The missing man, who also lives at Ringtown, is somewhat deficient mensally but always got along well enough among his relatives and neighbors. During the summer he worked on During the summer he worked on a farm for Frederick Laudig, at Ring-town. Last week he was seized with a desire to attend the Bloomsburg fair. On Thursday he was permitted to take in the fair, but a half-grown boy was sent along to take care of him.

While in the main building the two got separated in the crowd. Despite his efforts the boy was unable to find his charge and was obliged to return home and report the fact. The relatives are very anxious over the matter as the feeble-minded man is unable to as the feeble-minded man is unable to find his way home or even to take care of himself among strangers and may perish by the wayside. He has a de-fect in his speech—does not under-stand English and speaks only in Ger-man. If addressed in English he pays no attention whatever, but walks right on. He would not likely ask any-thing of strangers either in the way of food or shelter. What has become of the man is a question which the relatives would like to clear up. That be found his way out of the fair ground is established by the fact—since learned—that on Friday he was seen walking down Main street, Bloomsburg. More Workmen Wanted,

Several business men, employers of help, were in conversation last even-ing and they agreed that not for many years, if ever in the history of Dan-ville, has it been so difficult to secure hands as at the present time. Each in turn related his experience in an ef-fort to secure a few extra hands, which showed that not only at the present but for months past industrial conditions in Danville have been of the most encouraging sort and that not a man nor a boy who is able and will-ing to work need suffer for want of employment. It is a fact that our leading industries and work along all lines are seriously handicapped by the

Prosperity is at high water mark all over the land and the scarcity of help is general. Danville has little relief to expect, therefore, and even if sup-erior inducements were to attract workingmen here there would be not houses in which to domicile their families. There are practically not dwellings for rent in Danville, which shows that the desciency of working men is not due to any falling off o

The prosperity at home and else-nere indicated by the above condi-ons is most gratifying especially at the present, standing as we do on the threshold of winter, when steady work is necessary to keep the wolf from the door and to supply all the comforts needed in the household.

A POINTER FOR CANDIDATES

The souvenir post card craze has suggested a new and very practical idea to candidates, who will this fall send through the mails their photographs on a small card containing for example the familiar legend: "Vote for John Smith, etc." The card need be the usual inexpensive affair and all the candidate will have to do will be to place a one cent stamp and the adto place a one cent stamp and the ad dress of the voter he wants to reac

New Law Explained.

There has been some misapprehen sion concerning the trespass law which was recently enacted and many be ieve that one-half of the fine goes t the prosecutor, and that the fine is fix ed at ten dollars or ten days. COMPELLING VACCINATION

The enforcement of the school law

In one or more of the rural districts, it seems, the teachers whatever their methods may be, have a difficult time of it in bringing about a compliance with the law. While in town schools vaccination is a closed incident, in some of the rural districts sore arms among the pupils are just now the rule.

At Styers' School house, West Hemlock township, yesterday the teacher in order to compel the enforcement of the law sent home every pupil that could not produce the approved evidence that he or she nad been vaccinated. This, it is reported, left but four pupils in school. The measure aroused a good hit of feeling is some court. ed a good bit of feeling in some quart ers, but the teacher has the school law on his side and had no choice but to proceed as he did.

Under the State Department of Health in whose hands the enforcement of vaccination has rested since September 15th, the law is more rigidly applied than before. The change in the form of certificates required, lowever, has given rise to the impres sion among some people that the act of 1895 does not apply and they seem to be to some extent at sea as to just how far the law makes vaccination

A COON HUNTER'S LONELYVIGIL

After a vigil of 28 hours at the foot of a tree in which a big black bear had taken refuge, Clarence Ringler, of Trout Ron, shot the animal at day-break, Monday. Ringler went coon hunting, Satur-

"Ringler built a fire, expecting that the reflection of the flames would disclose the animal, but the boughs of the tree were too thick, so he encamped at the foot of the tree to wait for day-break. He soon remembered that there is a penalty of $25 for shooting game on Sunday, but he was determined to have that bear, and decided to remain on guard, being mindful of the fact that if he left the place, the bear would shin down the tree and escape to the shin down the tree and escape to the

He forced himself to remain awake on Sunday night, and on Monday morning at six o'clock when the light of day disclosed the form of the bear. Ringler aimed and shot, the bear tombling down through the branches to the ground, when a second shot finished it.

