Two desperate prisoners sentenced to the eastern penitentiary at last week's session of Columbia county court broke out of the Bloomsbury jaff sometime between seven o'clock Tuesday worning. The men were Fred Conner, who received a sentence of three years together with $500 fine for complicity in the robbing of the station agent at Lime Ridge; and Charles Becker, sentenced to 21 months in the penitentiary for an attempted ravish of a telephone operator on the road between Mt. Carmel and Centralia.

These two men together with dispersion of the state week were to be taken to Pullyladelphia next Monday by Sheriff Black. These two men together with the prisoners were locked in their cells for the night, nothing unsual was noticed by Turnkey Lead Black, brother of Sheriff Black, and be unlocked the cells yesterday morning at seven o'clock, he did not look particularly into the cell which was cupied jointly by Becker and Conner. When the two did not appear for breakfast, investigation was made, and the cell found to be emply, with a large hole in the wall, and stones scatered about the floor standing as an aute explanation of the mens' absence.

tered about the floor standing as a sunte explanation of the mens; absence.

The outer wall of the jail is two feet thick, while the ceiling of the cell is made of steel. In the cell, two feet from the ceiling, is a small iron-framed window. The prisoners had removed several stones above the window, some of the stones being fifteen inches square and six inches thick. The jail wall, being several stones in thickness, the hole did not penetrate it, but stones were so removed as to form a burrow or passage up through the wall around the edge of the steel ceiling, the men thus crawling from the cell to the attic above. Passing along the attic to a point where they knew the high wall around the jail yard joined the building, they cut a loole through the roof with a knife and saw, and gaining the roof, it was an easy matter to crawl to the top of the jail yard wall. From the top of the jail yard wall. From the top of the jail yard wall. From the top of blankets from their cots. In the cell were found a large flat chisel, and a marrow file blade ten inches long. The latter had a wire twisted about one end for a landle. A couple of the jail table forks were also found here. With these implements the stones had evidently been removed.

Just when they made their escape is not known. As far as could be learned, no one heard the men in their work, either removing the stones in their cell, or boring through the root which was covered with slate.

The escaped men were in Rupert yesterday morning shortly after seven o'clock, but where they went from that point is not yet ascertained. A boy passing the jail in the early morning saw two men of their description hurrying down the tow path toward Rupert.

Congress Smashes Records.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The files of the index clerks at the State department show that the first session of the fifty-nint congress has broken all records in the matter of completed legislation up to this moment. Already more than three thousand laws have been enacted which is between seven hundred and eight hundred more than in any preceding session up to the beginning of the month of May. The greater part of this mass of law was made up of bills of a private nature and only about 280 of the total enactments were general laws.

Clarence W. Seidel and Guy Run-yan, two of Washingtonville's best known young men, left yesterday to seek their fortunes in the great West. Mr. Seidel is probably the better known in Danville as he was located here for several years. Mr. Seidel was born and raised in Washingtonville, and was known throughout the county, and liked and admired wherever known.

For some time Mr. Seidel has been engaged in operating a limestone quarry near Washingtonville. He was a member of the Danville Aerie of had no trouble at all—that he just put his hand underneath and the drawer came open.

It is hardly likely that the boy fully realizes the enormity of his offence. He seemed to think that his bold prank at the department store was some thing smart, and he talked freely of other escapades that he had been in. It has been known for some time that there has been a good deal of petty thieving going on about town and nuisance of various sorts committed that are to be attributed to boys. While not shielding himself young Renner told all about the pilfering and other over tacts showing conclusively, as has been suspected, that there is a star performer among the juveniles of which such as Willie Renner is only a pupil.

Justice Oglesby fixed the bail at one hundred dollars, but as no bondsman was produced there seemed to be no other alternative than to remand the boy to the custody of the sheriff. The little fellow had no particular objection to going back to jail, but he seemed to have an idea that he ought to go to a reformatory or a protectorate. He was pleased with the prospects of a trip and thought he ought to start at once. He was not lead to have had the limit of ten years fixed in his mind.

We begin at the wrong end of the proposition. We introduce copious supplies of water into our towns, which we have no provision for getting rid of. What we should do if we were longheaded and farseeing, would be first to build our sewer system with an adequate sewage purification plant, and when that is complete, bring in our abnudant water. Then we could return it pure and limpid to the stream whence we took it, without having it on our conscience that we are sending death and desolation to other communities. PROPOSITION IS GROWING

The proposition to build a road seventy-five feet wide across the State of Pennsylvania, to take in the central counties, and to extend from Philadelphia to Pittsburg, will increase in favor as it is more widely considered. The necessity for such a road is so obvious that there will be little real opposition to it.

Pennsylvania has entered upon an era of modest road building without trenching upon the big surplus in the State treasury. There has been considerable talk of using the reserve in divers public undertakings, for the avowed purposs of dissipating it. At present the State's income appears ample for this work, and if there be no disposition to reduce this income, at the next session of the legislature, assuredly the work could be begun and finished without reducing the surplus or diverting too much of the State's income from ordinary channels.

The advantages of good roads are many and they have been set forth so convincingly for so many years that it would be a waste of time to repeat them. An objection now made to the proposed road across the State is that it is advocated by automobilists and is intended for their respecial use. That can be denied very emphatically. But what if it were true? Would that fact make the roads the less useful to anybody also who might want to use them? The same objection was raised when it was proposed to improve all roads by a division of the costs between the State and the counties and that the people generally are the great beneficiaries and that the auto people are beneficiaries and that the auto people are beneficiaries and that the people generally are the great beneficiaries and that the auto people are beneficiaries and that the proposes that improvement is bound to benefit a whole township, or a whole county, or a whole state, it is a matter of little importance that an individual, or a set of individuals, proposes that improvement and pushes it to consummation.

over twelve millions, a sum nearly sufficient to pay the running expenses of the State government for that period.

LOSS IN WAGES.

"The average duration of a case of typhoid is not less than six weeks. The loss of productive labor during the illness of the individual cannot better estimated than by days' wages. This of course is placing it on the low-stpossible level. No child, however, should be a productive laborer before the age of fifteen. Comparatively few some making due allowance on this score, therefore, if we estimate the number of cases at 2,500.

DO DAYS OF LABOR LOST.

"Averaging the period of illness at forty-two days, and leaving out Sundays, we have then thirty-six days of enforced idleness for each individual, or 90,000 DAYS of work lost to the State. I think it will be conceded that $1.50 per day is not an excessive wage, Hence the money loss would amount to $135,000.

"I have said nothing of the expension to the family on account of loss of time by those who nurse, of doctors bills, of drugs and funeral expenses. Leaving out the family expenses the annual loss to the State from typhoid and the state of the leave which considerable difficulty in stopping the flow of blood, after which extended during the month of January, 1906, by and any was taken to his home on solider hill.
