There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in deses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Monials. Address: F. J. In private life Mr. Stuart is amiable, honorable, and in all his dealines, between man and man his dealings between man and man perfectly trustworthy. But he was no born to fight, and he won't do it. He born to fight, and he won't do it. He has never done it. He can't do it if he tries. Being as gentie as a refined worvan and utterly devoid of eggresiveness, it would be as reasonable to set a dandy lap-dog against a ferocious bandit as to expect Stuart, in a gubernatorial clash with the public-plunder bosses, to get the best of them. A fresh chapter of pointers from the journals of the Philadelphia select council ought to convince any doubters in this matter.

to convince any dodders in this matter.

It is a fair conclusion that a membe of select council who, throughout th five years preceding his election a mayor, was a chronic dodger from the most important of the votes during the period, is not the warrior wanted if the executive chair at Harrisburg it these times. In this particular the contrast with the life-long, constant active foe of law-defying corporation and menopolles, Lowis Emery, Jr., is as the penny dip to the uncloude

Mr. Stuart's incapacity for dealing with the capitol locters and the whole outfit of public plunderers would be sufficiently demonstrated by his refusing the urgent requests from his fellow-citizens to help them against the gas-works robbers and franchise thieves in Philadelphia, last year, when he was put upon record as declining to permit his name to be used in connection with the non-partisan town meetings of protest against the attempted steals. But there are more unanswerable arraignments than that against him in the select council journals.

No Other Member Dedged So Often.

No Other Member Dodged So Often. No Other Member Dodged So Often.
A general idea of this voluminous indictment was given in many newspapers of the state a week ago. Now let some parts of his record as to select council votes on railroad and street railway bills be inspected by an impatial public. Some of these bills, of themselves, have little interest for the "country," but they were momentous themselves, have little interest for the "country," but they were momentous for the city, and either to the rural or the urban citizen. Stuart's attitude toward them proved him to be, in public matters, "afraid of his own shadow." On May 19, 1887, he dodged the vote on the Rapid Transit readultion, passed by 14 to 12, urging the governor to approve the Rapid Transit measure for which the people of the city were clamoring. He was present but "not voting" when the relative strength of the friends and foes of rapid transit was tested on several occasions in the summer of that year. The details would take too much space in this paper, but any citizen wanting particulars can get them in the public libraries of the city, as well as in the offices of the clerks of councils.

Some votes that he ventured to case apon those rapid transit questions we to place upon the projects restricti which had the effect of delaying for years the relief for the congestion of passenger traffic in Philadelphia. Or a "great railroad day" in the chamber December 13, 1888, as on 25 other vers mportant occasions during his term tuart, according to the official rewas absent. On that particular day there came up the bill for the construc-tion of the Schuylkill River East Side railroad, which, with Stuart not pres-ent, passed finally: and the Germanent, passed finally: and the German-town passenger railway extension meas-ure, which caused a very hot fight while the non-combatant gubernatorial candidate was away. He was present on, February 21, 1889, but is not record-ed as voting on the bill to extend the tracks of the Union Passenger railway on many important streets. Nor did he vote on the next following measure, the Callowhill Street wharf lease, which much the way been made a wholesome the Callowhill Street wharf lease, which might have been made a wholesome precedent for preventing the present disgraceful handicapping of the city's commerce by the railway corporations hogging of the most important wharves along the Delaware.

Impede Grade-Crossing Abolition. But, behold! When these two bills had been disposed of, Stuart was not afraid to vote on the subsequent innocuous measures. At a later session there was in the house at Harrisburg a bill for the abolition of steam rall-road grade crossings. Ever since that year, 1889, that question has grown with intensity of popular indignation over the large number of persons killed annually at those grade crossings. A resolution in select council, on April 18, urged passage of the bill pending in the legislature. Stuart, breaking his rule to be absent or a dodger, when such vital measures came up, voted to refer the resolution to a committee Next he voted for indefinite postponement, which would have killed the resolution, an extremely moderate measures. Impeded Grade-Crossing Abolition. olution, an extremely moderate meas ure, as it merely indorsed the legisla tive bill's declaration that there shoul be no additional grade crossings excep where "avoidance of them was not rea where "avoidance of them was not rea-sonably practicable." Stuart, in three different votes on that day, stubbernly set himself against that modest provi-sion for the prevention of the great loss of life that has since resulted from the corporation control of councils and the legislature. This is one of the most loudly-crying evils in Philadelphia to-day.

THE MUSSULMAN.

The Devotion is intense and He Is Proud of His Religion.

A traveler in Africa writes: "This is a land of religion. The Mussuiman's devotion is intense, ever present and all pervading, being not an accessory tacked on, as it were, to his life to be practiced more or less surreptitiously, but an essential part, wherewith and wherein he lives at all times. A Mussuiman prays openly and publicly, in nowise afraid to be seen. Every man wears his string of beads whereon he records the number of his daily prayers. Notwithstanding its, to us, unniviting appearance, the religion has made and still is making great strides in Africa, and one can only attribute this to the fact that here at last is a religion of which its adherents are in no way ashamed. It offers to the fatthful absolute assurance of salvation and engenders that blind, unhesitating faith therein which is so comforting to the native mind.

"Seeing a crowd of pligpins bound for Mecca patiently—nay, with pleasure—enduring the worst treatment that one could imagine meted out to herds of driven slaves, one envies the excess of faith that can engender such a disposition. Though robbed, slain, starved, herded with pestience and subjected to countless hardships and annoyances, yet year after year they come from far and near thousands and tens of thousands strong on this the most wonderful and far reaching of latter day pligrinnages.

Through many lands and midst many tongues they come, all to meet at this througed center of the maelstrom of the Mussulman faith."

Track They Used.

"In the foot races of the ancient Greeks," says a writer, "the shape of the stadium caused a great difference, the standium caused a great difference, since it was not circular, but long and narrow, with one or both ends semicircular. Consequently the runners had to take a sharp turn at the end of each lap, while except at the turn they were running a straight course. Evidently this turn needed much practice, for the pictures on the old vases show athletes practicing this one part of the race as a kind of drill, taking each movement separately.

"In early times, when all the runners turned round the same post, the turn gave opportunities for foul play, and there are stories of one competitor tripping another at the post or seizing him by the half to prevent his winning. But later, in the shorter distances at least, each runner had his own track and post to turn round, and probably the separate courses were roped off in outh the same way as they are now in sprint races. For the start elaborate arrangements were made and at Olympia the stone slabs are still to be seen, with the grooves at regular intervals that had to be toed at starting "Greek long distance men run in the day. The letter of Frank P. Johnson, of Danville, accepting the state senatorial nomination tendered him by the conferers of the Twenty-fourth district has the true ring, placing him squarely against corporation and ring rule and in favor of pure government and just laws. Corporation Ring Rule.

"On my arrival home I found your communication awaiting me conveying the information that I had been manimously chosen at the senatorial conference of the Prohibition party, held at Milton on the 18th inst., as candidate for senator in this district. To say the least, this was a great surprise to me, and I would be angrateful, indeed, if I did not haten to say that I appreciate the high honor conference, Unanimously Chosen.

ploved a considerable amount of arm action and took very long steps, rising well on to the toes. Then there was the race in armor, an event highly praised by several of the Greek writers as a valuable preparation for war and which is supposed to explain the famous running charge of the Athenians at Marathon."
