

COMMERCIAL

MUSEUM

Mr. John J. MacFarlane, Librarian of the Philadelphia Commercial Museum last night addressed the teachers of the county and some others in the High School auditorium on the subject of Japan, dwelling principally on the products of that country. The object of the address was to interest the educators of the county in the Philadelphia Commercial Museum and its proposition to furnish free to the schools of the Commonwealth a collection of the wide range of exhibits that make up the museum.

Dr. W. P. Wilson of Philadelphia is a director of the Commercial Museum and a leading spirit of the enterprise, which has as its object the advancement of popular education along the line of commerce. The museum was first fostered by the City of Philadelphia, but during the last session of the Legislature an appropriation of $25,000 was made by the State to enlarge the museum's scope of usefulness and to make its exhibits available to all the schools of the State. In this way will be met the need for education in regard to commercial products, the better fitting children of today for the duties that will come to them later in life as the future merchants and manufacturers of this country.

The Commercial Museum has already some seven hundred collections on in the State, each collection comprising about four hundred exhibits, three hundred being actual products and one hundred photographs. Pretty nearly the whole world is represented in the collection with the exception of the European countries, which furnish but few specimens.

Three hundred collections are packed up at the museum and may be had by the schools for the asking, all that is required being that the local member of the Legislature endorse the application and the school district receiving the collection agree at its own expense to provide suitable cases for the exhibits.

The cases, it is true, form an item of cost which in some instances may deter the school authorities from availing themselves of the collection. Mr. MacFarlane, yesterday stated that to display the collection to the best advantage it would require six shelves, each thirty feet long. At some places less space is occupied by packing the photographs in a drawer and placing on shelves only the actual products. Where the cost is not a factor the want of available space for the collection sometimes stands in the way. The collection will add immensely to the interest in the study of geography and it is likely that in view of all the circumstances neither of the above objections will be permitted to weigh too heavily.

Mr. MacFarlane's address last night proved very interesting. As above stated he restricted himself wholly to Japan, which sufficed as a specimen of the whole. Among the immense number of exhibits from the land of the Mikado were the following of special interest: Silk eggs, cocoon, moth, mulberry leaf, raw silk, wild silk, of which pongee is made; also tea, method of firing and other processes necessary for preparing the article; rice plant, rice unhusked, also husked—polished and cleaned for market. There were photographs illustrating Japanese customs, showing the various kinds of Japanese shoes, Japanese carpenters planing backwards, Jirikisha or carrying chair and man and donkey going to market in which the harness and the shoes of both man and donkey are made of rice straw.

W. L. McClure Treasurer. At the last meeting of the Soldiers' Monument Committee Mr. J. H. Gosser tendered his resignation as Treasurer of the monument fund assigning as a reason the fact that every bit of his time is occupied in looking after his varied interests. The fact is well known that Mr. Gosser is one of our busiest as well as most enterprising citizens. His excuse was regarded as a good one and his resignation was accepted.

At the same meeting Mr. W. L. McClure, Cashier of the First National Bank, was elected Treasurer of the Soldiers' Monument fund and yesterday the formal transfer of money was made. There is no intention to permit the work of soliciting to lag but every effort will be put forth to raise the money needed for a monument before spring.

The next phase of the work will be the collecting of money already subscribed and for this purpose the solicitors will during the next few days make another trip over the territory canvassed.

Girls Not Anxious to Marry. That Stroudsburg girls are having too good a time to think of marrying is given out as a reason why the thirty-odd young men, members of the United States association of Methodist church there are still single. Monday evening was the time set by the Rev. Dr. Bennett, pastor of the church, to marry the young men free of charge, but no application was made.

Dr. Bennett's church is full of marriageable men, and he wants to see them mated, believing that it will increase their interest in the church. The men appear willing, but, as one put it, "the girls appear to be in no hurry to become hitched to serious church members."

Sunbury's Oldest House. Sunbury antiquarians have agreed that a house on Third street jointly occupied by M. L. Hendrick and B. F. Bright is the oldest structure now standing in that borough. The original deed for the lot bears the signature of John Penn and the date of February 4, 1775, the fifteenth year of the reign of George the Third. The consideration was an annual rental of seven shillings, and one of the conditions was the erecting of a dwelling twenty feet square within three years.

