In pursuance of the requirements of the sequence of the Democratic organization of the State, and the action of the Democraticate Central Committee at its annual meaning the sequence of the State.

Harrisburg, Wednesday, June 27, '06

TOMORROW.

Tomorrow, (Saturday) the Demo-cratic voters of Montour county will practically select our next officials, who will take charge of the different responsible positions of the county and manage the affairs good or bad, as the case may be; they will also de-clare their best convictions for con-gressman, state senator and president indee judge.

It is at the primaries where the greatest attention should centre, and every good citizen ought not leave anything stand between him and this most important event. Not only should it be his duty to vote, but he should urge all others of his friends to do the same, and select well their man, then, and then only can we look for pure government. Again we say study the man and be sure to —Hon. Wm. T. Creasy, of Catawissa, gave us a pleasant call Monday afternoon, and renewed his subscription to the Intelligencer. Mr. Creasy is one of Pennsylvania's leading citizens, and has done much good for the zens, and has done much good for the State in the great reform movement. He is a candidate for the nomination of member of the legislature, which office he has filled so admirably, but many of his friends insist that he acmany of his friends insist that he accept the candidacy of Auditor General.

He is undecided as to which he will aspire to but believes he could do more good as Member, for he is more thoroughly acquainted with the workings of that body. If perfect harm-

By reason of an injury to my ankles sustained in a runaway accident on the 21st inst., it will be impossible for me to make a complete canvas for the judicial nomination. I will be out again in a short time and resume canvassing. If I should fail to see all the voters, I trust the circumstances will be considered. Soliciting your support upon the issue of a fair and impartial court for all the people, I am, ditor of The Record: Editor of The Record:

In the editorial column of your issue of May 19 you state that "The Record" has received a communication from an old-time Democrating dorsing the candidacy of Hon. Grant Herring for the Democratic nomina tion as Judge of the Columbia-Mon-tour district. Your article concludes with the following statement: "Of his (Herring's) faithful Democracy

there can be no question."

Evidently this old-time Democrat is not very familiar with Mr. Herring's past record. Instead of his Democracy being beyond question, the people of Columbia county know that for the ast ten years the faithfulness of his office his Democracy took a sudden turn for the worse. In the first Bryan turn for the worse. In the first Bryan campaign he openly opposed the regular nominee and positively refused to take the stump or co-operate with the Democratic organization, national, state or local. Again in 1900, when Bryan was nominated for the second ime, Mr. Herring declined to assist n any way. When Hon. C. R Buck-dew was defeated for Congress in the seventeenth district by Monroe H. seventeenth district by Monroe H. Kulp, Mr. Herring's sympathies were against the nominee of his party, and he refused to speak or assist in any effort to elect him. The same thing might be said of his attitude toward refused to speak or work in furtherance of the cause of Democracy, or to lend his aid in any way to the advancement of his party interest and his sud-

The Prohibitionists of the State have already named him as their best choice for that office. None are more sincere and active for good than our friend, Mr. Creasy, and we would, therefore, urge that our State Democracy act wisely and by all means endeavor to do the right thing at the right time.

It is the Only Venomous Member of the Feathered Tribe.

Among all the thousands of feathered creatures classified by the trained or nithologists but one, the rpir ndoob, or "bird of death," is known to be venomous. This queer and deadly species of the winged and feathered tribe is a native or the island of Papua, or New Guinea. The bird is described as being about the size of a common tame pigeon, of gray plumage and a tail of extraordinary length, ending in a tip of brilliant scarlet red. It is a marshid and is found to inhabit only the immense stagmant pools adjoining the lakes of the interior of the island. The rpir has a hooked beak as sharp as a cock's spur and hollow. The venom with which it inoculates is distilled in a set of organs which nature has provided for that purpose and which lie in the upper mandible, just below the openings of the nostrils. Under this poison secreting laboratory in the roof of the mouth is a small fleshy knob. When the bird sets its beak in the flesh of a victim this knob receives a pressure which liberates the venom and inoculates the wound. No man, nutive or otherwise, was ever known to recover from a bite inflicted by a rpir n'doob. The suffering in such cases is said to be much more agontzing than in cases of rattlesnake and Gila monster bites.