The bear weighed 287 pounds, and one of his hind paws was gone, apparently having at some time been caught in a steel trap, when he gnawed off the member to gain his freedom.

When Ringler reached bome for help to carry the bear and incidentally to get something to eat, he found his friends in a state of high excitement over his long absence, fearing that he had met with some accident.

DANVILLE DEFEATS NORTHUMBERLAND

The Danville High School foot ball team, in the second game of the sea-son, scored an easy victory over the Northumberland High School at De-Witt's Park Saturday afternoon.

The enforcement of the school law relating to vaccination admits of no exceptions. The State Department of Health by a judicious use of printer's ink has made it perfectly clear to school superintendents, principals and others in charge of schools just what their duty is in the premises in order to avoid a penalty.

In town our school authorities hew very closely to the line and at the very very closely to the line and at the very beginning of the term no pupil is admitted without bringing evidence that he has been successfully vaccinated. MINOR MATTERS OF INTEREST

One who takes a drive through the arming districts about Danville this perfect autumn weather will find him self amply repaid by the signs of in-dustry and progress, to say nothing of the beautiful landscape views, which are in evidence everywhere. It is doubtful if more beautiful farms—tak ing into consideration the picturesqu surroundings—may be found anywher it is a sight for eyes unaccustomed to such to see the shocks of golden-hued corn appearing to right and left every where, with pumpkins almost piled on top of one another in the shorn stub-bles of the field.

The director of the State Experi ment Station, at State College, recont-ly made a test of dried distiller's grains, which is the residue from the manufacture of spirits, and which are being offered to Pennsylvania farmers and dairymen. The test shows that at prevailing prices for corn meal and cottonseed meal, the cost of a pound of milk was somewhat increased by the use of distiller's grains. It also showed that if the milk was to be used for butter and sold on the basis of its test, the extra amount of fat pro-duced by the distiller's grains ration would offset the additional cost.

THE PHENIX.

THE PHENIX.

Legend of How It Lived and Died and Lived Again.

The ancient tradition concerning the phenix has introduced into nearly every language the habit of applying that name to whatever is singular or uncommon among its kind. According to ancient writers, the phenix was a bird of great beauty about the size of an engle. A shining and most beautiful crest adorned its head, its plumage contained nearly every tint of the railabow, and its eyes sparkled like diamonds. Only one of these birds could live at a time, but its existence covered a period of 500 or 600 years. When its life drew to a close the bird built for itself a funeral pile of wood and aromatic spices, with its wings fanned the pile into a flame and therein consumed itself. From its ashes a worm was produced, out of which another phenix was formed, having all the vigor of youth. The first care of the new phenix was to solemnize its parent's obsequies. For that purpose it made a ball of myrrh, frankincense and other fragrant things. At Heliopolis, a city in lower Egypt, there was a magnifeent temple dedicated to the sun. To this temple the phenix would carry the fragrant ball and burn it on the altar of the sun as a sacrifice. The priests then examined the register and found that exactly 500 years or exactly 600 years exactly 500 years or exactly 600 years had elapsed since that same ceremony had taken place.

Modera Card Playing.

The gambling of today is a mild affair compared with the extant records of English society. We shall never again see the days when General Scott won a fortune of £200,000 at whist, chiefly by dint of keeping sober. And high play, it must never be forgotten, is a relative term. When Lord Stavordale gained £11,000 by a single coup at hazard, his only comment was that if he had been playing "deep" he mighthave won millions. When the dimensions of modern wealth are taken into sions of modern wealth are taken into account the wildest excesses ever wit-nessed at the card table would have a timid and parsimonious aspect to the bucks of the regency.—Times of India, Bombay
