

Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Did You Feel the Earth Quake?
Yesterday (Thursday) morning considerable excitement prevailed in this section of the State, over a slight earthquake which shook these parts quite noticeably at about 6 o'clock. As we go to press we are informed that some damage was done at Altona. Residents of South Danville, Bloomberg, this city and the surrounding vicinity claim to have felt it.

Houses are in demand.
Don't flirt with typhoid. Chloram, like water, will find its level. Lackawanna county's record of crime for 1906 shows eleven murders and fifteen suicides. What do you think of 1907 by this time? Some people are predicting financial upheavals for 1907. Pennsylvanians will watch the next legislature with unusual interest.

The disinclination of a good man to serve the public is always the bad man's opportunity. Did you go to church on the first Sunday of the new year? It is very unfortunate to be poor, friendless and without a pull.

There are some lessons that some persons find extremely hard to learn. Justice is not on speaking terms with some of the law that is administered in her name. Philanthropy of a certain sort concerns itself chiefly with feathering its own nest. Trespass notices for sale at this office. Two for 5c, or 25c a dozen.

Has the weather man entered into a conspiracy against the ice man? The college boys are all back at work, at least they are supposed to be working. Be of good cheer, the sun will shine again—some time. The best advice in the world is sometimes the most distasteful.

The crooked tongue tells many a singular story. The sun tried to shine yesterday, but it was a little out of practice. The outside laborers and breakers, to the number of 150, employed at the Forty-six well known residents of Philadelphia have been entered for the nomination of mayor of the city by the various parties and independent organizations existing there.

Eliza Armstrong, the oldest resident of Adams county, is dead at the age of 106. Prospects for an ice crop are still vague. Shamokin firemen threaten not to attend fires in the business district because a number of merchants refused to purchase advance tickets for a firemen's theatrical attraction benefit.

The law and order society of Mahanoy City has been fighting the illicit liquor traffic carried on, and on Sunday all the saloons were closed, giving the town a dry Sunday, which it has not had for many years.

Coal Brook colliery, Lackawanna county, have struck because they were refused an increase of wages ranging from 12 to 15 cents per day. There are 1,600 men thrown out of employment in consequence.

Engineer Samuel Kauffman, of Saltsburg, who served the Sunbury and Lewistown Railway company as a passenger engineer for twenty-five years, was found dead at his post on Saturday morning with his hand on the throttle of the engine.

Harry L. Grabau, a leading member of the Butler county bar, shot himself near the heart with a revolver at his home in Butler on Saturday evening and is not expected to live. He is 34 years old, prominent in fraternal societies, clerk of the board of education and vestryman in the Episcopal church.

Charles Lewis, the oldest resident of Norristown, celebrated his 96th birthday anniversary on Sunday. He has always lived in the Third ward and was never out of the town over night in his life. Mr. Lewis is one of the directors of the Penn Trust company.

While Amelia Tardella, a pretty Italian girl of 21, was at her home in New Castle on Sunday evening a man said to be a rejected lover, entered the house and shot at her. The girl fainted and the shock was so great that serious consequences are feared.

Joseph Smith, aged 37 years, of Homestead, found an infernal machine in an alley on Monday, and while examining it in the presence of a younger brother and two other boys, the thing exploded and all four were severely burned and had their hands lacerated.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

Bulletin.

DESIRABLE WINTER TRIPS

Improvements in through train service in recent years have annihilated distances and brought the West and East, the South and North within easy reach. These improvements have wonderfully stimulated travel from the hot to the cool zones in summer, and from the cold to the warm zones in winter. The annual mid winter migration to Florida and Southern California has begun. To the popular resorts of the Southland, Florida and the Gulf Coast, the Florida Limited Trains via the Pennsylvania Railroad from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington to St. Augustine, and their connections, with the through sleeping cars to Charleston, Augusta, Southern Pines, Camden, New Orleans, and other points, afford attractive and convenient service. To the resorts of Southern California, the through trains to Chicago, and the through trains from Chicago to Los Angeles offer exceptionally good service with only one change of cars. Winter excursion tickets at reasonably low rates and with liberal return limits are on sale at Pennsylvania Railroad ticket offices to all the resorts of Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, the Gulf States, California, and Mexico. Copies of the Winter Excursion Book containing short descriptions of the principal winter resorts with lists of hotels, routes, and rates of fare may be obtained of ticket agents without charge. Personally-Conducted Tours to Florida will leave by Special Pullman Trains on February 5, 19 and March 5; to the New Orleans Mardi Gras, Mexico, and the Grand Canyon on February 7; to the Grand Canyon, California, and Colorado February 26. For descriptive itineraries giving full information and rates for these as well as other tours, apply to Ticket Agents.

