MELISSA'S LETTER

By Martha McCulloch-Williams Copyright, 1905, by Martha McCulloch-Williams

It was rainy within and without. Melissa looked through dim eyes at the streamy window panes, the long slant lines outside. Her aunt Judith viewed them instead with satisfaction—they would serve so well to excuse Mellssa's nonappearance at the ceme tery. Nobody, indeed, would go there but the men of the post, the firers and drummers, and maybe a few fool poli-ticians, intent on catching the Grand Army vote. Thus thought Aunt Judith to herself.

Mellssa smiled wistfully. "I-hardly know." she said. "Maybe I shan't write any-only sit and sew. It's about all I can do. I think there will be no getting out today." "There won't be. Take care of yourself. Don't mope," Mrs. Bent said, hustling away.

Mellssa went softly to her own room, opened her desk and swiftly wrote three lines. Then she huddled into her waterproof and stole out very softly with what she had written tucked safely in her breast. Private John Faring had not been forgotten, but his resting place especially was unlike itself. John 3d knelt down by it, heedless of oozy turf, and tried with mannish awk-wardness to better its arrangement. Thus his eyes rested upon the knot of wild flowers and caught the dull gleam of sodden paper in the midst of them. Reverently he unfolded the note and read with blurred vision:

Dear Uncle John—I bring you all I enthis year. Aunt Ju owns the flowersand she hates your name. But I love it. John Faring is the best name in the world. I wish my name might be Faring.

Auctions In France.

The French mode of conducting auctions is rather curious. In sales of importance, such as of land, houses, etc. portance, such as of lind, houses, etc., the affair is placed in the hands of a notary, who for the time being becomes an auctioneer. The property, whatever be its nature, is first examined by competent to the contract of the contract to by competent judges, who fix upon it a price, considerably less than its value, but always sufficient to prevent any ruinous loss by a preconcerted plan or combination of bidders. The property is then offered with the fixed valuation stated. The auctioneer is provided with a number of small wax tapers, each capable of burning about five minutes. As soon as a bis is made one of these tapers is placed in full view of all interested parties and lighted. If before it expires another bid is offered, it is immediately extinguished and a fresh taper placed in its stead, and so on until one flickers and dies out of itself, when the last bid becomes irrevocable. This simple plan prevents all contention among fixed lighters and affords a reasonable. by competent judges, who fix upon i

A Queen's Blunder.

For some time after her marriage with Napoleon the Empress Marie Louise was extremely ignorant of the French language. On one occasion, seeing her husband look vexed over a letter he had received from the court of Austria, she inquired of him what was the matter. "Oh, nothing," replied Mapoleon; "your father is an old ganache, that is all." Marie Louise did not know that this was French for fool and took the first opportunity of asking a courtier what it meant, saying that the emperor had applied the expression to her father. "It means some one very learned and wise," stammered the unfortunate courtier. The empress was perfectly satisfied with this explanation and pleased to learn a new word. A day or two after she received the Archehancellor Cambaceres in a crowded salon. Some question was being warmly discussed in the circle, and her opinion was asked. Wishing to be very gracious, Marie Louise turned to Cambaceres and sald, "We will refer that point to the archibishop, for we all know he is the greatest ganache in Paris."
