A PITTIABLE CONDITION

THE PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER, a Republican organ of Pennsylvania, editorially confesses its fears and apprehensions...

"Elections held on Monday in Maine show striking Democratic gains. Several cities which had been recognized as Republican strongholds were captured by the opposition...

"The argument court set for Thursday, March 8, was called off by Judge Staples and the same will not be held until a new Judge is appointed.

The slay and wily editor of this clever little article aspires to impress rural folk upon the better thinking ones of a turning back into the old rut and supporting the machine with all its graft and rottenness...

It's had enough to know of the existence of some of the commendable actions and results of what the machines have been doing all over the country...

NOT YET APPOINTED.

Until going to press (Thursday afternoon) no word has been received in this city of the action of Governor Pennypacker in appointing a President Judge...

Who the appointee will be we dare not venture to guess, but the one decided upon will unquestionably proudly accept the appointment, and serve to the very best of his ability...

AGENTS for calendars for 1907 are thickly circulating themselves, showing that which requires a hustler even in this line of business...

—On Thursday a deal was consummated at Pittsburgh by which the street railways, of that city and its natural and artificial gas supplies were transferred to new owners.

—CHICAGO is fast gaining the reputation of being the worst city on the continent, so far as police protection is concerned...

—MARCH is here, but that is no indication that the winter is over. Since the first of the spring months has come in, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado and some of the adjacent States have been undergoing full mid-winter experiences...

His Education Wasn't Complete. No more courteous judge ever presided at a trial than the venerable former justice of the New York court...

What a wonderful showing the Pennsylvania Railroad makes on the business and receipts of the system during the first of the season of the line east of Pittsburgh...

vestments and rentals for equipments, and deducting rentals paid-leased lines and interest on bonds, the net income of the company reached a total of $30,102,516.

—WHILE there are larger cities in the United States than Philadelphia, we question whether either New York or Chicago houses its citizens as well. These two latter named cities, no doubt, build more costly buildings...
