"Nice state of affairs this," said Mike when he had counted the pack-ages, "oldest bank in ten counties and supposed to be as safe as the rock of Gibraltar. You fellows have wrecked it and come here tonight to sneak away with the pitiful balance. Well, by George! I have had a few twinges of conscience since I turned burglar, but I shall have no more. What shall we do with 'em, Mike?" "Let 'em live on to work in brick yards by the month." "Maybe we can't do better. Put in the gags again and we'll be off. I shall lay this case before a Chicago preacher and offer him $1,000 to give his congregation a sermon on it. We will leave the preciona secondre's here to, keep each other company and make explanations to the public in the morning."

The cashier was game, but he had to other. A man from Chicago who was tak-ing a little trip over the country for the benefit of his health stopped at Pools-wille and the bank one day to get some money changed. He looked about him and saw that a couple of enterprising burgiars would have little trouble in making a haul. How Strange Animals Appeared In Heraldry In Old Days.

How Strange Animals Appeared In Heraldry In Old Days. Early writers on natural history sub-jects make mention of many strange creatures that never could have exist-ed save in the superstitious mind of the age in which they wrote, and of the many that did exist the accounts of their structure and habits are so indicrous that one may really wonder if it was possible, even in the middle ages, that people could be so credulous. Many of these strangely garbled rec-ords of the animal world were, no doubt, due to travelers' tales and prob-ably had a certain foundation in fact, but it is difficult indeed to account for the creation of such things as the phoe-and if injured or broken never grow again. The horn, growing out of the fore-head, betwixt the eyelids, is neither light nor hollow nor yet smooth like other horns, but hard as iron, rough as any file, revolved into many plights; sharper than any dart, straight and not crooked and everywhere black, ex-cept at the point. Bartholomew asserted that there were many varieties of unicorn, and this would be feasible if this creature ind been created from those horned beasts that had accidentally lost one of the horns.
