Mr. A. L. Hess, one of Philadelphia's progressive business men, for many years a large wholesale grocer of that city, who did a business extending throughout the State, while in our surrounding cities and towns endeavoring to collect some old accounts in connection with a pleasure trip, extended his jaunt to our city on Wednesday. The following morning he gave us a pleasant call, informing us of the present good condition of some of our old friends.

Saturday morning Mr. Benton Wiest, wife and daughter and Mrs. Wm. H. Kulp and Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Chester, of Shamokin, and Mrs. Frank Fering, of Mt. Carmel, drove to our city on a visiting trip, the guests of the Editor and family. In the afternoon they partook of the beautiful sights at the Hospital, and returned for home at early evening tide, to enjoy Nature's handiwork by a different route than the one traversed in their coming.

The annual Mauser reunion will be held in the Rideville grove, near the Danville & Bloomsburg street railway line, on August 16. All the Manners and their friends are urgently requested to be present.

QUALITIES OF SAGE.
Savory and Salubrious All the Year Round and Liked by All.

Nearly all our vegetables and herbs appear originally to have passed through some preliminary stage in the laboratory of the medical herbalist before being admitted to the garh ring hosts of the kitchen. The fact is not so apparent as it might at first sight appear, and its results are certainly beneficial to the general advantage of mankind, for, though for the most part the herb sages prescriptions were of a kind neither to kill nor cure, his investigations of the specific qualities of plants were often useful. The ancients seem to have regarded sage as an herb of first importance to the physician, and the many traditions concerning it refer almost entirely to this aspect of the plant.

Why should a man die who has sage in his garden? The sage of the maxima of the famous school of health at Salerno. The belief in its virtues survived through the middle ages and was handed down with unimpaired vitality to quite modern times. The vegetable of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries were full of its praises, and there was hardly an ailment of mind or body for which sage was not pronounced a cure or an alleviation. The sage sprang the idea that it was a generally wholesome and recommended by the faculty the housewife might prudently admit a dried winter supply to her store-room. And so this "sovereign herb" gradually found its way into the kitchen, of which it has ever since remained an indispensable adjunct; not that it at once lost all its medicinal attributes. "He that would live for aye must eat sage in May" runs the proverb. But the cooks soon began to take broader views. They pronounced sage to be equally savory and salutary all the year around, and of special and peculiar value at the season of Michaelmas.

But this is advancing matters. Even the best of things eatable have had to overcome prejudice and slowly make their way, and in the case of mere concomitants some help from the encouraging hand of fashion has generally been necessary. The rather narrow-browed known as sage tea was a domestic medicine to our forefathers that the condiment of once accepted the herb in the character of a savory adjunct. But we live and learn, and the merits of sage as a modifier of certain rich viands began to be acknowledged. It seemed to have a kind of natural affinity with roast pork, goose and duck and presently became the constant attendant of these dishes. Early in the eighteenth century an acknowledged authority laid it down that "as to geese and ducks, cooks should stuff them with sage, and a little pepper and salt, and the same with a sucking pig."—London Globe.

CONVENTION'S FIRST SESSION

The city of Wilkes-Barre yesterday was given over to the rash ring hosts of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union. With the opening of the day representative bodies from nearly every corner in the country were present to transact the business of the convention. Nearly one thousand delegates were on hand.

It was almost 11 o'clock when the convention was called to order. Father O'Carroll introduced, after paying him many compliments, Mayor Frank Kirkendall, who delivered the speech of welcome. Among other things the mayor said:

I never believe in mixing religion and politics, although most churches and politicians do better with one or the other but I cannot help calling to mind the last time that I was privileged to speak in this hall, and to compare the present set of men of today with the war whoops of the last occasion. I officiated as chairman of a Democratic county convention, and if it should happen to be "one of our" among you, it will not be necessary for me to go into the details of the difference between then and now. I am glad to know that my knees are not cracking together so much and the accident insurance company that carries my risk is feeling better today than at the former time, so are we all happy together at this joyful occasion.

As I look over this hall and see the smiling faces of the most worthy Americans, who are bound together for the purpose of living a temperate, honest, and useful life, and thus exemplifying the advantages of happiness and prosperity that such right living makes possible, the pleasure of welcoming you to our beautiful city is a particularly pleasing proposition.

It is not often that a Mayor is called upon to address a convention that has been instrumental in bringing so many distinguished visitors to our city, and it is a positive proof of the excellence of your organization and what great men and all citizens of this nation think of you.

Our city is honored by having you with us and doubly honored by the success of your efforts in bringing to our home that most distinguished American Citizen, President Theodore Roosevelt.

Your organization is a credit to our country. The example you set for the young men is doing more real good than you have any idea of. The necessity of temperance in everything is what the youth of today needs drilled into them. These are strenuous times and the tendency of the youth is to ward overdoing. The C. T. A. U. is doing its part and doing it well.

Bishop Regis Canevin, the president of the national union, in reply of the mayor said:

"In the name of the C. T. A. U. of A. and all the subordinate societies, I am glad to see you here and welcome and congratulate you on the honor of having in your chief executive a man of so upright a character and such clean reputation and a man who can grasp the objects represented by this association so well, and express them so clearly in words as you have done.

This is a mingling of religion and politics because for the true Christian, for the members of the C. T. A. U. politics means the application of the gospel of Christ and the relation of His and his holy works to public affairs and to the daily lives of men before the public.

The law which obliges man to love his neighbor as himself is the very fundamental principle of our patriotism and good government. And that love of one's neighbor and of his good before any selfish purpose is what characterizes the conduct and reputation of the mayor of Wilkes-Barre at the present time.

Your honor, I thank you in the name of the C. T. A. U. of A.