Burden's Failure

By CLAY MARSDEN
Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Douglas

"Come right in," said the girl at the head of the stairs. "I have been expecting you for an hour."
"It is pleasant to be expected," laughed Burden.
"That will do," said the girl sharply. "No impertinence or I shall report you to the janitress."
Burden could not quite see what the janitress had to do with the matter, but he lifted the soft slouch hat that was a part of his fishing togethery and started to pass on up the stairs to his apartment.
"Come in here," called the girl imperiously. "You don't suppose that I came downstairs to meet you, do you?"
She led the way through an open door, affording a vista of chaos, to the parlor of the apartment. "Those pictures had better be hung first," she commanded. "I will tell you where."
Burden gasped. For the first time he realized what was expected of him. She had mistaken him for a day worker for whom she had probably sent to aid her in straightening out her new home. The fact that he was in an old suit and had rung the nearest bell in the lobby because he had forgotten his keys accounted for the error. It had been her bell he had rung. She was expecting a man to help, and she had supposed that he was the one. She had not been flirting after all. Somehow Burden was rather glad of it.
There would not be very much doing in the street that afternoon, he slipped off his coat and went to work.
It was evident that the little woman intended to get the full worth of her money out of him, for she kept him busy, and under her skillful direction the fat sloop assumed an appearance of orderliness he had not supposed possible in so short a time.
She explained that her mother would arrive the next morning and that she until I began to wonder if they would serve an unscrupulous woman at this time of night."

Burden glanced at the clock in the window. It was only half past 10, but it seemed later to her.
"We don't worry about such things," he suggested. "Just think about what is best to eat."
Over the tasteful meal he had ordered she grew more communicative. She had come to the city to study music, he learned. There were only her mother and herself left of a large family, and they wanted to be together. There was something in Burden's manner that inspired confidence, and, almost without realizing it, she was chatting as with an old friend.
The next afternoon he called to pay his respects to Mrs. Trevor, and before long the two women had come to regard Burden almost as one of the family. He took them to concerts and the theater and formed the habit of dropping in for a chat in the evenings when he was not going out.
Then came the panic, and for a week many a firm's fate hung in the balance. The one in which Burden was a partner was persistently included in the list of the doubtful, and when on the one afternoon the late editions came out with the statement that the house had been forced to suspend.
Lois read the report feverishly, but what Burden came home late that night and wearily began to ascend the steps she was at the head of the flight to welcome him, calm eyed and quiet.
"Mother wants you to come in and have some coffee," she pleaded. "We saw the papers and are so sorry."
"I'll come gladly," he said as his drawn face lighted up. "I shall be glad to forget business for the moment. To find you waiting here like the first time we met is as unexpected as it is pleasant."
"We could not sleep," she explained, "while you were in trouble. We wanted to know that all was well with you if not with the business."
"You didn't suppose I was going to shut myself in the room and brood in fashion, did you?" he laughed. Lois shook her head.
"It wasn't exactly that," she explained, "but we thought it might not seem so hard if you had a chance to rest up a little before you went to your rooms."
He followed her into the tiny dining room, where a dainty cold lunch was spread.
"Cast your restaurant meals on the water and they will come back in the shape of real home stuff," he laughed.
"I hope this lunch will do you as much good as that other supper did me," said Lois earnestly.
"More," he protested. "There is only one thing I should like better."
"And that?" she asked.
"A meal in our own home," he explained. "Is there hope for me, Lois?"
The girl nodded her head.
"You're so handy about the house," she explained to cover her confusion.
"That's a good remark," she laughed. "If the firm really does fail I think I shall hire out by the day."
"If," she echoed.
"Just that," he confirmed. "It was a trick to throw the market. We are kind enough, but the seasonal sheets turned rumor into what purported to be a statement of facts. You see, you will not have to carry a beggar after all."
"I don't care what you are, Nat," she said tenderly, "so that you are you."
"Are we a Contentious People?"
"Are we as Americans as courteous in all our relations to life as well as those of visitors occasionally think us? Are we as courteous as mixed blood, equitable laws and a prevailing sentiment of self respect might be reasonably expected to make us? Do we not sometimes confound ourselves, confuse distinctions, and with politeness and believe that because good breeding comes from the heart all good hearted people are consequently well bred? Yet there are men and women who stand ever ready to help the fellow creatures and who are seldom or ever polite to them. Dr. Johnson was one of the kindest men, but of that courtesy which respects the feelings as well as the rights of others he had never the faintest perception. "Now, what harm does it do a man to contradict him?" he used to say, and contradiction was the guiding principle of his talk. It is a guiding principle with people of much less intelligence than he, and it gives to conversation a roughness, a destructiveness, a lack of courtesy and persuasiveness. It is supposed to be a masculine prerogative, but, like other masculine prerogatives, has been usurped by an advance guard of women.—Delineator.

DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY
Breaks no Hearts, Excuses no Crimes.
Dr. David Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is not a disguised emphy of the human race; where it cannot help, it does not harm. It is composed of vegetable ingredients and does not hurt or inflame the blood but cools and purifies it. In all cases of Kidney troubles, Liver complaints, Constipation of the bowels, and those having derangements which afflict women, the action of Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is beyond praise. Thousands of grateful people voluntarily testify to this in letters to Dr. Kennedy; and with a warmth and fullness of words which mere business certificates never possess, it breaks no hearts, excuses no crimes—excuses no derangements, and we are ready to take your orders for 1907. Be sure to call and learn our prices before placing your order. Designs of every description to select from. Remember, we lead and others follow.

Stationery for Farmers.
Farmers and others, particularly those living on the Rural Delivery routes, should have printed stationery as well as business men. It is not only more business like to send a letter with name and address printed on the notepad and envelope, but it insures the return of the letter in case it is not delivered. We are especially well equipped to do this class of printing and can do it promptly and neatly. We will supply 250 note-books and 250 envelopes, extra quality, for $1.50, or 75c for either one lot. This is cheaper than you can buy the paper and envelopes regularly at retail stores.
