RARE COLLECTION OF INDIAN RELICS

One of the finest and most interesting collections of archaeological specimens ever placed on exhibition in Danville will be an attraction in the window of M. H. Schram's store during the Fourth of July.

With the exception of two Alaskan arrows, which belong to Dr. Harpel, the collection is the property of our townsman, Charles M. Johnson and takes in the whole range of Indian implements. The smaller pieces in the window such as arrow heads, spears, drills and the like are over 1000 in number and are all classified and carded giving the collection a good practical value to those who might wish to take up the study of prehistoric antiquities. In the collection are to be found every thing included in the list of Indian relics, all with few exceptions gathered in this immediate vicinity.

Mr. Johnson is something more than a mere collector of arrowheads and other Indian relics. He is an archaeologist and he has made the subject of Indian implements and like relics a deep study. To him there is a peculiar fascination in tracing over these bills and valleys and picking up and classifying the crude devices fashioned by the mysterious race that came and went long before he was born.

Mr. Johnson lived for three years in the West where he had an opportunity of studying the habits of the Indians and the knowledge thus gained probably has assisted him somewhat in determining the uses of some of the peculiar implements unearthed.

The specimens in Mr. Schram's window, extensive as is the display, comprises only a part of Mr. Johnson's collection, the most of which he has found himself. With him it has been a labor of love and he has been gathering the specimens ever since he was a boy.

Nothing can be more interesting than his explanations. Pointing to a card of red irregularly shaped stones which is labeled "Hampecks," Mr. Johnson showed how they vary irregularly in a part of the design, to fit the cleaved flint, and to be used in skinning animals. These stones along with many others the untrained eye would have passed unnoticed. In this way Mr. Johnson pointed out the use of the spears, skiving knives, cutting implements, gorges, drills, axes, tomahawks and even hoes and shovels. Many of the specimens lay claim to beauty notwithstanding the simple art expended upon them. Among the most perfect are the arrow heads, drills, a lot of ceremonial stones and mortar and pestle, but there is nothing in the whole collection, however, that leaves one in doubt as to its Indian origin, not the least interesting are the specimens of Indian pottery unearthed, which is of two kinds, soapstone and clay.

Among the collection are a lot of atrocious implements belonging to the Indians of the present, which reflect their cruel and barbarous nature as nothing else can do. In addition to the Alaskan arrows are war clubs the Indians of our West, skull crackers, bow and arrows, primitive fish hooks and oddly designed pipes for smoking.

Shamokin-Sunbury Line.
W. F. Pascoe, of Allentown, ex-Judge R. H. Koch, Hon. M. H. Kulp, of Shamokin, and other capitalists interested in the Shamokin Extension trolley system, which will connect Shamokin and Sunbury, held a consultation last week and formulated plans for the immediate construction of the system.

Mr. Pascoe has been elected construction engineer of the line and has already secured quarters in Shamokin for offices. The capital for the building of the road has already been subscribed and the cost estimated at $1,500,000.

A reporter in conversation with one of the interested capitalists was informed that the system will be finished within ten months.

Surveys have been made already for the branch lines to Springfield, Bear Valley and Fairview, suburbs of Shamokin. These branches will be built as soon as the system to Sunbury is completed.

From a person who has inside information it is quite probable that a handsome hotel and sanitarium will be built on a high peak in Irish Valley along the route of the proposed system. This beautiful spot overlooks the placid Susquehanna river and surrounding country and is pronounced one of the grandest and most picturesque in the State.

Teachers Elected.
At a meeting of the School Board of Mahoning township held Monday evening the following teachers were elected for the next year: Mechanicsville, first grade, J. L. Krum, second grade, Miss Gertrude Mapstone; Toby Run, Edw. C. Foust; Sidler Hill, Miss M. C. Madden; Bald Top, Samuel Krum; Gravel Bank, Miss Carol Krum.

Picnic a Success.
The Firemen's Picnic held at De Witt's Park Tuesday was a success. The grounds were thronged nearly all day, there scarcely being an hour, when 1500 to 2000 people were not on the ground. Dancing was the principal form of amusement enjoyed.

Clean streets make a city inviting as well as healthier.

MASKED MEN INVADE HOTEL LANDLORD WALKER SHOT IN HEAD

Daring Attempt at Robbery on Monday Night—David Barrett Held for Court in $2000 Bail—Edward Haldeman Held in $1000—Hearing Last Night.

