THE RUSSIAN SITUATION.

HE interview which Grand Duke Vladimir gave the Associated Press is important, because it shows that the Russian autocracy now realizes e is a public sentiment which it can no longer consumptuous indifference, as has been treat with the case in the past. The Grand Duke expresses surprise that Amer-

The Grand Duke displays ignorance of the world. America first turned against her when Russia began to practice evasion and deceit respect-ing the evacuation of Manchuria. The Russian Government made a positive promise to our State De partment that at a specified date she would with-draw from Manchuria and evacuate Newchwang; but she deliberately violated that pledge, and pur-sued a policy of such duplicity and deliberate bad faith that the little respect entertained for her by a small fraction of the people of this country was turned into disgust. This disgust grew when the recent massacre oc-curred at St. Petersburg. The Grand Duke attempts to palliate the massacre by alleging that back of the peaceful petitioners was a riotous mob; that, had the petitioners not been shot down, the mob would have sacked the palace, "as the mob sacked Versailles." This is a very inept allu-

It presents the thought that the same wrongs. the same indignities, the same corruption, the same oppression, the same tyranny by a rotten aristocracy prevail in Russia as prevailed in France prior to the Revolution, and that the same horrible deluge of blood and carnage to wipe it out seems now imminent.

IT IS A GOOD THING.

THE value of the Intelligencer becomes more and more manifest with each issue. People are learning to appreciate a good paper, and while we are constantly adding new subscribers, our mer-chants also realize its worth as a medium to adver-tise their goods and wares. Today finds the hust ling firm of John Doster's Sons abreast of them all by placing a full column advertisement with us. These gentlemen are in a position to know which paper covers the field, for their extensive business in the rural districts places them in full knowledge of the circulation throughout the county