All horses should be well shod and should not be allowed to stand on the street without being blanketed.

SUNBURIAN SWINDLED

Repeated exposures have failed to be a safeguard and no less than a hundred Sunbury residents have again been victimized by a fake magazine subscription solicitor.

For some time the Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, who publish the Saturday Evening Post and the Ladies' Home Journal have offered free scholarships at any of the leading institutions of learning to the persons securing the greatest number of subscriptions to the journals. A few weeks ago a dapper young man giving the name of C. A. Roberts came to Sunbury and made a canvass for subscriptions to the Saturday Evening Post on the pretext that he was trying to win a free scholarship. The regular price of the publication is $1.75 a year, but by special arrangement he claimed to have with the company he offered it at $1.25 a year and as an inducement for payment in advance he would give the choice of a large and selected list of standard books.

From the reports coming in he was successful in landing over a hundred victims. Not receiving the premiums within a reasonable length of time one of the number wrote to the Curtis Publishing Company and this week received a reply that the man was an impostor and that they would pay a reward of $25 for any information leading to the arrest and conviction of the man.

Uniforms Selected.

Captain John C. Groome, who has been spending many months in organizing the State constabulary, has decided upon the uniform which the members of the organization are to wear.

It is to be a combination of the military dress and the police uniform, to be made of a dark gray whipcord. It will consist of a blouse, riding trousers, black pigskin puttees, black boots, black strap leathers and black helmet, with black leather chin strap. The troop letter and number will appear in nickel on the standing collar. On the buttons will be the state coat of arms. The leather belt will contain sockets on the left side for twelve cartridges, and holster on the right for revolver. For bad weather a long skirt riding overcoat of dark gray Melton cloth has been devised.

Captain Groome expects to appoint this week from among the candidates who passed the physical and civil service examinations last month the men who will make up the four troops.

LeRoy Winner Entertains.

LeRoy Winner entertained a number of friends at his home on Cherry street Tuesday evening. Those present were: Misses Coletta McGovern, Margaret Lovett, Katherine Fry, Bertha Kessler, Emma Molter, Mae Fox, Helen Kapp, Edna Hughes, Florine Henry, Jennie Gibson, Mary VonBloh, Mary Paugh, Olive Miller, Charlotte McClelland, Messrs. Roy Fox, Byron Stickle, Howard Eggett, Wilbur Gibson, Harris Reminger, Earl McClelland, James Redding, Harry Stickle, John Boettinger and John Winner.

Second of Star Course.

The second entertainment in the Y. M. C. A. course will be given in the Association Hall on Friday evening by Carmen's Italian Boys and Elbert Poland, humorist. Wherever these boys have appeared they have given the very best of satisfaction. Their selections are of a high order and are sure to please all fortunate enough to hear them. There are a few good seats left and can be obtained at the Association office.

HYDRANT WATER TO BE ANALYZED

Dr. C. Shultz, Secretary of the local Board of Health, is preparing to send a sample of our river water to the Philadelphia Laboratory for analysis. The low stage of the river during a month or so past together with the pollution of the stream by Asylum sewage and the prevalence of typhoid fever at Berwick and other points above us has had the effect of making many people solicitous as to the purity of our water supply. The Board of Health has confidence in the generally efficacy of our filter plant and regardless of the condition of the river have doubts whether bacteria or impurity in any form will be found in our hydrant water. To quiet all fears, however, they have decided to test the matter and will procure an analysis as above related.

There was a nine foot flood on the rising yesterday and the water was still rising. Naturally, the immense volume of swiftly flowing water is relatively free from sewage or any trace of pollution from infected towns and the river at present one would think would be the last place to look for bacteria whatever its condition may be in other respects.

Dr. Shultz yesterday stated that he would take the water to be analyzed from the reservoir at the filter plant, where in his opinion conditions are about the same as existed before the rise in the river. It will be some days before a report as to the purity of the water will be received. Meanwhile with the river at its present stage the public will rest with a feeling of comparative security, although where boiling the water has been practiced, it would not be inadvisable to continue the precaution.

Birthday Party.

Miss Florence Reich entertained a party from this city at her home in Mahoning township, Saturday evening in honor of her mother's birthday. Notwithstanding the inclement weather the occasion was a most delightful one.

