SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST

Everyone expresses pleasure that the business of coal mining is to proceed without interruption; at least that of anthracite coal mining; it is too much to expect that bituminous mining will be undisturbed for any length of time, as it does not seem to be the "nature of the beast." It may be expected, however, that all the bituminous coal will be mined ere long that is wanted at fair prices.

The trouble with this industry usually is that there is not enough demand to keep the mines going; and for years past the roads have been trying to limit the production in order that it may not swamp the demand. Unhappily their efforts have always been directed to choking off the small consumer for the benefit of the big producers, in whose business railroad officials quite often were directly interested; wherefore they have come into bad repute and are finding themselves compelled to make damaging admissions before examining committees. And they seem to have an idea of turning over a new leaf and becoming sufficiently virtuous to let every producer have a fair chance to get his coal to market. If they do this at any time before the millennium, they will do well; but no doubt they will let a flood of coal on the market that it can not dispose of at remunerative prices; the result being the survival of the fittest, which will be the producer of the best fuel at the lowest cost.

This condition of things we need not expect to come to pass immediately; however it be the natural course of the market.

STUDY YOUR MAN.

Not often is it the privilege of any political party to have such a list of candidates to select from as is the present good fortune of the Democrats in this county and districts, and the time is soon at hand when we shall exercise our good judgment in selecting the best men for our candidates for next fall's election. If the voters are discreet, selecting the most honorable and ablest, the campaign next fall will result in a complete and glorious victory for our party and an advancement and betterment to the general public.

It would be well for each honest voter to study, learn and select his candidate—just as he would if he were going to employ a man for a similar task and the same length of time to do him personal good and advance his interests. The petty politician is to be avoided. He is selfish; always coveting for individual gain and carelessness for the public.

Candidates are getting busy, each expecting the nomination.

GLAD IF THEY RETURN.

It is too bad. We Americans, by our disapproval of the course of Maxim Gorky, have dreadfully offended the sensibilities of the anarchists and socialists of Russia. They cannot realize that we should object to their representative's morals and those of his female companion. The Russian authors have also taken up the defense of the rejected Gorky. They held a meeting to discuss the situation, and their feelings found vent in the passage of the following resolution:

The American authors represented by Mark Twain have offended Russian authors in the person of Maxim Gorky, and Russian womanhood, in the person of Mme. Andreeva, by interfering with their private affairs. We Russian authors are amazed at the disregard of the principles of privacy recognized by every civilized country, and hereby express our deep indignation.

Of course, the American people are extremely sorry that they have given such deep cause of offense to the authors of Russia, but they are even more surprised than sorry that the literary guild of Russia should take up and defend the kind of manhood and womanhood represented by the two of our countrymen who have so disgraced us. We can only hope their disgust at our conduct will reach such a pitch that no more cattle of their class will visit us. They would not improve our citizenship, and our country has no use for them. We would be only too glad to hear that Mr. Gorky and Mme. Andreeva have returned to their native land disgusted at their treatment.

OUR UNGRACIOUS PRESIDENT.

The president's message telling about foreign offers of aid to the California sufferers by earthquake and fire, and why he refused them, has escaped general attention in the presence of his other message of far greater moment, but it is just as well that the world is too busy to notice, for it does not do him proud. In fact, it adds to the long record of ungracious and harsh things said and done by our impulsive chief executive.

Over and over again the United States has assisted the people of other nations when in distress. Now, when with generous impulse they would return the kindness, it was an ungracious thing for our president to take it upon himself to say no, even though he added thank you. He might at least, have referred these kindly offers to Congress for further thanks and final action.

Of course, this great and rich nation is able to take care of its own distressed, but that is not the question. A rich man who aids his neighbors in distress and wins their gratitude, would be little thought of if he should proudly refuse the shelter of their humble homes when driven from his own by fire, or otherwise the victim of misfortune. Are we, who have so generously aided others, too proud to accept help from them?

A Grave Charge.

We sincerely hope that there is no foundation in fact for the charge inferentially made by Senator Tillman of South Carolina to the effect that President Roosevelt has been rewarding men with public office for participation in a disgraceful scene in the White House that occurred some weeks ago. In other words the Senator from South Carolina introduced a resolution in the body of which he is a conspicuous member, the other day, reciting the particulars of the brutal arrest of a woman in the President's waiting room and asking for a Congressional inquiry to ascertain whether participants in that affair "have since received recognition by the appointment of near relatives to office."

Unhappily there are some grounds for suspicion in the matter. It is known that the instigator of the crime against common decency was Benjamin F. Barnes, Assistant Secretary to the President who has since been appointed Postmaster of Washington, though he is not an "inhabitant" of the city in a legal sense, and there is no other conceivable reason for his promotion. It is now asserted that sons of Major Sylvester and Elmer E. Payne, who took a conspicuous part in the outrage have been appointed as cadets to West Point for the same reason. Senator Tillman wants a thorough investigation of the matter with the view no doubt of exculpating the President from the charge and removing the suspicion.

If the President is thus misusing the patronage of his great office he ought to be exposed. He has offended grievously, in this particular in the past, for it is notorious that four years ago he allowed the late Senator Quay to openly trade official commissions for votes in the convention that nominated Pennypacker for Governor. It is equally well known that he freely offered official patronage for votes in Congress against a Congressional investigation of the postal scandals two years ago. But it is inconceivable that he would prostitute the public service to the base use which Senator Tillman's resolution implies.

