

DAN CUPID'S WORK IN MONTOUR

A statistical review of the marriage license books at the prothonotary's office at the court house will show conclusively that race suicide can not be classed among the imminent dangers in Little Montour.

The records show a number of licenses issued in 1906 that would cause the face of even our strenuous Teddy to be wreathed in smiles.

In the year just closed 131 couples agreed to trot in double harness over the matrimonial track, with results that may be expected to add materially to the returns of the next census.

It would no doubt make interesting reading if we were able to relate the circumstances that induced these 262 hearts to beat as 131, but the ways of Dan Cupid are many, varied, effective and often dubious, and to no one does he disclose his past or future plans.

The number of licenses in 1906 is far ahead of that for 1905, there having been 116 issued that year. 1906, however, can just about hold her own with the records of the several years previous, that of 1904 being 130 and 1903 being 134.

Several reasons for this seeming disinclination to single blessedness have been advanced. Some there are who profess to believe that men generally all over the country are coming to find out that what they most need to round their character and to develop their abilities to the best attainable degree is a helpmeet of the opposite sex. Others advance different causes, but it is more than likely that the real reason for the lack of cautiousness, if so it may be called, is to be found in the more material fact that the prosperity that is just now pervading the land has imbued the naturally generous spirit of the man with a desire to have one by his side who may enjoy the outpourings from the horn of plenty while Dame Fortune smiles.

Don't Need Them.

A feature of the forthcoming annual report of Major Isaac B. Brown, secretary of internal affairs, will be an elaborate discussion of the question of the reconstruction of a system of canals in Pennsylvania.

Major Brown opposes the project, and takes up many pages of his report to tell why. He assumes that the canals, generally speaking, are not needed for the convenience of shippers and that the basis of the agitation is a theory that their rehabilitation would keep down freight rates on the railroads.

Major Brown believes that that is a false premise to start from; that the canals, because of the universal demands for quick transit, could not be an important factor, and cites the fact that in New York, where they have the Erie canal connecting with the Great Lakes with tide water, freight rates are higher than in Pennsylvania, and the farther that in Pennsylvania the average receipts per ton per mile are very much lower on all the railroads than they were when the canals were all in full operation. And if this were not so and the rate were not voluntarily kept down to a fair and reasonable figure the State government has the power to insure other shippers reasonable rates, and it only remains for the State to exercise that power in a just and conservative way.

Secretary Brown concludes that the millions which would be required in the useless effort to reproduce canals, which, he says, have had their day and are now only a reminiscence, as a means of creating competition, could be invested with much more propriety in other industrial affairs.

Captain Forrester Has Retired.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company has formally announced the retirement of Captain C. W. Forrester, superintendent of the Union Line, stationed at Chicago.

Captain Forrester's long connection with the company entitles him to retirement under the rules of the Pennsylvania company relating to employees who have served long and faithfully. Frank L. Borton has been appointed to fill the vacancy. The position that Captain Forrester has just vacated is a most responsible one, inasmuch as the superintendent of the Union Line is in charge of the Pennsylvania's freight business west of the Alleghenies.

Special interest attaches itself to Captain Forrester by reason of the fact that he is a native of this section, and calls Danville his home town, having served his apprenticeship in the railroad station here. In his long term of service with the Pennsylvania company he was constantly promoted, being located at Louisville for a number of years, then at Chicago.

It is the intention of Captain Forrester to return to Danville, his old home, and enjoy his first prolonged period of rest and freedom from business cares that has come to him since he has been in the employ of the Pennsylvania.

Captain Forrester is a thoroughly self-made man, and is regarded as one of the most capable executives of the Pennsylvania Railroad company.

A POPULAR CHORD

The Hazelton Daily Standard says: "Governor Pennypacker struck a popular chord in his message in urging the importance of continuing and enlarging the 'good roads' programme. An excellent start has been made, and there is widespread demand for still greater appropriation." Especially now, when everybody who is obliged to use the ordinary mud roads, finds them almost impassable, is the need of solid road beds most keenly felt.

Workman Injured Hand.

Alex Ashton, Jr., Cedar street, employed at the structural tubing works, while working about the rolls on Saturday, struck the back of his left hand against a piece of hot iron as it was leaving the rolls, inflicting a painful gash several inches long.

SATURDAY WAS A BEAUTIFUL DAY

Saturday added a marvel to the weather record. It was a day seldom seen in winter, and would not have been out of place in April.