Just before midnight Monday East Market street in the Second Ward was the scene of a good bit of excitement, in which five armed men played a prominent part, that was not a part of the Fourth of July program.

About half past 11 o'clock as W. H. N. Walker was in the act of closing his hotel for the night the bar room was entered by three masked men, who proceeded to hold up the inmates for the purpose of robbery.

Arthur Walker was standing behind the bar, while his father, W. H. N. Walker, the proprietor, was in the room adjoining at the rear. One of the men sprang behind the bar and leveling a revolver in the face of Arthur Walker, commanded him not to utter a word and at the same time giving a sharp command to his confederates:

"I'll attend to him, look after the rest." At the same instant, however, Arthur mastered all his strength and with a quick movement flung the following aside and sprang over the bar. The masked man quickly recovering himself aimed and fired at Arthur as he took the jump, the bullet missing his head by a narrow margin and striking the transom above the door.

By that time W. H. N. Walker realizing the situation sprang into the bar room. Just inside the door he ran across the man who had fired the shot and the two clinched. In the struggle the masked man disengaged his arm and leveling his revolver at Mr. Walker's head fired. The ball struck the top of his head and ploughed along over the top of the skull, producing a long scarp wound, from which the blood streamed down over his head.

After the shot the robber continued the assault by pounding the landlord over the head with the revolver or some other weapon. During the struggle Mr. Walker succeeded in tearing the mask from the robber's face and had a good chance to view his features.

Samuel Haas, Harry Waite and Alonzo Mottern were about the hotel and quickly marshaled themselves on the side of the defense. The robbers finding themselves defeated in the first onslaught and overcome by numbers quickly withdrew.

Two telephone messages were quickly sent out, one for the police and the other for Dr. E. A. Curry. The news of the affair reached Officer Voris first and he hurried in the direction of Walker's hotel, first stopping to inquire by telephone for some description of the robbers. He was informed that the man who did the shooting was David Barrett, who was recently pardoned from the Eastern Penitentiary for a hold up on the Bloom road.

The Officer proceeded up East Market street and between Railroad and Nassau streets met Barrett coming down. He quickly took hold of him and turning him around told him he was wanted on the street. Barrett's reply was a question: "What am I wanted for?"

"You know what you are wanted for," was the Officer's answer. "Well, you have got the wrong man this time," Barrett remarked.

Mr. Voris made a hasty examination to assure himself that the fellow had no pistol in his pocket, but when near Calvin Ritter's store Barrett was noticed to make an adroit movement of his arm as if he had something up his sleeve and at the same moment the Officer noticed a revolver which slipped down into his hand and which by another adroit movement the fellow dropped into the gutter. The revolver, at the same moment, was picked up by Clarence Ephlin, who was following after, with the exclamation:

"Here's the gun; he threw it into the gutter."

As Officer Voris put the nippers on Barrett he made a violent struggle. He was unable to do much with his hands but he used his legs and succeeded in landing a blow with his foot in the policeman's stomach.

Barrett was taken back to Walker's hotel where at the first sight of him Mr. Walker exclaimed: "That's the man—that's the man that did the shooting—don't you let him get away."

Barrett denied that he was the man but Arthur Walker as soon as he laid eyes on him also declared that he was the man that did the shooting.

Quite a crowd was on the spot by that time, among them being Hayes Bodea and Jacob Winters, both of whom accused Barrett of holding them up on East Market street with a revolver.

In Barrett's pocket was found six loaded 38-calibre cartridges. In the revolver thrown into the gutter were four loaded shells of the same kind and two which had been fired off.

The two shots fired in the hotel seemed to account for the empty shells and this together with the identification made by Mr. Walker and his son seemed to make the crowd wild and vindictive and for a few minutes it looked dark for the prisoner.

Officer and prisoner had hardly started for the jail, when some one called:

"Lynch him."

In a moment there was a chorus of "Lynch him," "shoot him," "hang him," while the excited people began to close in upon the Officer and Barrett in an ominous manner. But for Officer Voris' sternness and determination there is no telling what would have happened to Barrett.

