

DANVILLE INTELLIGENCER

Established, 1828
DANVILLE, MONTGOMERY COUNTY, PA., SEPT. 23, '04.
D. AUST LUTZ, Editor and Proprietor.

THE INTELLIGENCER is the oldest and best weekly Democratic newspaper in this section of the State. It enjoys the distinction of having a larger county circulation than all the other weeklies combined.

MILL STREET

With the improved appearance of Mill street, comes the debatable question, in the various congressional gatherings of our professional gentlemen of leisure, with the force of a fall familiar to the destruction of the bulwarks of Fort Arthur, as to whether we shall or shall not change the name that has been in use for so many long years, and never before was ever given a single consideration in that direction.

Many and numerous are the names proposed. Some try to argue that Mill street is no more appropriate. Poll street has been suggested, for there are long polls, short polls, thick polls, thin polls, crooked polls and almost any other kind of a pole to be seen along our most popular thoroughfare.

Good arguments and reasons for changing the name have also been advanced, but we can't see any reason for a change and still believe Mill is the most appropriate name. None is more suggestive than the good old name, Mill, for haven't we a large flouring and grist mill at the farther end, and do we not have the open doorways of about twenty-one grist mills on this popular street?

What's the use of thinking of changing it? Mill seems all right.

Judge Parker has written to the compiler of the Democratic text-book saying "I beg of you to see to it that there is no word in it that reflects upon the personal honor and integrity of Theodore Roosevelt. An Evening Post editorial indicates that little care was taken in that direction towards myself by the compiler of the Republican text-book, but let there be no rejoinder in kind on otherwise." This chivalrous request has been serupulously observed. The book discusses measures, not men.

WE'LL STAY RID OF THEM

Our issue of the 9th inst., containing the article on the Red Star Trading Stamp concern that had established itself here and then quietly slipped away to combine itself with its Bloomsburg branch, had an extensive demand. Even from what is supposed to be the headquarters of the concern, comes the following letter, which is a very good indication that the people in that section are also into them and desire their annihilation:

Danville Intelligencer, Danville, Pa.
GENTLEMEN—Enclose find 5c in stamps for which kindly mail a copy of your issue of Sept. 9th, to the following address:

F. W. Montanye, 14 Linden St., Newark, N. J.

If our merchants or any other merchants desire to offer inducements to their customers, wouldn't it be far better to give a reduction on their goods, and thus benefit them by saving their money for them, so that they will be able to go to a reliable dealer and buy good goods? We are rid of this concern now, and trust our merchants will not be caught napping again by these people who go from place to place skimming the cream off the profits of the small country merchants.

Working men are unable to understand what the President means when he says "The purchasing power of the wage-earner's dollar has grown faster than the cost of living." The Federation of Labor is angry, and insists that it means that the President doesn't know what a wage-earner's dollar looks like, not having earned his salary, since he began to draw it.

YOU WILL BE KNOWN

A tree is judged by its fruits. It may grow rapidly, have luxuriant foliage, be beautiful in appearance, but if the fruit is worthless, unless the tree be needed for shade or ornament, it is useless. On the other hand the tree might in no way attract one by its appearance, yet if the fruit be fine, it would be regarded as a precious tree and be preserved with all care. This same rule applies to men and women. What is beauty of appearance, agreeable manner, or brightness of mind, worth, if the deeds he or she does are evil? Such gifts would be worth very little indeed, and so we do not live long in this world before we come to judge men and women, not by their appearance or manner, but by their deeds.

As fruit reveals the true life of the tree, so deeds reveal the true life of the soul. One may for a time deceive his fellowmen by hypocritical words and actions, but sooner or later the secret life of the soul manifests itself in words and deeds which truly set it forth, and the man comes to be known for just what he is.

Election is fast drawing nigh. Six weeks from next Tuesday we will cast our votes for or against the winning candidates, but the Democrats of Montour county run very little risk in casting their ticket straight for their party this year. Indications are very favorable nationally, and the district and county tickets are sure to win.

