Job Printing of all kinds properly executed at reasonable prices, at the Intelligencer Office.

Judging from the unavailing efforts that are being put forth after dark it is feared that there are promises in the proximity to Mill street that a new need of cleaning up the health office will probably look into the matter.

Last Thursday a woman just as we started to run off the issue Mr. C. M. Dye, of Turbotville, paid us a short call and subscribed for the Intelligencer.

Chas. S. Miller, of Phila, gave us a short call on Wednesday. He says he is much pleased with the Intelligencer, which he is a subscriber to, and renewed his paper for 1906.

Our sisters, Mesdames E. E. Decker and A. H. Martin, of Liverpool, paid us a short visit this week, and extended their visit to Shenandoah, Monday evening their old friend, Mrs. John H. There was a general rush to get on board and the little girl was jostled almost against the back so that her toe was caught by the wheel and slightly crushed. The injury is not considered serious.

John and Mary Reiser, of the Reeser family, of Armstrong township, who have been at the State Hospital at Reading the past year, have been brought home and taken to the State Hospital for the Insane at Danville. They were examined by Drs. Youngman and Hull and pronounced to be insane.—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin.

The time seems near at hand when our good friends in the rural districts, in order to protect themselves from robbery, will be compelled to carry revolvers, when coming to our curb-stone market so early in the morning.

An incident occurred in this neighborhood Thursday which reminds a Danville reporter of the Intelligencer of the days when Jack Shepherd, a bold fellow, frequented the haunts of old London's suburban streets and acted in real earnest the part of the most notorious highwayman of which the world has ever known.

And now for our story: It was about five o'clock yesterday morning when James Enterline, one of Northumberland county's unassuming and progressive farmers, was on his way to this city with a load of vegetables, when he was held up. The road is through the gloomy region of Pine Swamp Hollow, between Riverbank and Sunbury, where once they used to meet to congregate, and while driving leisurely along the dimly throving three burly masked ruffians suddenly approached to the middle of the road and demanded Mr. Enterline's money. The frightened man was so taken by surprise that he at once gave them all in his possession, which was $5.00. This paltry sum the thieves eagerly snatched and then sneakingly hid themselves in the darkness of the dewy morning, the bewildered and excited farmer not knowing whether they had gone. It was a fortunate thought in Mrs. Enterline before her husband started for market on this occasion, that she relieved his pockets of much money, else the steal would have been much greater. Why is it so many times of this class now, at all, are never seen in their nefarious work, and are therefore permitted to go scott free? Let us hope some of these rascals may yet be caught and brought to speedy and severe justice.

Had Offices in Danville. The office fixtures of B. V. Denk & Company, stock brokers of New York City, have been attached and will be sold at a considerable sale in the near future. The attachment is due to the fact that one of the many persons who are rumored to have lost much money through dealings with this concern is endeavoring to recover at least part of the money he lost.

While the rumor is not being verified owing to the refusal of the man concerned to talk, it is said that Shamokin people have sunk a considerable sum of money in stock speculation through B. V. Denk & Co. The office opened some time in March and for some time the local speculators were raking in nice returns for their investments. Several of the patrons cleared from $10 to $500 for one day's speculation.

However, in June the trouble began to brew. The company did not make its payments as promptly as usual but gave supposedly good reasons. Last month the office changed hands and B. V. Denk & Company suddenly was no more.

Finally, about three weeks ago, no stock reports were received and not a word heard from the company. Then it was that the speculators began to investigate but all to no avail as the tracks of the missing brokers were covered up completely.

As stated above, it is not known how much money was lost. One person is said to have sunk $800, another $700 and still another $500. Small losses from $50 to $100 are also reported. A person, who seemed to be in a position to know, declared this morning that in his opinion at least $5,000 were lost.

It will be remembered that B. V. Denk & Company had offices in this city as well as in Milton and Bloomsburg. The firm left Danville several months ago, it was and returned on account of lack of business.

Sunbury's New Trolley. Ground was broken for the new Sunbury and Northumberland trolley line yesterday morning on Susquehanna avenue, near Alton street.

Ice Wagon Takes Quick Trip. The team attached to A. L. Delcamp's ice wagon ran away on Mahoning street, Monday morning, and caused a big excitement. They took flight at the cars at the extreme end of East Mahoning street and ran the full length of the thoroughfare plunging through the fence at the lower end of West Mahoning street where they were caught. The wagon was slightly damaged by contact with the fence, but the horse escaped injury.

Far Away to Allentown Fair. An excursion of between 300 and 400 people will journey to Allentown in September from Clinton county, Indiana, to attend the Allentown Fair. The party will consist of Pennsylvania Germans who left Lehigh county many years ago and settled in that section. Most of them are prosperous and many of them have grown old, and they want to come back to Lehigh county once more.

Plenty of Deer. Deer are more plentiful in Pennsylvania than they have been for many years, according to the reports to the State Game Commission.

