

June.
The month of roses.
Straw hats have leaped into favor.

If the country can be saved the commencement day should be determined that the day should be done.

We have no use for tramps in this city. Keep them moving.

Perhaps June will do something in the high temperature line.

Some of the counties are already talking about their annual fairs. They believe in an early start.

That Far East-trav will give promise of occupying another summer at least.

The rush to the winter resorts will soon set in.

The Intelligencer is at your service as a news or advertising medium. We await your commands.

The Pennsylvania railroad has determined to increase the air-service on freight trains, with the view of adding to the safety of railroading.

The veterans marred with precision, showing that they have not lost their military training.

I. Hagwood, of Bloomington, transacted business in this city yesterday.

The Memorial Day observance in this city was a most creditable one in every respect.

Now the small boy gets vacation and its delights.

Another Memorial Day has passed without any lessening of the patriotic spirit.

There will be a game of baseball between the Y. M. C. A. Seniors and the Business Men at De Witt's Park tomorrow afternoon. Game called at 3.30.

The flower bedecked graves present a strong proof that the spirit of Memorial Day is not on the wane.

The Reading's passenger business is very heavy; over 50,000 passengers were handled daily at the Philadelphia Terminal.

Job printing of all kinds properly executed at reasonable prices, at the Intelligencer Office.

We still continue to give The Great American Farm Journal to all our subscribers who pay in advance. Think of it. Two papers for the price of one, and only $1.00, too.

The Intelligencer has a class of circulation that makes advertising in its columns rich with results. It has, too, a quantity of circulation at rates that mean great profit to the person using the paper.

An old criminal was once asked what was the first step that led him to ruin. He said: "The first thing that led to my downfall was cheating an editor out of two years' subscription. When I had done that the devil had such a grip on me that I could not shake him off."

Never in the history of Danville has there been such a general observance of Memorial Day. People more generally followed the charming custom of a floral offering to the memory of dead friends. Every cemetery in the vicinity of the city was made beautiful with flowers and greens, while even more beautiful was the thought which put them there.

WANTED by Chicago Manufacturing House, person of trustworthiness and somewhat familiar with local territory as assistant in branch office. Salary $18 paid weekly. Permanent position. No investment required. Business established. Previous experience not essential to engaging. Address, Manager Branches, 323 Dearborn St., Chicago. 6-30-5

Bard Brothers' all-United Railroad Shows will appear before the people of this community this (Friday) afternoon and evening near Hunter's Park. The Bard Brothers have given entertainments to Danville people on many occasions and always to the satisfaction of everybody. In a word, the gentlemen athletes are acknowledged by the press and public to be par excellence. Go and see them, and you will never regret the time and money spent.

Discussion of a trial for the Presbyterian Church has again been postponed. This is in hope, doubtless, that the conservatives, who cling to the good old Calvinistic simplicity of worship, will somehow be swayed by the evident truth of the time. In recent years there has been a growing tendency to observe more form in all of the evangelical denominations; and already many of the Presbyterian churches have departed from the ways of their "blue stocking" ancestors. The order of prayer, if it should come at the next General Assembly, will not, however, be obligatory, merely giving a uniform service for the different rites of the church, which surely is of advantage. There are many, however, who love the earnest simplicity of the old Presbyterian church service and feel that to depart from it would be a pity, however beautiful might be the modern substitute.

A Liberal Reward

Deep in the heart of each man and woman lies some unfulfilled ambition toward which his efforts tend as a goal. With Myra Darling it was a gold watch.

Her days were passed behind a counter where a variety of neckwear was displayed. The remuneration was small and served only to provide her with a "home" and the simplest of gewgaws. The watch for which her soul hungered might have been the moon on the Roc's egg. But more trying than the privations she endured was the cheapness, the narrowness of her life, so different from the gentle surroundings of her girlhood.

It was her birthday, her eighteenth year, and Sunday—a day free from the stale walker's espionage, a happy combination which Myra enjoyed to the full. A long afternoon in the crisp, cool air of the park was a happy climax.

It was turning dusk as she left the park. The city lamps already shone in a long line down the avenue. On the side streets the shadows fell black and ugly, causing a few buildings to stand out in bold relief. Suddenly a flash from a passing automobile struck a small, round object that glittered near the curb. Myra bent over to pick it up. Had some beneficent fairy godmother thrown the gift at her feet? It was a watch, and on her birthday!

She seized it rapturously, and looking neither to the right nor left, she up the steps of her boarding house, never pausing until she stood in the hall room she called her home. She lighted the gas and drew down the shade, then breathlessly examined her new found treasure. The small hunting case was of gold, with no mark to identify it, and set in diamonds.

"You little beauty," whispered the girl as she caressed it with her fingers. Then, with woman's curiosity, she tried to open the back. It was difficult, but at last Myra gasped with surprise. The face of a young man, with honest eyes and kindly mouth, looked into her own. "I wonder if he owns the watch?" she thought. "No, it's a woman's trinket."

MANY DOLLARS can be obtained For a Few Cents

"The Three Most Beautiful Roses" By Paul de Longpre

At the urgent solicitation of the Woman's Home Companion, Mr. Paul de Longpre, who is the greatest painter of flowers in the world, consented to make a painting of what he considered "The Three Most Beautiful Roses," and the painting is without doubt one of the masterpieces of this great artist. This magnificent picture is reproduced in all its original grandeur on the cover of the Woman's Home Companion for June. Although this cover is an accurate reproduction of a painting worth hundreds of dollars, yet the June number, which has the exquisite cover, may be obtained at any first-class news-stand or direct from the publishers for the trivial sum of only ten cents.

Mr. Paul de Longpre is justly styled the "King of Flower Painters." He not only paints roses, but every flower that grows, and is the highest authority on flowers. His paintings are found in the most select homes. Some have sold for as much as seven thousand five hundred dollars ($7,500.00).

Artists, art critics and competent judges all agree that the covers of the Woman's Home Companion far exceed those of any other magazine.