WELL CARED FOR

The picnic season has about closed. Sunday schools, societies, orders, lodges, etc., all had their outings. Many and varied were the experiences of the picnicers. A unique little affair was to come off last Saturday, when the infant department of the Mahoning Presbyterian Sunday school was to picnic at DeWitt's Park. The day was bright and pleasant. Of course the children were to be chaperoned. The picnic was held, a good time was spent and the children were well taken care of, for, as the story goes the chaperons more than outnumbered the infants.

General Grosvenor points with pride to the magnificent crops which the prairies of the West produce under a Republican administration. But now comes the report of a premature frost in Nebraska; what is the Veiled Prophet of the Musk ingoing to do to get credit for it?

TRIUMPH OF THE SUBMARINE

The success of the little submarine torpedo boat Shark in technically "sinking" the cruiser Columbia near Newport confirms the impression made by last year's submarine tests that the enormous sums which Mr. Roosevelt's Administration demands for building big new warships may be practically wasted in the face of this new danger of the sea.

David B. Hill is not a prize fighter nor does he dabble in human gore to any great extent, but it must be difficult for him to sit still when Senator Dewey alludes to him as "Brother Hill."

Artichokes seem to be a good crop this year on the old Grove cemetery, by the appearance of the many stocks now in flower. But then we guess the high weeds have them all choked off.

ALL SERENE AT HEADQUARTERS

From the way the inspired Republican newspapers are raving about dissensions and demoralization at Democratic National headquarters we are led to believe that considerable effective work is being done there. From the very nature of things the Republican chairman and his rigid subordinates would be the first to detect the real effect of Democratic efforts and what is more natural than an attempt to render them negligible by spreading alarm and distrust through the Democratic rank and file? But it won't do. The Democrats do not expect the work at their national headquarters to be conducted with the same smoothness that model clerk George Bruce Cortelyou has been able to impart to the Republican campaign. They have, besides, the utmost confidence in the ability and integrity of Chairman Taggart and his corps of advisers, so Republican stories about friction among them or lack of interest in the work in hand will receive no one.

As a matter of fact the plans are working out at Democratic National headquarters much as it was intended from the start they should work out. Judge Parker himself has announced that Senator Jorman will during the rest of the campaign give Chairman Taggart the benefit of his valuable experience. It has also been announced authoritatively that ex-Interstate Commerce Commissioner Morrison will occupy a somewhat similar relationship to those in charge of the western headquarters at Chicago, and as the contest grows warmer other well-known Democrats, who have not been in active politics for years, will come forward and give their assistance along with ex-National Chairman Jones and the leaders of the Bryan wing of the party who already are at work.

It is not to be expected that all these strong men will work together with the tranquility and system that characterizes Republican headquarters where Cortelyou dominates just as any big business man dominates his force of clerks, but at the same time they are in absolute harmony as to their hopes and are doing their level best to elect the Democratic ticket and defeat Roosevelt. In politics zeal is better than the decorum of a counting room any day, and when the whole thing is over it will become apparent that the Democrats also have their card indices and follow-up systems and know how to use them quite as effectively as do Mr. Cortelyou's sublimed young men.

The St. Petersburg authorities pretend to be as much surprised at the unexpected appearance of a Russian man-of-war in the harbor of San Francisco as our own people were. They even pretend they did not know that the ship had sailed for that port; that the Admiral at Vladivostok had not notified them of his intentions to send it there. No one believes a word of that denial. There is no doubt in any one's mind she was sent out to capture ships carrying merchandise contraband of war to Japan, and was compelled to put into port to make needed repairs.

WHAT CARELESSNESS MIGHT DO

Several of the original nominees for Presidential elector on the Democratic ticket of Texas have been discovered to be ineligible because of constitutional disqualification and changes have had to be made. The Republicans experienced the same trouble in this State and the fact that this should crop out in States widely removed from each other in both territory and political predilections suggests that it would be a good thing to have the electoral tickets all over the country looked into closely. Not even the winners would be satisfied with the result of an election that turned upon carelessness. And in the absence of a critical survey of the tickets carelessness is the only word that could be applied if, in a very close contest, one or more electors should be elected only to find that because of some technicality or the other they are debarred from participating in the work of the electoral college.

