HOW A FARMER MAY LOOSE MONEY .-By not taking a good home paper. Keeping no account of home operations. Paying no attention to the good maxim.

"A stitch in time saves nine," in regard to the sowing of grain and planting of seeds at the proper time. Leaving reapers, plows, cultivators, etc. uncovered from the rain and heat of the sun. More money is lost this way than many people are willing to believe. Permitting broken implements to be scattored over the farm until they are irreparable. By repairing boken implements at the proper time many dollars may be saved a proof of the assertion "that time is money." Attending the auction sales and purchasing all kinds of trumpery, because in the words of the vender, the articles are "very cheap."

Allowing fences to remain unimpaired until strange cattle are found grazing in the meadow, grain fields, or bruising the fruit

Disbelieving the principal of a rotation of crops, before making a single experiment. Planting fruit trees with the expectation of having fruit, without giving the trees half attention needed to make them profit-

Practicing economy by depriving stock of proper shelter during winter, and giving them unsound food, such as half rotten and mouldy hay and fodder. Keeping an unnumerable tribe of rats on the premises, and two or three lazy dogs that eat up more in a month than they are worth in a whole life-time.

And lastly he looses by not reading the advertisements of these who patronize the printer, they being invariably the most enterprising and liberal houses to deal with, when he goes to town.

Hogs in Orchards.-If hogs are allowed to run in orchards during the season when defective fruit is falling from the trees they will be an advantage in some respects. as they devour the defective fruit that contain worms, as they fall to the ground, and thereby the propagation of large numbers these insects is prevented. It is not claimed that all the worms in the fruit will be destroyed by swine, as many leave the apples. and burrow in the ground before the fruit falls; but in many cases these insects have been so diminished by swine running in orchards, as to render their depradations of little loss.

When good, sound fruit begins to fall, the hogs should be removed,"as the object for which they are allowed in orchards is to consume the defective, not the good fruit. In some cases it will be advisable to ring the swine to prevent too much rooting: but when rooting is confined to the space immediately under the trees, as is sometimes the case that operation is not necessary. Some breeds of hogs root more than others; and in some cases their rooting is a benefit especially if one intends to crop the ground the following season.

KEEPING VEGETABLIS.-Sink a barrel two-thirds of its depth to the ground (a box or cask will answer a better purpose) heap the earth around the part projecting out of the ground, with a slope on all sides; place the vegetables that you desire to keep in the vessel; cover the top with a watertight cover; and when winter sets in throw an armful of straw, hay, or something of the sort on the barrel. If the bottom is out of the cask or barrel, it will be better. Cabbage, celery and other vegetables, will keep in this way as fresh as when taken from the ground. The celery should stand nearly perpendicular, celery and earth alternating. Freedom from frost, ease of access, and especially freshness and freedom from rot are the advantages claimed.

To PREVENT RUST IN PLOWS. - A correspondent of the Rural World gives the following, which he says he has tried success fully; it is simple and worth adopting:

None but a plowman knows the advan tage of having a bright plow. The writer has tried a great many articles to prevent plows and other agricultural implements from rusting. There is nothing so good and handy as patent axle grease. I have used tallow, paint and Japan varnish, but the axle grease is always convenient and easily

THE Country Gentleman states that badly weaned calves may be prevented from sucking, as may cows addicted to milking them selves, by putting a bit in their mouth and attaching a strong twine to a girth around the body of the animal.

LARGE YIELD OF WHEAT. - Joel Swayne. of Christiana Hundred, Del., raised this year one hundred and seventy-four bushels of white bearded wheat on five and one-half

THEY have harvested this year in California a wheat crop of 20,000,000 of bush-