The last traces of snow and ice had disappeared. The air was fresh and invigorating and all day long the sun shone out of a clear sky, flooding the landscape and bringing light and cheerfulness into places that had been dark and gloomy for a long time previously. Everyone who could do so spent at least a portion of the day out of doors, while those who were shut in doors heaved a sigh of regret as they caught glimpses of the light and cheerfulness outside.

Everyone felt better because of the beautiful day, which followed as such a refreshing contrast to the sluggish, unseasonable weather of the week previous. The grumpy man took on a smile while to the grip victims the warm sunshine proved a wonderful balm and they forgot a few of their aches and pains.

Although it was an object lesson to show what a wonderful part the weather plays in the happiness and welfare of humanity. There is a disposition in some quarters to criticize people for showing such a deep concern in the condition of the weather. Perhaps some people are morbidly inclined in this matter. It is certainly futile and it may be foolish to bewail the dark and depressing days that occur, but few are exempt from the folly. At the same time man to some extent renews himself when he yields to the influence of such a day as Saturday and, in the hundred and one ways that he is capable of, shows his appreciation of the good things that the weather occasionally flings his way.

To Protect From Bogus Stocks.

An act will be introduced at the coming session of the Pennsylvania legislature that will be of interest and concern to all holders of mining stocks.

It is asserted by the legislators who will father the bill that in nearly every section of this State there has been a lot of mining stock sold that is worth scarcely the paper it is printed on. These stocks have been sold at such low figures that when the purchasers find they have been duped they hesitate to prosecute under the laws providing for punishment of those who obtain moneys by false pretense. Under the proposed law any persons who advertise or in any way circulate false or misleading statements about the mines on which the stock is issued, or tell any untruths in connection with their efforts to find purchasers for their stock, will be guilty of fraud and liable to be punished by a fine not exceeding $10,000, or imprisonment not exceeding ten years, or either or both, at the discretion of the court.

The victims of worthless mining stocks in very many cases are poor people who are caught by the offers to buy two or three cents a share in the stock. The bill will be worth much more in a very short time. In many cases the purchaser can never dispose of the stock and are out of their savings.

A bill similar to the one that will be presented at Harrisburg will be introduced in every State in the union and there are good chances of the law becoming a general one.

Increased Pay for Legislators.

Following in the footsteps of the congressmen, some of the members of the Pennsylvania legislature want more pay for their jobs. They are agitating a movement looking toward an increase of salary from $1,500 to $2,000 for each session. A bill will probably be introduced after the recess to add $500 to their compensation.

Should the bill pass and receive the approval of the governor it would not affect the present members, as the constitution prohibits an increase of a public official's salary during the term for which he has been elected. The loss of railroad passes is the main incentive for the demand for higher pay. Now that the members have to pay their carfare to and from Harrisburg it is contended that the job of being a legislator, at the old rate of wage, does not pay for the time lost and the neglect of business at home while in Harrisburg.

However, we have heard of no member of the legislature threatening to resign his position because he is not getting his pay enough.

Surprise at Rushtown.

A delightful surprise was tendered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Eckman, Rushtown, Saturday evening, in honor of Mr. Eckman's fifty-second birthday. Mr. Eckman was presented with a handsome rocking chair by the party. Candy and music were indulged in and later in the evening refreshments were served.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Reabuck, Mr. and Mrs. William Gulick, and son Charles, Mr. and Mrs. John Eckert, son Paul and daughter Ethel, Mr. and Mrs. William Salter, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Gademian and son Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fisher, son Arlington and Charles, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hummer, son Joseph and daughter Susie.

Sat Beside Flany Judges.

Associate Judge Fox, of Columbia county, retired Saturday after ten years of service on the bench.

During his term of office he sat with four regular judges, Judge Keeler, Herring, Little and Evans. Some of the special judges who came to the Columbia county bench during his term of office were Judge Ferris, of Wilkes-Barre; Sandow, of Scranton; Newcomb, of Scranton; Lynch, of Wilkes-Barre; Wheaton, of Wilkes-Barre; McClure, of Snyder county; Staples, of Monroe county; Savage and Auton, of Northumberland county, and Durham, of Sullivan county.

Miss Amanda Youngman returned to Wellesly Saturday after a visit at the home of Mrs. Angus Wright, Upper Mulberry street.

BOY BITTEN BY ILL-TEMPERED DOG

Gerhard Snyder, the little son of Landford I. A. Snyder of the City hotel, was very badly bitten by a dog Monday morning. The occurrence caused a great deal of excitement and incidentally led to the death of the dog.