If we except the Hayes-Tilden contest, which, of course cannot be taken into comparison upon any feature of an ordinary Presidential election, none of the electoral college votes was so close that the throwing out of one or two, or even of three or four electoral votes upon technicalities would have affected the result. But that is by no means a sign that such a contingency could not occur. Indeed a very close vote in the electoral college is one of the things likely to happen at the next election. In 1900 Mr. McKinley secured 292 electoral votes and Mr. Bryan 155. The same States to-day would give Parker 165 and Roosevelt 310. Among the States voting for Mr. McKinley at that time which are now regarded as debatable and likely to be carried by the Democrats, are New York with 39 electoral votes; West Virginia 7 votes; New Jersey, 12 votes; Indiana, 15 votes. If these 73 votes swing from the Republican to the Democratic column the result will stand, Parker, 238, and Roosevelt, 237.

The disqualification of one Democratic elector would throw the contest into the House of Representatives for the first time since 1824, and the disqualification of two would defeat the will of the people as expressed through the ballot box. This would make the third instance of that kind in twenty-eight years—Hayes in 1876 and Cleveland in 1888, both having received a plurality of the popular vote.

A parcels post, up to a limit of ten or fifteen pounds, is sure to come in the future, whatever the present Postmaster General may think or do about it. Now here is a fine opportunity for the Democratic party to win glory and do the public service. Let its whole representation in the next Congress agree to urge a parcels post, such as now is so popular in England and Germany. They can insist upon demonstrating its usefulness, and compel the Republicans either to deny the reform, or assist in placing it upon a permanent footing.

The Bloom Fair and the new trolley will run hand in hand. Chairman Taggart's little trip to Indiana, which gave the Republicans cause for much untimely glee, has had the effect of wonderfully stiffening up things there. In consequence there is alarm in the G. O. P. camp. One of the salutary results of a Democratic victory in the Hoosier State would be the enforced retirement of the young Mr. Beveridge, whose term is about to expire.

Who was Montour county's greatest man? Waken up, ye readers, and let us hear from you.

The "Courrier des Etats-Unis" of New York thinks the greater part of voters of the French tongue will vote for Parker and Davis because they are naturally Democrats. It may also be inferred that some of them are influenced by the knowledge that many leading Republicans believe with Congressman John Dalzell that "the only loquacious in the United States are foreigners."

General Corbin is opposed to marriage in the army but he takes care to say that there are exceptions. When an officer manages to capture an heiress, for instance.

Webster Davis, who has not answered the charge of pocketing $100,000 of the Boers' money, says he is willing to vindicate his reputation as a campaign thriller and turn on the fountain of his eloquence if he can get his feet in the trough again.

The Rev. Mr. Wagner, exponent of the simple life, says Philadelphia is "the most beautifully named city in the world." Wonder what he would say of its politics if he could get a glimpse of what?

DR. SWALLOW'S CAMPAIGN STRIKES AT ROOSEVELT

Prohibition Candidate Will Make Most Speeches in Doubtful States, Where Deflection of Votes Will Help Parker

The Rev. Dr. Silas C. Swallow, Prohibition candidate for President, will be disappointed if his vote does not exceed the highest ever cast for any other Presidential nominee of his party.

The doctor has made a careful canvass of the political situation in the country, and he believes that the Prohibition cause was never so strong and its prospects so bright as this year.

He knows, of course, that he cannot be elected, and his only purpose in making a speaking tour of the country, which began at Boston on Thursday, and will continue until the Saturday preceding the election, is to bring his candidacy before the public.

Would Make President Suffer. Swallow's list of appointments includes eighteen meetings for the States of New York, New Jersey and Indiana, and ten in other States. Apparently, the cream of the Prohibition canvass is a wild hope to divert enough votes from Roosevelt in States regarded as close to elect Parker.