BOTH INJUNCTIONS ARE DISSOLVED

Judge C. R. Savidge yesterday handed down an opinion in the injunction cases of J. Hudson Kase and Peter Berger against the Danville and Sunbury Street Railway Company. In both cases the bills are dismissed and the injunctions are dissolved.

The following extract is taken from the opinion in the Peter J. Berger case.

First. The plaintiff told the defendant to go ahead and he would give him no trouble and this is found as a fact in the weight of the testimony. It is likewise found that on the strength of his promise, not to make trouble, etc., the defendant did go ahead, purchased material and expended a large sum of money. This declaration amounted to a consent.

Second. We conclude that the defendant has the right of way by virtue of the purchase of the franchise of the Danville and Riverside Railroad Company to build without consent, etc.

We find that the said Danville and Riverside Railway Company always paid its taxes and kept up its organization in good faith; that the passenger railway company under the law was not confined to horse locomotion; that it might from time to time as conditions and public needs required substitute other and more modern power.

From the agreement between Kase, Berger and Gutik, we must conclude that the Plaintiff's bill was not filed in good faith. The defendant was charged by the State to construct a street railway to meet the needs and demands of the public. This is the theory and the only excuse for the granting of the charter. It is illegal and unfair for a number of individuals to combine for the purpose of preventing the State agent from carrying out the purpose of its charter, by filing themselves up so that neither can move hand nor foot without the consent of all the others. This is in the nature of a conspiracy against the corporation to prevent it from carrying out the purposes of its creation and performing the public duties imposed upon it by the State.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

Mrs. Elkins, wife of Senator Elkins of West Virginia, has given a corner lot, 100 by 150 feet, in the heart of the business district of Elkins, W. Va., for a $50,000 building which will be immediately erected by her and given to the Association.

Savannah, Ga., Y. M. C. A. has over $45,000 pledged toward its $60,000 building and Lynchburg, Va., which recently started to raise $50,000, has raised $60,000 on a $75,000 building. It expects to complete its canvass in a short time.

The State of Illinois has 137 for twelve buildings at thirteen cities and towns. It seems that the record of the Y. M. C. A. for building a new home every five days will be eclipsed this year.

A. H. Jones, a wealthy bachelor of Hallsville, Mo., has given $15,000 to the fund for the Association building at the University of Missouri. The subscription brings the fund up to $30,538. The building is to cost $50,000. It is probable that work will begin upon it this summer.

In West Virginia building prospects are moving along swiftly. Parkersburg will open its building in September. Work has been begun on Elkins building. Fairmont will close its temporary work and concentrate on a new building. Wheeling has secured $81,000 toward a $100,000 new building. Mr. J. N. Vance, an ex-president of the Association, contributing $25,000 of the amount. The Huntington Board is encouraged in its building project. Charleston has secured five $5,000 subscriptions and twenty $1,000 pledges are at hand.

The Bishop's Official Home.

Although Bishop Darlington has not technically created his see city because he has selected no pro-cathedral, Harrisburg is his official home. His family have moved from Brooklyn, N. Y., to the Brown residence, on East Third street, Williamsport. The Briggs residence, 17 North Front street, Harrisburg, has been selected for his official and winter home."

THE BIGGEST DAY IN DANVILLE'S HISTORY

Twelve Hundred Marching Men in Line—The Firemen's Contest and Other Features of the Day.

When the cannon of Goodrich Post No. 22 G. A. R. at sunrise Tuesday morning boomed forth its annual salute to the Fourth of July it ushered in a day that was remarkable in many respects and which will for a long time stand apart from all others in the memory of our citizens.

In the first place the weather conditions left nothing to be desired. Friendly clouds sheltered the earth from the intense heat of the July sun. There were a few drops of rain in the morning but later at no time during the day did the sky even assume a threatening aspect.

Everything turned out precisely as planned and anticipated and the day was marked by an utter absence of casualty, disorder or hitch of any sort.

It was a day when all roads literally led to Danville, not only railroads and trolley lines, but also the wagon roads, and the crowds came early. The first delegation to reach Danville came from Sunbury arriving on the 7:11 Pennsylvania train. The bulk of the firemen came on the Reading specials, starting from Shamokin and Milton, which were booked to arrive at 9:20 and 9:32 respectively, but which were so special as nearly on time. Each of the visiting fire companies was met at the station with delegations of local firemen accompanied by music.

