a boiling hot pickle, composed of one pound of sugar to every quart of vinegar, and two teaspoonfuls, each, of cinnamon and cloves. Drain off the liquid, scald it, and pour it on them again, every two days for a week, and they will require no further care.

As the tomato season is here, the following method of preparing them for the table, we are assured by one who has made the experiment, is superior to anything yet discovered for the preparation of that excellent article: Take good ripe tomatoes, cut them in slices, and sprinkle over them finely pulverized white sugar, then add claret wine sufficient to cover them. Tomatoes are sometimes prepared in this way with diluted vinegar, but the claret wine imparts to them a richer and more pleasant flavor, more nearly resembling the strawberry than anything else.

Four boiling water over the tomatoes in order to remove the skins; then weigh them and place them in a stone jar, with as much sugar as you have tomatoes, and let them stand two days; then pour off the sirup, and boil and skim it until no scum rises.—Then pour it over the tomatoes, and let them stand two days, as before, then boil and skim again. After the third time, they are fit to dry, if the weather is good; if not, let them stand in the sirup until drying weather. Then place on large earthen plates or dishes, and put them in the sun to dry, which will take about a week, after which pack them down in small wooden boxes, with fine white sugar between each layer. Tomatoes prepared in this manner will keep for years.

Take the round yellow variety as soon as ripe, scald and peel; then to seven pounds of tomatoes add seven pounds of white sugar, and let them stand overnight. Take the tomatoes out of the sugar, and boil the sirup, removing the scum. Put in the tomatoes, and boil gently fifteen or twenty minutes; remove the fruit again and boil until the sirup thickens. On cooling put the fruit into jars and pour the sirup over it, and add a few slices of lemon to each jar, and you will have something to please the taste of the most fastidious.—Baltimore, in German Town Telegraph.

A NEW ARRIVAL OF MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS, AT

MRS. M. E. KLEIN'S, LIGHT STREET, COLUMBIA COUNTY. She would respectfully inform the citizens of Light Street and vicinity, that she has just returned from the city with a large assortment of Fall and winter MILLINERY AND FANCY GOODS, well selected and at low prices.

BONNETS made to order, and repairing done with neatness and despatch. All work executed in the best and most satisfactory manner, upon reasonable terms.

Particular attention is paid to dress making. She has PATENTERS of every description, pertaining to the trade, on hand and for sale.

She will also pay special attention to coloring, having some fine dyes on hand, and will dye in any particular shade, in conformity with the latest fashions, in the most satisfactory manner.

It contains over 1000 closely printed, double column octavo pages, from new electrotype plates, on good paper, and is appropriately illustrated with more than 300 engravings on steel and wood, and a series of 30 authentic maps, &c.

It is necessary to every Bible reader, indispensable to every Christian and Sunday School Teacher, and ought to be in every family.

It is highly commended by all learned and eminent men of every age and of all parts of the country, as the best book of the kind in the English language.

Do not be Deceived. Owing to the unprecedented popularity of this work, a new English abridgement, in duodecimo form, of about 600 pages, has been reprinted in the original in larger type, and spread over 300 octavo pages, evidently by making a larger book than the original—to give the impression easier than it is in our edition.

It is a simple and perfect machine, and is guaranteed by the company to give entire satisfaction. We respectfully invite all those who may desire to supply themselves with a superior article, to come and examine this UNRIVALED MACHINE.