National Chairman Stewart, who is directing the Prohibition campaign from headquarters at Chicago, has advised Swallow that the demand for

BOY RETURNED $16,000; GOT THIRTY-FIVE CENTS

Hailed Paymaster in Road and Surrendered Satchel Full of Good Coin.

Sharon, Pa., Sept. 21. A paymaster of the Andrews & Hitchcock Iron Company, while going in his automobile to Hubbard to pay the employees at the blast furnaces yesterday, lost a satchel containing $16,000 in cash.

Louis Fry, a poor boy, found the satchel in the road. Discovering the value of its contents, he took it home to his parents. The paymaster did not miss the satchel until he had arrived at the furnaces. He rushed back immediately to look for it.

As he passed the house the boy hailed him, and inquired if he had lost anything. The paymaster said he was looking for a satchel. "Well, I guess I found it, mister," said the boy. The money was found undisturbed. The paymaster rewarded young Fry by giving him thirty-five cents.

ALTON B. PARKER SAYS: "I Read the NEW YORK WORLD Every Day."

THE WORLD Elected Cleveland.

"It may be said without reservation that if the Democratic party in my first campaign had lacked the forceful and potent advocacy of Democratic principles at that time by the NEW YORK WORLD the result might have been reversed."—GROVER CLEVELAND'S LETTER TO THE WORLD, MAY 10, 1903.

Bryan on THE WORLD. "THE WORLD never during the last twenty years considered itself a party paper. It promised to spread truly Democratic principles and truly Democratic ideas, and it has done so, and will do so, with entire independence of bosses, machines and platforms, following only the dictates of its conscience."—QUOTED, WITH APPROVAL, BY WILLIAM J. BRYAN IN THE COMMONER, JULY 10, 1903.

New York World

Send us $1 for THE WORLD and you will receive THE WORLD Every Weekday for FOUR MONTHS from the day your subscription is received, including every day of the Presidential Campaign, or take advantage of our club offer made below.

Both Sides of the Great Political Battle Fully and Fairly Given. FIRST NEWS! BEST NEWS!

THE WORLD IN THIS PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN.

THE WORLD, as the "Chief Champion in America of Democratic Ideas," will be the most interesting newspaper in the country in this Presidential campaign.

It already has a much larger circulation than any other morning newspaper in America.

It will tell everything that is done or said to the public by both Presidential candidates every day until the election.

Its editorial page will—as it always has—support Democratic platforms and Democratic leaders when they are right. It will not support—and it never has supported—them when they desert true Democratic principles and put themselves in the wrong.

Its news will be absolutely fair and impartial. It believes that the truth is always to be told.

The World believes that the triumph of the Democratic party on a truly Democratic platform means a return to sanity and purity, a return to those ideals which won for Americans the admiration of the world as a people who minded their own business, and were willing other people should mind theirs.

It is on these lines that the battle must be fought. The divergence is sharp and clear. On one side are corporate might, the spirit of adventure, millions and yet more millions for army and navy, and a dangerous foreign policy. On the other side are equal opportunity for all, the free development of the individual, a just observance of the rights of others, and honesty and moderation in the public expenditures. The progress of the present campaign will always be told tersely, truthfully by THE WORLD. If you are interested, as you should be, in a vital contest, you will need it every day. No Democrat or Republican should be happy without it. The World never appeals to class prejudice.

To encourage the prompt formation of clubs for the campaign a special offer is made, as follows: We will send the Danville Intelligencer and the MORNING WORLD every weekday for four months for $1.00; Regular price, $2.35. This is a splendid clubbing offer. The New York World is America's greatest newspaper. Sample copies of THE WORLD supplied free on application. Every subscription will be for the DAILY Morning World for FOUR months from the date it begins.

As in Mr. Montgomery's case, rheumatism is often, indeed almost always, complicated with kidney and liver troubles.