The streets at this time with their spirited music and companies of handsomely uniformed men moving backward and forward presented an interesting sight. Already Mill street was packed from end to end, while every trolley car which at intervals of twenty minutes came down from Bloomsburg dumped a cargo of human freight into the town. Long before the parade moved it was evident that the crowd would surpass all expectations.

The number of strangers in town was larger than on any occasion that could be recalled. So also the parade was larger and more attractive. There were about 1300 men in line, fully 1,000 being firemen. It was truly an imposing spectacle especially the counter-march on Mill street.

The music was a glorious feature, eleven bands and three drum corps being in the long line of march. Each of the neighboring towns seemed to send the very best it had and not only were the uniforms bright and attractive, but the marchers as a rule were gentlemanly and dignified in bearing. Among the visiting firemen were the following companies: Friendship, Rescue, Goodwill, Winona, Liberty, of Bloomsburg; Fifth Ward, Miltonian and Goodwill, of Milton; Washington, of Sunbury; Rescue, West End of Shamokin; Watsontown Fire Company, Northumberland Fire Company, Lewisburg Fire Company and Reliance, of Berwick. Our own fire department under Chief Porper and his able corps of assistants contributed immensely to the success of the parade and in line made as fine an appearance as any. The Shenandoah Drum Corps, which arrived on Monday evening, was an important factor in the parade along with our own drum corps and others.

Company F, 12th Regiment, N. G. P., in line made a very nice appearance. The veterans of Goodrich Post, No. 22, G. A. R., were out in full force along with sixty odd comrades belonging to the G. A. R. Posts of neighboring towns.

A great deal of credit for the success of the parade belongs to Chief Marshal Col. Jno. Sweisfort and his able staff.

It is very hard indeed to estimate the number of strangers in Danville on the Fourth, but there were several thousand. To convey some idea of the multitude it might be stated that after the parade with its 1200 marching men left Mill street for the Second Ward and thus were out of the way altogether Mill street still over its whole length was one dense throng from side to side, the people occupying the middle of the street, which was packed as tightly as the pavement.

The grand chorus with its 135 voices was a magnificent success. It was during its rendition that the best idea could be formed of the crowd. Probably 5000 people listened to the singing.

The firemen's contest was the attraction at the Northern end of town and was witnessed by thousands of people. There were only two entries, by the Washington Hose Company of Sunbury and the Rescue of Bloomsburg. The first prize was awarded to the Washington Hose Company, which covered the distance, 250 yards, made the plug connection, unreeled 100 yards of hose and threw water in one minute and thirty and one-half seconds. The second prize was awarded the Rescue Hose Company of Bloomsburg.

The fireworks were a fine feature, witnessed by many thousands of people from the river bridge and from vantage points on shore.

All in all the day was one of the biggest that ever occurred in Danville, the abundant measure of success, and the excellent order prevailing reflecting credit not only upon the visitors within our gates but also upon the Citizens' Celebration Committee and our townspeople in general by whom it was so generously aided and supported.

A PREMATURE EXPLOSION
A collection of fire works were accidentally exploded in front of Arthur Heddens' establishment, Mill street, Tuesday afternoon.

A lighted fire cracker fell in the bunch and in an instant there was an explosion that caused consternation on the street. The fire works flew in every direction, a discharged rocket striking and breaking a window blind in the second story window of the residence opposite occupied by John's millinery. Fortunately no one was injured, although several persons in the crowd had narrow escapes.

HOUSE MINUS ITS CHIMNEY

The substantial brick structure occupied by Carl Litz's restaurant is minus one of its chimneys as the result of an attempt to swing a large twenty foot flag to the breeze on Saturday afternoon.

The flag, an especially commanding one, was made by Mrs. J. O. Heddens and the plan was to swing it to the breeze over Mill street by securing one end of the rope on the roof of the Heddens House and the other on Carl Litz's establishment. On the latter building there was no other means of securing the rope than by tying it around the chimney.

The flag was flung to the breeze with little difficulty, but it had a short career of it. The breeze rose, the flag filled and Mr. Litz stood by admiring it when all at once with a sound that suggested an earthquake a car load of brick and mortar came raining down over the awning into the street, and the flag fell ingloriously to the ground.

As the chimney fell a young lady came near being struck, while some children playing under the awning had a bad scare.