These are composed of enormous blocks of stone brought with infinite labor from distant quarties over roads and bridges which are hardly capable of sustaining ordinary cart traffic and have always to be specially prepared to prevent the great weights causing their collapse.

their collapse.

The same admiration for the employment of huge blocks of stone is seen in the case of the bridges over the rivers along the coast of South Fuklen, where the stone slabs used in the construction occasionally measure sixty feet in length and are estimated to welch peculy 120 tone, and the bridges.

themselves have a length of 1,000 to 2,000 yards.

In almost all cases, where the buildings are not of solid construction the weight of the blocks employed has placed a strain upon the supports which the architect's skill was not competent to provide against, and with the lapse of time the melancholy spectacle is seen of slabs fallen from their places and of noble and costly structures approaching ruin. In some cases the interdependence of the arches leads to the same result. One notable instance of this occurred during Colonel Gordon's campaign against the Talpings, when to allow of the passage of his small steamers it was necessary to make a gap in a bridge of over twenty arches, and arch after arch collapsed immediately after the passage of his small flotilla. -- London Saturday Review.

daughters? We have both bonored and dishonored our parents, who in their turn had done the same by theirs. Do we melt at the sight of misery? Indeed we do. Do we forget all about it when we have turned the corner? Frequently that is so. Do we expect to be put to open shame at the great day of Judgment? We should be terribly frightened of this did we not cling to the hope that amid the shocking revelations then for the first time made public our little affairs may fail to attract much notice. Judged by the standards of humanl-

Judged by the standards of humanity, few people are either good or bad. "I have not been a great sinner," said the dying Nelson; nor had he—he had only been made a great fool of by a woman. Mankind is all tarred with the same brush, though some who chance to be operated upon when the brush is fresh from the barrel get more than their share of the tar. The biography of a celebrated man usually reminds me of the outside of a coast guardsman's cottage—all far and whitewash.

"After all is said and done, twenty dollars a week is no mean competence for an independent woman," says Miss Harriet Martin, writing in the New Ibea Woman's Magazine for June on "Spending a Twenty Dollar Salary." She goes on to show what may be done and how a girl may live on this amount. Her first girl is starting from the beginning and spends $150 on furniture out of her yearly one thousand and forty dollars, $120 on clothes, $216 on food and gas, $276 on rent, $35 on amusements and $100 on incidentals, and saves the remaining $143. Miss weigh nearly 120 tons, and the bridges saves the remaining $143. Miss themselves have a length of 1,000 to Martin's women readers who them Martin's women readers who them-selves earn twenty dollars a week or more will doubtless differ greatly in opinion as to the fundamental recti tude of this division. As for those who earn less than this amount, they will doubtless declare that here is no roblem at all-that the real crux of the question arises when food, rent, clothing and incidentals have to be met out of a weekly salary of $15, $10, or even less.

IMITATIVE FLOWERS

The Carleature Plant is one of Brasil's Peculiar Growths.

The Brazilian flower known as the running antelope is so called because its white petals have a series of well defined, dark colored lines and dots in which the imagination can readily trace the form of an antelope, with its limbs outstretched and head thrown limbs outstretched and head thrown back, seemingly fleeing for its life. In the "caricature plant" one species has the imitative form on the petals, an-other has it outlined in the ribs and shading of the ribs. This last mentioned curiosity bears a remarkably well executed likeness of the Duke of Wellington and has on that account been named Arthur and His Nose.

Among the orchids the imitative form is entirely different in character, being exhibited in the shape of the flower itself. Some are exact counterfeits of bees, butterflies, moths, etc., while others take upon themselves the form of worms and beetles. Naturalists believe that in the first instance it is nature's tran to lure other bees. it is nature's trap to lure other ! moths and butterflies, but in the those that are exact counterparts of toads, lizards and huge spiders they do not attempt to explain.