Those present were: Clarence Montague, of Millville, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keifer, son Arthur and daughter Estella, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Everett and son Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCormick, son George and daughter Lydia, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Haney, Misses Bessie and Viola Clayton, Cameron Reich and Charles Hunter.

GRAND JURY FINISHES WORK

With the rendering of a verdict in a Shamokin assault and battery case the regular term of criminal court of Northumberland county of the year came to an end shortly before noon yesterday.

The Grand Jury acted on thirty-eight cases, returning twenty-two true bills and ignoring the remainder. With the exception of the spouting and a part of the yard wall they reported finding the county prison in good shape and complimented Warden Hancock on his management.

Before adjournment a number of attorneys from different parts of the county appeared before the body and strongly appealed for their consideration to the County Commissioners for the enlargement of the Court House. After weighing the matter carefully they embodied in their report a clause to this effect, stating that they truly believed that it was much needed.

State College Strike Settled.

The students' strike at State College, which has caused so much excitement and conjecture as to the outcome, was settled yesterday and the men will all start on their regular college work this morning.

It was entirely through the intervention of the Trustees of the college that a settlement was made possible. The Faculty has all through the trouble shown but little disposition to treat with the students on the subject of their grievances. Yesterday morning the Trustees of the institution met the whole matter was thoroughly aired, both members of the Board of Trustees and of the student body making speeches on the subject. The meeting ended by the appointment of a committee of three students who were to meet with a committee from the Trustees and Faculty, the student committee to have full power to settle the strike if they saw fit to do so.

The three convened meeting took place yesterday afternoon and lasted until midnight. The students gained a number of concessions among them being that no student would be suspended for participating in the strike; that cuts taken on holidays should not count as excess cuts; that on Thanksgiving vacations in the future the vacation will either last over until Monday or be but one day long; and that no cuts be given for absence during the strike.

The "Winter Excursion Book." Just issued by the Passenger Department of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, is one of the finest resort books ever gotten out by any railroad company. It is a comprehensive manual of the leading winter resorts of the entire United States, containing one hundred and sixty-eight pages of interesting reading matter, and profusely illustrated with half-tone engravings. One may obtain full information in reference to wintering places, routes and rates tereto. The book is bound in an artistic cover, ornate in design and harmonious in color. This valuable work may be obtained free of charge at the principal ticket offices of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, or will be sent, postpaid, upon application to Geo. W. Boyd, General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

Car Load of Potatoes.

In view of the fact that the potato crop this year was below the average yield, Grocerman Owen has brought from New York State a car load of fine potatoes that he intends to dispose of in this vicinity. The car contains about 600 bushels.

BRIDGE APPROACH ON SOUTH SIDE

The case against the Commissioners of Northumberland county for maintaining a nuisance in connection with the approach to the bridge on the South Side has been settled and peace once more reigns between the Supervisors of Geartown township and the Board of County Commissioners. The temporary approach is to be removed until January 1st, when the new board assumes control.

The approach at the South Side has been the source of much contention ever since the completion of the bridge. The approach was declared a county improvement by Judge Savage, but the Commissioners refused to enter upon the work and the roadway at that end of the bridge lay in an unfinished state all summer and autumn.

On September 27th the County Commissioners—Messrs. John Beck, George W. Raudenbush and Allen W. Cooner—who refused to carry on the work, were returned to Court by Constable Bruce McCracken, who requested that they be indicted and tried on the charge of maintaining a nuisance at South Danville, of negligence and of failure to do their duty. On the strength of this return Judge Auten directed the District Attorney to present a bill to the Grand Jury.

On September 28th the County Commissioners appealed the order of Judge Savage making the bridge approach a county improvement and took the matter to the Supreme Court. On September 29th a writ was returned by the Grand Jury. The September term of court, however, adjourned on that day and the case was carried over to December court, when it was understood it would come up for trial, unless in the interim the County Commissioners proceeded to build the approach.

A couple of weeks ago the Commissioners' fixed up the approach temporarily, expending probably one hundred dollars on the work. Retaining walls were not built and no one could claim that the improvement was anything like what was implied by the Court's order.