Then came the lengthy annual report of Secretary Legone, which was followed by the splendid address of Bishop Canevin, who concluded with the following eloquent allusion to the Apostolic benediction:

"We have yet another reason to rejoice, and be grateful to God on this day. The Most Rev. Archbishop Ryan writes that His Holiness Pius X., bestows his apostolic benediction on this convention and renews for the members of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America all the indulgences, spiritual favors, approvals and words of encouragement which were granted by his illustrious predecessors, Pope Pius IX. and Pope Leo XIII.

The words and blessing of the Vicar of Christ have sustained this union in its struggles. It has had to meet and overcome habits of ease and indulgence; social customs, political corruption, and material interests. It has had to endure the mistrust of many good and earnest men; the mischief done by weak or indiscreet brethren; the ridicule and coarse jokes of idlers and triflers; the indifference of timid and apathetic friends; and the desertion of some leaders who, after long and zealous service, retired, wearied and discouraged."

White Hall.

Saturday being Wes Pursel's thirty-sixth birthday his friends and neighbors, to the number of 150, decided to give him a surprise. They succeeded, as they caught him in the barn threshing. They came for dinner; they came for supper; and if there had been any more to come they might have come for breakfast. Those present were: Chas. Pursel, wife and daughter Libbie; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mausteller, daughter Ella and son Well; Harry Zeigler, wife and children, Stewart, Warren, Howard and George; Chas. Pursel, wife and children, Edna and Mildred; Will Snyder, wife and son Harry; Eli Kitchen, wife and children, Mary and Florence; Sam'l Pursel, Sylvester Flick, wife and daughter Carrie; Miss Marie Crossley, Helen, Jerry, Frank, Allen, John and Mabel Snyder; Burdett Studevant, Jacob Holdren and wife, Phineas Holdren, Ed. Ernest, Jacob Kreamer and wife, Chas. Kreamer, wife and son Ralph; Roy Kreamer, wife and daughter Helen; Mrs. A. E. Rishel and children, Lizzie, Ira, Winifred and Beatrice; Mrs. Sarah Stetter, Mrs. Kate Carey, Miss Maggie McBride, Miss Clara Kreamer, Chas. Carey, Allen Biddle, Mrs. Lizzie Leighow and children, Isaac, Elroy and Mary; James John McWilliams and wife, Wm. Derr and wife, Hurley Moser and wife, Thos. Derr and wife, J. DeWald, wife and son Chas., and George; W. F. Dildine, wife and children, Lloyd and Frank; Dan Moser, wife and children, Stella, Fred and Lena; D. A. Cox, wife and children, Mary and Gilbert; John Hilner, wife and daughter Nora; Mrs. Evelyn Conrad, Wm. Barlow, James Robbins, Miss Mary Dildine, Mrs. Mowrey, Peter Rishel, wife and son Geo.; Amos Johnson, Geo. Johnson, Frank McKee, Wm. and Chas. Polk, Mrs. Lizzie Derr and children, Elfinor and McKee; Mrs. Levi Fortner, Mrs. Warren Mausteller and daughter Ruth, Rev. and Mrs. Munro, Jacob Biddle and wife, Miss Belle Derr, Mrs. Louisa Dildine, Mrs. Wm. Rishel and daughter Mattie, Wes, Pursel, wife and children, Bruce, Sarah and Grace. Music was furnished by Amos and Geo. Johnson and Peter Rishel. Tables were erected in the shade of the maple trees, and to say that all enjoyed the many good things put upon them is not necessary. The THREE were joined by another for the second trip to the table.

The Smiths broke through a bridge Monday with their engine and it took them several hours to get out again.

Frank Dildine was an Exchange caller Sunday evening.

The sale of Mrs. Geo. Carey (nee May Holdren) on Saturday was well attended. She, with her husband, will start for California this week.

Mrs. Fannie Mausteller spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents here.

Arthur Leighow was taken seriously ill on Saturday afternoon, but at this writing is improving.

Mont Derr and family will move into the house vacated by Mrs. Carey this week. He is making some repairs before moving.

A Marvelous Enterprise
Every day the expression is heard, "It is marvelous how a Sunday newspaper can give to its readers free of charge such a beautiful color magazine as is given with THE PHILADELPHIA SUNDAY PRESS."

This magazine is equal to any ten cent magazine and is given absolutely free with THE SUNDAY PRESS. A Sunday newspaper which costs only five cents per copy. THE SUNDAY PRESS also has two other beautiful color magazines, consisting of a Women's Magazine, which is unexcelled, and a Comic Magazine, equal to the best.

Such wonderful and valuable parts of a Sunday newspaper which is ably edited throughout, constantly add thousands of copies to the circulation of THE PHILADELPHIA PRESS. Do you read it? If not, notify your newsdealer at once to begin serving you with this newspaper.

Fishermen are jubilant over the prospect of a few days' good fishing, as the river is now becoming low again and the water is assuming its accustomed cleanness. Experienced fishermen say that bass salmon are more plentiful in the river this summer than for a number of years past. The only trouble seems to be to get after them, as the river conditions since the opening of the season have most of the time been unfavorable.

Stationery for Farmers.
Farmers and others, particularly those living on the Rural Delivery routes, should have printed stationery as well as business men. It is not only more business-like to send a letter with name and address printed on the notehead and envelope, but it insures the return of the letter in case it is not delivered. We are especially well equipped to do this class of printing and can do it promptly and neatly. We will supply 250 noteheads and 250 envelopes, extra quality, for $1.50, or 75c for either one lot. This is cheaper than you can buy the paper and envelopes regularly at retail stores.

Atlantic City Excursions
August 17 and 31, the Reading Railway will run ten-day excursions to Atlantic City, Cape May, Ocean City or Sea Isle City. Stop-off allowed at Philadelphia going and returning. Round trip rate $4.50.