The Milton Dental Association has been guilty of a deed of charity that everybody should know. It has agreed to perform work for the poor children of the town without cost devoting all day Friday of each week to the good cause. The boys and girls must be recommended by the several school teachers of the town and a blank has been printed which reads "Mr. of — street, is recommended to the Milton Dental Association for treatment, Miss —, teacher." This has the endorsement of Prof. Wilson, the Board of Control, the teachers, and the work will be done in the same style as is done for pay by the more fortunate ones. For this month Dr. Krumrine will officiate and in turn of a month each they will alternate until the doctor again is called upon to do good.

Do you notice, Comrade Gorky, object when they consider worthy applicants to their benevolence?

Highly Complimentary.

Hon. John G. Harman, candidate for President Judge of this District is in receipt of the following highly complimentary letter from State Treasurer Berry:

Chester, Pa., April 13, 1906.
John G. Harman, Esq.,
Bloomsburg, Pa.

MY DEAR SIR:
I learn that a Judge is to be elected in your District, and I sincerely trust that you will be elected. This would be a fitting recognition of your ability as a lawyer, and reward for your splendid service to your State and to your party.

Very truly yours,
WILLIAM H. BERRY.

The Judgeship.

Interest in the coming primaries now centers in the judge contest. The question, who shall preside over our courts for the next ten years, will be determined by the Democratic voters of this judicial district; and their verdict will be given on the second day of June by the Democracy of Montour county, and by the Democracy of the county at their primaries on the 9th day of the same month.

But two candidates are before the people for this office, Judge Herring and John G. Harman, Esq. One of them will be the choice of the party to be voted for at the general election, and it is safe to say whichever it will be triumphantly elected.

In order that Democrats may act wisely in making choice of their candidate it will be necessary, first, to understand that the office of a judge is to interpret law, and not to make law. In order to interpret the law correctly it is necessary that a judge should be thoroughly grounded in the principles of the law, and that he possess a broad and comprehensive knowledge of the statutes and the decisions of the courts. To these must be added wide experience in actual practice. If a candidate falls short of the above requirements, he should not be considered seriously by Democrats as a candidate.

In order that a judge may interpret the law correctly, and thereby fill his position with ability, he must of necessity have had severe mental training in youth and early manhood. It is safe to say that a man who has had four years of mental discipline in college and who has had more than twenty years of actual practice in all the courts as a lawyer, supplemented by eight months experience on the bench, is better fitted to interpret law than a man eleven years his junior, who has had neither a college training nor an extensive practice in the civil courts.

The truth of the above conclusion will not be questioned by people who wish to act for the best interest of the general public and for the welfare of our party.

That Grant Herring has all the qualifications necessary to make an excellent judge cannot be gainsaid. No one who has come in contact with him professionally or otherwise will question it. He has a judicial mind, and his great knowledge of the law and his familiarity with the practice of the courts—say nothing of his strong personality—make him an ideal candidate, and if elected to the bench he will rank with Conyngham, Woodward and other earlier judges of this district.

We know there are those who think it would be better policy to go outside the district for a candidate; and for proof of their position point to Ellwell and his predecessors. No person questions these men's eminent ability and fitness, but it would be unjust and unfair to say that we did not have in those times lawyers in this district who were their equals in learning and integrity. We need only mention the names of Conly, Baldy, Buckalew, Clark and Jackson to prove our assertion.

In those days a salary of $2,000.00 did not appeal to all strong lawyers to give the bar for the bench. Now the salary is commensurate with the qualifications necessary to make an excellent judge cannot be gainsaid. No one who has come in contact with him professionally or otherwise will question it. He has a judicial mind, and his great knowledge of the law and his familiarity with the practice of the courts—say nothing of his strong personality—make him an ideal candidate, and if elected to the bench he will rank with Conyngham, Woodward and other earlier judges of this district.

—THERE is no doubt that J. G. MCHENRY, of Columbia county, will be the Democratic nominee for Congress in this district and Dr. Samuel of Mt. Carmel, will receive the Republican nomination. There is also no question of the result. Mr. McHenry will be elected by a big majority in the district—Northumberland Democrat, Sunbury Pa.

—AN Ohio man has signed a pledge not to take another drink until thirty days after the resurrection. The joke will be on him if the Prohibitionists succeed in putting the booze factories out of business by that time.

—THE Republicans in this county and districts are in a deep quandary. There are too many good Democrats announced, and they are well aware that the best will be selected, and their cause will be N. —IN these days of strife between two great political parties we must remember that after all we are just a band of brothers here on earth, traveling from the cradle to the grave. We live side by side, our children attending the same schools and after the smoke of the battle has cleared away, we will still be friends and neighbors. Let the bitter thing go unsaid. At best, life is short, and we get out of it a full measure of sorrow. Let us in our little borough live as one big, good natural family.

—THE coal operators assert that one reason why the miners are not prosperous is because they drink too much intoxicating stuff. It is pointed out that in Shenandoah there is a saloon to every 16 voters, in Mahanoy City one to every 15 voters. Instances like this could be multiplied all over the coal field, and in the town of New Philadelphia there is a saloon to every six voters. Five hundred thousand barrels of beer were brewed in Luzerne county last year, and enough imported to make up for the exports so that the entire half-million barrels were consumed at home. These are figures that can't be got away from.

—WEDNESDAY evening our front porch was the scene of a very deplorable sight. A woman, beyond the age of middle-life, possibly the mother of a family, was sitting on the porch, and she was drinking beer. The influence of strong drink to madden further. Children, young ladies

A Big Purchase.

More Wires on Peoples' Line.
The People's Telephone company, of Strawberry Ridge, is making arrangements to string another pair of wires on their line from Strawberry Ridge to Swenoda. This is made necessary because there are now on the one pair of wires 100 subscribers, which is a heavy load for the poles for the extra wires.