Accordingly when December court convened in Northumberland county, Monday, Messrs. Bayler and Roberts, Supervisors of Geartown township, accompanied by eight witnesses went down to Sunbury prepared to push the prosecution. As above stated, however, the case did not come to trial. The County Commissioners made a proposition looking to settlement and had a long talk with the Court. The pending appeal of Judge Savage's order probably helped to influence matters a little; at all events a settlement was agreed upon. The Supervisors were determined to obtain the best terms possible for the township and would agree to nothing less than that the County Commissioners should pay the work done on the approach and all the costs of the case. These terms were reluctantly accepted to which makes Geartown township victor at the present stage of the game.

Judge Savidge stated that when the County Commissioners enter upon office in January, he will accompany them to South Danville to look carefully over the ground and that he will endeavor to have a suitable approach built, one that will meet the demands of traffic and conform in appearance with the general structure.

State Will Regulate Autos.

State Highway Commissioner Hunter has organized the automobile division, created by an act passed by the last Legislature, and is now prepared to furnish licenses to operate motor vehicles and the necessary number tags.

The law creating this division in the State Highway Department, which becomes effective on January 1st, prohibits the operation within the borders of Pennsylvania of motor vehicles, unless the operator shall have procured a license.

H. M. Cotschall, a former member of the House of Representatives from Crawford county, has been placed in charge of this division. Miss Sara Weaver, of Harrisburg, has been appointed clerk.

Commissioner Hunter has established regulations for the operators of motor vehicles, which he is now having printed for the information of such persons. These regulations contain the more important features of the Automobile Act of 1905, which Deputy Attorney General Fleitz has decided to supersede and repeal the act of 1902.

New A. M. E. Pastor.

Rev. S. C. Honesty, the newly appointed pastor of the A. M. E. church in this city, left yesterday after making his first official visit to Danville. Rev. Honesty has received an appointment to the circuit taking in Danville, Milton and Maucy, and will be in this city every third Sunday.

Fire Loss Adjusted.

Chandee Eves and Son, agents for the Millville Mutual Fire Insurance Company, have made the adjustment of the loss on the J. W. Robinson barn in Valley township. The loss of the tenant on the farm, J. S. Tanner, was about half covered by insurance and upon the barn there will be paid an insurance of $500.

Fire at Washingtonville.

The eventer of life at Washingtonville was ruffled Monday by two fires, one of which was quite serious and caused a great flurry of excitement in the little borough. The fire occurred in the frame dwelling house on Church street owned by Mrs. Sarah Cromley and occupied by Watson Diehl and family. Mr. Diehl discovered the fire about 8 o'clock in the morning. It was located between the kitchen ceiling and the floor of the room above, having been caused by the flue of the kitchen stove. The fire had already gained a considerable headway and was burning fiercely when discovered.

Mr. Diehl immediately gave the alarm and a bucket brigade was quickly formed. It was impossible to get at the fire until a considerable portion of the ceiling and floor above had been removed. This accomplished the fire was soon extinguished. The loss is estimated at $50.

MORBIDITY STATISTICS

The new law pertaining to Morbidity Statistics went into effect on November 1st. Under its working the office of Dr. C. Shultz, Secretary of the local Board of Health, becomes the repository of a vast array of classified facts respecting the health of the community. The Secretary's report for the last period shows two cases of erysipelas, four cases of diphtheria, nine cases of typhoid fever, one case of chicken pox, one case of pneumonia.

The law provides that as soon as a case regarded as communicable breaks out the attending physician must at once report to the Secretary of the local Board of Health, setting forth along with the nature of the disease the name of the patient, occupation, country nativity, age, sex, color, address, county, date of onset, name of household, occupation of household, number of school children and school. To facilitate the transmission of this information blank postal cards furnished by the municipality are provided, so that all the busy physician has to do is to fill in the data required and mail the card. At the expiration of every seven days the Secretary of the Board of Health in turn makes his report to the State Department of Health, also using specially prepared blanks, which greatly facilitate the work.

The list of diseases considered communicable to be reported is a very large one. The more familiar diseases on the list are cerebro-spinal meningitis, chicken pox, cholera, diphtheria, dysentery, erysipelas, German measles, glanders, hydrophobia, malarial fever, measles, mumps, pneumonia, scarlet fever, small pox, tetanus, tuberculosis, typhoid fever, typhus fever and whooping cough.