Some of the game wardens report deer in localities where there has been none of those animals for many years. The reports also indicate a large abundance of wild turkeys and pheasants and an unusually small quantity of quail.

SELINGSGROVE MAN BEATEN OUT OF $600

Lewis R. Amig, an aged and well to do citizen of Seling Grove, a man who has had experience in all the various transactions that go to make up a life time, finally fell into as neat a little game of bluff as it has been our pleasure to report for some time.

Monday was a quiet day at that little inland village, and all the country folk for miles around congregated there, for Snyder county does not offer an experience such as a gala day. A invariably the case, as the visitors followed the caravan, crooks of all the fake games in the category of "good things" followed and located in Seling Grove, with the standing ground of the show as the headquarters.

Mr. Amig came in contact with a pair of the gentry, apparently in a rowed conversation on matter of advertising the show business. The attention of the Seling Grove citizen was at once riveted by the sight of an envelope bulging with greenbacks, and around and about this were others containing 100 accounts—money in that little firm appeared to be no consideration. The big envelope mentioned contained $750, and the man who held it made things appear as though he and his companion had not met before. He was evidently trying to persuade the party of the second part to try his luck. The game was a good one—each envelope was marked on the one side with the amount it contained, ranging from $5 to $50, and one of them contained $750, and this one was, before the opening of the game exposed to view.

The proposition was made to Mr. Amig that if he could cover the $50 he could play, and a trial for the fun of the thing was made. Mr. Amig first drew $10, and then again $20 and again $5, all the while with the $750 in sight as a possibility without out of sight and in the game.

He became more earnest and said he had no money with him, but could secure it. The party to the second part then stated that if Mr. Amig would raise $500, he, the party to the second part, would raise $150 and they would out the man with the little envelope out of the business. This was planned in secret. The result was that Mr. Amig secured the endorsement of G. R. Hendricks, drew the $600 from the bank, met the fakers in an alley, accompanied them to a secret place and it required but a few moments until Mr. Amig had bid a sorrowful farewell to his $600. Whether he will ever meet and greet it again will remain for the courts to decide, as he has had the offenders arrested.

Favors State Museum. State Librarian Thomas Lynch Montgomery thinks it would be extremely unwise hurriedly to build other quarters for the housing of the library to take the place of the present library building, which it is suggested should be torn down when the new capitol building has been finished.

Mr. Montgomery is a firm believer in the necessity for a State museum, such as was authorized by a law passed by the last Legislature, and the adaptation of the present Executive building to library and museum purposes.

He suggests in his report that the present quarters of the Auditor General be converted into a law library, where members of the profession could obtain well lighted quarters and the quiet which is necessary for their research.

"The results are apparent in a series of twenty five large volumes of mounted papers," adds Mr. Montgomery. "Several tons of papers have been transferred from the different departments and have been repaired and put into appropriate classifications, so as to be available for reference; and these will be bound up within reasonable time."

He says that the work of the traveling library department has been most satisfactory, in so far as the circulation of books is concerned. The Legislature of 1903 set aside $12,000 for this work for the two years. The Library Commission employs only three persons at salaries which aggregate $2,430 a year. The greater part of the appropriation goes directly into the purchase of books. One hundred and sixty one collections of fifty books each are now in active circulation.

During the year the library has received 3,400 books and pamphlets, of which 114 have been gifts. The estimated number of volumes and pamphlets in the library is 120,000. Twelve hundred and seventy-seven items of Pennsylvania, including imprints, were added to the collection during the year, a large number of these being publications of the eighteenth century.

Grand Lodge K. of P. in Convention at McKeesport, Penn'a.

The convention met in the High School Auditorium, a very fine building with a seating capacity of 1,000. It was called to order by the Grand Chancellor at nine o'clock a. m., August 15, 1905.

An address of welcome by the mayor of the city, and responded to by the Grand Chancellor, after which the work of the convention began. Jas. E. Watkins, of Taylor, Pa., was elected Grand Inner Guard, which is the steppingstone to the highest office. A vacancy occurring, he was advanced to Grand Master at Arms, thus advancing two years in one.

R. S. Jackson, of Pittsburg, and H. M. Wadsworth, of Phila, were elected representatives to the Supreme Lodge. The reports showed the order in excellent condition. Net gain in membership for year, 1028 in Penn'a., in all the states net gain, 47,900. Financially, all lodges show gains, and in excellent condition.

Grand Lodge meets in August, 1906, in Detroit, Clearfield county.

The parade on Wednesday was by far the largest that has been shown at any session, there being about 5,000 in line, marching to the music of 24 bands.

The uniform rank made a great display, fully half of the numbers in line being drilled members, the balance were uniforms also but are not thoroughly organized into regiments, etc.

McKeesport, spared neither time nor money in providing for the entertainment of her guests.

The convention, though it acted on quite a number of changes, was the most harmonious one ever held.
