Important Correction. HARRISBURG, PA , Nov. 10, 1905

EDITOR OF INTELLIGENCER, Danvi le, l'a

Dear Sir :-

I notice in a recent issue of your paper an account of an interview with me, in which I am reported as with me, in which I am reported as having said, that if a farmer refused to clean up the pests on his trees, the Department of Agriculture will do it, and add the cost to his tax bill, or may chop down the orchaid and burn it. I never made any such statement, and I regret that this has been reported because it is causing distrust among farmers and they are unwilling to accept as they shou d, the help which this office is trying to give them. Some are opposing spectors who go to their premises to help them with a view to determine what insects are infesti- g their trees, and what pests are present. This is for the good of their orchaids, and it is to their interest to receive the help which we are extending to them. However, when they have a wrong impression that we are going to force them to treat their trees, they will not accept the services which we offer. I, therefore, write to ask you if you will kindly make the correction, and say, that this Department does not contemplate forcing any man to treat his trees from the find ings of our inspectors. The Law pro-vides that if any man notify us in writing of a premises infested with San Jose Scale or other serious, the Department of Agriculture must sent an expert to see what is wrong and prescribe a method of treatment, and these must be followed. This is en tirely distinct from the orchard inspection which the Division of Zoolo gy is now making in all parts of this

Thunking you for publishing this statement and thus aiding the important work we are trying to do, 1 am Very truly yours,

Very truly yours, H. A. SURFACE,

Economic Zoologist. [We have made an effort to find the assertion referred to by Mr. Sur face, but are unable to just locate the same, and believe that is it was in ou columns it came there through plate matter or reprint. The correction is a good one and therefore think the above letter is of value to our read ers.] - EDITOR.

Here is an enchanting recipe copied from a book on the toilet published in 1834—in Boston, of course: "A Wash to Give the Face a Younger Look.—Take sulphur, one and one-half ounces; G. oliban and myrrh, two ounces; amber, six drams; rose water, one and one-half pluts. Distill the whole in balneum markae, wash yourself with some at bedtime, and in the morating with barley water, and

She had fol-lowed her husband into the hall and now stood clinging to his buttonhole in wistful appeal. "But I nusk have somebody. Here are the Witherses and all those others coming to dinner and no one to cook a thing. I have tele-honed the intelligence office, and Mrs.

no one to cook a thing. I have tele-phoned the intelligence office, and Mrs. Lewis says she will have a girl at the station for your train, so all you will have to do is speak to her and bring her along." Heresford gasped. "What, me?" he ejaculated. "Speak to a strange wo-man in a railway station and ask her if Suppose he spole to the wrong woman; suppose she considered herself insulted and called for the police. There was no counting on what a woman might do. When, having but a scant two minutes to spare before train time, he dashed into the walting room it was with a fervent nathema against cooks in gen-eral and this one in particular that he pounced upon the nearest woman. "Are you the new cook for Mrs. Beresford?" he demanded breathessly. The woman, startled by his impetuous comhitial glance. "And if I am?" she ventured cau-tionsly.

Another woman, big and erowned with a hinge confection of flowers and lace, stood by the door and Beresford men-tally congratulated himself on not hav-ing to travel with that. At home Mrs. Beresford regarded the new girl with equal approval. The question of hours, wages, days out, etc., was quickly settled. Then Mrs.

"Oh, very well," said Mrs. Beresford. After all, it did not matter, for with-out good recommendations Mrs. Lewis world not have sent her. Dinner was delicious. The soup was a dream, the roast done to a tark, the game seasoned to perfection. When the smooth black coffee came as a fi-sing finish to a dafnty repest Mrs. Beresford breathed a long sigh of re-lief. This woman was certainly a treasure, she mused complacently. And Mrs. Withers suppressed a little envious sigh. For, like most country places, Hillside was but a resting place for countless legions of girls. "If she only keeps up like this I shall regard Maggle's departure in the light of a disguised blessing," confided Mrs. Beresford to her husband later in the privacy of their own apartment.

"I hope she is not going to be ill. Norah just told me that when she was Norah just told me that when she was arranging my room tonight the cook came in, saying she feit bad. But one morning he scemed to be bet-ter.

But one morning he seemed to be bet-ter. He made little jokes with the doctors and his sons and takked about his White mountain home. At 12 o'clock he seemed tired. The editor of his autobiography says that he sank into a dreamy same, and then roused him-self to say to his wife in a lingering, estable volce: "I have had a beautiful vision—a beautiful vision?" THE DAINTY WASP. Apparatus With Which He Make His Complicated Toilet.

His Complicated Tollet. "Wasps are exceedingly dainty in their habits," says a writer in the Pil-grim, "and, in order that they may grafify their instinct for neatness, to the utmost, nature has provided them with a set of marvelously de::.ate combs and brushes. If we look closely at the wasp's legs we will find that each bears on its on-encount of the two small. wasp's legs we will find that each bears on its oriermicat long joint two small, movable spines, known as the aptenti spurs, and if we examine these with a magnifying glass each is seen to be provided with a row of fine teeth, so that the apparatus answers for a coarse and fine toothed comb. "The tidying up process consists of various perfectly definite steps, usually taking place in a parsicular sequence. First, it passes both front legs over the face from above downward, and after repeating this movement several times epeating this movement several times traws them through the jaws. This is draws them through the jaws. This is for remove any foreign substance which may have collected on them. The legs are then passed backward from the forehead, much as we should smooth back our hair. The wings are then stroked again and again from the base to the tip, although the most careful ob-server would fail to detect anything upon them. The abdomen is next care-fully stroked from base to tip until every hair points in the right direction and a gloss as fine as satin is attained. Last of all, each of the six legs, in turn, is laborlously drawn between two of its fellows, so the wasp is once more ready to face its world."

Floating Steel. Will solid steel float in water? Steel will float if it be so light in weight as not to rupture the surface tension of the liquid. Thus with a little care a fine sewing needle can be made to float on the surface of still water, especially if it is drawn through the hair a time if it is drawn through the hair a time for two, as the minute trace of oil so-imparted enables it to resist the wet-ting action of the water. It must be understood that liquids, although they have infinitely less co-hesive attraction than solids, are not absolutely devoid of this. If there were no cobesion at all between the particles neither drops nor bubbles would be possible.
