AFTER A THIRTY

YEARS' ABSENCE

Conyngham, June 10, 1906.

To the Intelligencer:—I am spending a few days at this romantic little mountain town, attracted hither after an absence of thirty years for the purpose of renewing associations with old and well nigh forgotten friends. I need not remind you that in such an experience of the purpose of the purp Winkle. It is true, I have not been taking a prolonged nap as was the case with the hero of Sleepy Hollow, but in point of absence I have gone ten years better than old Rip.

Thirty-three years ago, then a boy, of nineteen years, I stood my first examination for a teacher's certificate at this place. I were the covated was not been about the property of the proper this place. I won the coveted paper and at the coal mines a few miles down the valley, taught my first school. I later became teacher of the school at this place, following a line of successful teachers, among whom was I. G. Barber, now a practicing iphyscian of Danville.

Naturally the little town, the cente around which I swung for years dur around which I swung for years dur-ing the most rosy and impressionable period of life has always been a bright and shining spot in my memory and the present visit is one. I have looked fondly forward to for many years. I didn't expect to find the town as I left it thirty years before, but some how all the images that unconscious ly lineared in the state of the how all the images that unconscious-ity lingered in my mind, whether of landmark or individuals, were such as I was familiar with in the olden days. It is something of a shock, therefore, when the name of this one or that one is mentioned that instead of the lively youth or blooming damsel that one has in mind altogether another sort of a person looms up before one—a man with bent shoulders and face begin with bent shoulders and face begin the 4th, grade. On motion Miss Blanch the 4th, grade, on motion Miss Blanch and the grade of the form the 3rd, to is mentioned that instead of the lively woman who probably has a second iy woman who probaby has a second husband or is a grandmother. One's first impression is that a cog has slip-ped somewhere but it does not take long to reason it out. The effect of it all is to make one feel something like a patriarch.

Last evening I dropped into the newspaper office, the proprietor of which was an intimate friend of three decades ago. He was the same earnest companional fellow, but his face had a careworn appearance and his shoulders were bent as under a great burden. He said the newspaper did it all. Then, sad to relate too, the newspaper no longer lives and has a being. My friend started the paper. It served its day and generation and then died, the interest of the paper of the paper.

On June 29th. last F. C. Smink, president of the Reading Iron company, gave for publication the followng statement to a reporter of the Reading Eagle:

"Applications were recently receiv-"Applications were recently received from committees from our rolling mill departments for an advance of fifty cents per ton for puddling, and corresponding advances in all other rolling mill labor. I replied thereto through the superintendents of the different departments, that I was compalled to day wheir recovers eas the ruling for our iron produc justify any advances. The situation is anything but a promising one. It is our intention to close down all our mills next week for the usual su basis now in force, the mills will remain shut down until condition