One of the objects accomplished by the new law as the result of the very full information sent in, will be to enable the State Department of Health not only to locate every epidemic but to trace the disease to its origin and to note its spread and development. The regular reports sent in to the State Department, too, when printed in the newspapers as they ought to be, will serve to keep the people posted on the state of the public health and quiet many exaggerated and alarming rumors as to the prevalence of disease.

TEACHERS ARE NOT HAMPERED

State Health Commissioner Dixon was asked what effect the opinion of Attorney General Carson, that parents cannot be fined under the compulsory attendance law in cases where the children had been debarred from school for not being successfully vaccinated, would have upon the efforts the Health Department are making to have the vaccination law enforced throughout the schools of the State.

"I do not see," the Commissioner replied, "that it should have any effect whatever, as the Attorney General does not in any way question the duty of the teachers to obey the law of the Commonwealth and that is all we have ever asked them to do."

"That brings up a point that I would like to make plain. The teachers in charge of schools in Pennsylvania are not required to refuse admission to children until they are vaccinated, because the Department of Health has so ordained. It is the law of the Commonwealth, a law passed for the protection of the public health. The health of the people has been entrusted to this Department, I propose to see to it that the Health law is carried out."

"In this determination I have the co-operation of hundreds of local boards of health throughout the State, school directors and the teachers themselves. Of course, there has been opposition. This was to be expected. In some cases school directors themselves have opposed the enforcement of the law and have gone so far as to instruct their teachers to admit children regardless of whether they had been vaccinated. In debarred the teaching have written to this department fully appreciating the difficult position that this places the teacher in. Parents and school directors combine to influence such a teacher to become a lawbreaker. The only answer I could give has been to quote the law."

FOR JUVENILE EYES.

When the merchant robs the treasure house of its wonderful jungle animals, its marvelous mechanical toys, its miniature toys, its miniature men and women that walk and talk, and places them on display behind big plate glass windows, he has opened the portals of Wonderland to the little men and women whose nightly visions are filled with galloping reindeers drawing a sled containing a portly old gentleman with a toy filled sack on his back. He has taken Young America by the hand and led him into the vestibule of the house of mysteries, where all the toys that delight the childish heart are kept in heaping piles.

There are countless boys and girls in this town whose little hearts will yearn to possess just one of these toys, whose only yuletide happiness will be to go with father or mother on Saturday night or Sunday afternoon for a walk through the shopping district, with its big buildings that make timid little souls afraid. And these snuggly youngsters will flatten their noses against the window panes and with hungry eyes devour the bewildering array of toys arranged in symmetrical profusion before them. All the longing for their ardent natures will surge through their little bodies, but the joys of being able to behold these wonderful things will linger in their memories and make brighter the gloomy days that travel in unbroken succession for them.

Every merchant should endeavor to make the best possible window display of his wares, not merely from the sordid standpoint of commercialism, but with the laudable desire to please the fancy of the beholder and give to the little ones at least a glimpse of many wonderful things that the genius of the artist has wrought for the amusement and delight of the little men and women of today.

No merchant should cover his display windows on Sunday with curtains. Many poor children will have no opportunity to view the toys on display. It isn't much of a boon to display, but such as it is should be given willingly, freely, in the thought and belief that it may bring a momentary happiness to some poor little soul that is starving for the joys and toys of childhood, for the joys and toys of youth—that looks, longs, and hopes, but always and ever holds out an empty hand.

RUNAWAY ON SOUTH SIDE

The horse belonging to the Baltimore Fruit Company, whose store is on Mill street, ran away at South Danville Saturday morning and made a wreck of the wagon.

The vehicle was a covered one of the usual sort used for delivery purposes. It was being driven by a boy connected with the concern, who was returning from the Pennsylvania station. Just as the wagon turned the corner at Peter Burger's the trolley car came down off the bridge. The horse at once became unmanageable.

The motorman as soon as possible brought the car to a stop and did what he could to avert an accident. The boy, however, was unable to hold the horse and the latter made a dash for the bridge. At the foot of the approach the wagon upset and the latter with the boy inside rolled top first down against the fence.

It was a most perilous position for the driver, but fortunately as soon as the upset occurred the horse stopped short. As it was, however, the boy's foot became entangled in the mix-up in such a way as to tear the shoe from his foot, severing the leather from toe to heel just above the sole.

The top of the wagon was a total wreck. The owner estimates his loss at fifteen dollars.