The dog was a piece of canine driftwood that found its way to town at the time the Guardsmen came home from Gettysburg. It is said that he followed the soldiers all the way from the historic battlefield. Certain it is that he accompanied them on the latter stage of the journey and arrived at town in company with the horse ridden by Dr. Shultz, the surgeon accompanying the guardsmen. When the horse was returned to his stall in Hoke's livery stable at the rear of City hotel the stable went along with him and the dog was left in the street. He met his ignoble death.

The dog was a big fellow and no doubt had Newfoundland blood in his veins, although there was a huge dip of other blood not so easily classified and he bore the unmistakable stamp of a mongrel. He had a happy faculty of making friends, however, and seemed to be tolerated wherever he went and he went everywhere. He subsisted on the offals from the hotel kitchen and had nothing to do but get acquainted with people. Nearly every day he selected some new master on which to lavish his affections and seemed the best natured dog in the world. What followed Monday morning therefore came as a surprise.

The dog was feasting on a bone when master Snyder appeared on the scene. What followed is not exactly known except that the dog snapped the boy seizing one of his little fingers, sinking his teeth in to the bone, and lacerating the member badly. Dr. Paulus was summoned, who cauterized the wound.

A short time after the edict went forth that the dog would have to die and it fell upon the chief-of-police to perform the act of execution. It was still early in the day when the dog paid the penalty of his ill temper and ceased to exist. Master Snyder, who boy bitten, at last accounts was doing very well.

Preparing For Exhibition.

The elaborate arrangements for the annual gymnasium exhibition of the Y. M. C. A., which have been in course of preparation for the past two months, are rapidly nearing completion, and the show, which is to be presented in the Association hall on the evenings of Friday and Saturday of this week, promises to be the most complete, the most amusing and the most instructive entertainment that has ever been undertaken by the local Association.

For the occasion of the exhibition a stage has been erected, 18x34, to accommodate the 80 performers who will take part during the evening. The different classes, under the careful supervision of Physical Director Ainsworth, have been rehearsing for two months, and have arrived at degree of proficiency that is little short of marvelous.

On the program will appear a number of special features, some of which have never before been witnessed in Danville. Notable among these are the Electrical Club Swinging by Mr. Ainsworth and a Marching Song by a class of Japanese Lantern Girls.

Included in the side work will be Luch Bell Drill by Juniors and Seniors, Band Drill by Girls, Club Swinging by Intermediates, Advanced Work on the Parallel Bars, Work on the Horse, together with other numbers that go to make up a complete exhibition.

Plans for New Penny Yard.

The rumors about contemplated improvements between Shamokin Dam and Selinsgrove have been numerous within the past four months, but were so indefinite as not to disclose their real character. The general drift of the reports assigned the Pennsylvania railroad company as the projector of the intended improvements, but there were wild rumors of other parties connected with the project 'across the river' from Sunbury.

There is now more definite information which assigns these operations to the Pennsylvania railroad. James K. Davis, of Philadelphia, a former resident of Sunbury and Selinsgrove, and familiar with what is going on in Snyder county, says he has positive knowledge of the Pennsylvania company's intended operations between the Dam and Selinsgrove, having seen the plans of the projected work. A double track bridge is to be built across the river below the dam, which will connect with the road at Sunbury. A large classification yard with the requisite number of tracks will extend from the dam to Selinsgrove and at the latter point a bridge to be built across the river will connect with the tracks of the Susquehanna division below Selinsgrove Junction. By this arrangement the lack of trackage at Sunbury will be overcome and classification facilities to the largest extent will be secured. In conjunction with this extensive work another company, jointly with the Pennsylvania, will erect a street car plant. The expense of these improvements is put at $5,000,000.

The above information gives the most logical solution of the reported improvements across the river in Snyder county, as it conforms with the Pennsylvania company's track necessities at Sunbury where the convergence of a number of roads requires enlarged classification facilities.

Give Fitchell the Credit.

The past year has witnessed fewer criminal cases in Northumberland county than any year during the past two decades. This is said to be due to President John Fitchell, of the United Mine Workers, who advised the members of the union to keep out of law suits whenever possible, and to Judge Savage's condemnation of justices multiplying and forming cases.

Money Orders at Berwick.

The Berwick Enterprise published the figures to show that last year nearly a quarter of a million dollars worth of money orders were issued at the local postoffice. Just think how much money would have done to benefit the town, if it had been kept at home!

THE LAW AND JUSTICE

Law ought to be the voice of justice. In its administration it very seldom is. Its interpreters should be among the ablest, the wisest and the most impartial of men. They are frequently nothing of the sort. The courts high and low, should be the protectors of the injured, the humble, the friendless and the oppressed. Too often they oppose the poor-defraud the friendless and are swayed by the power of influence or the prestige of wealth.

The situation is not quite as desperate in this country now as it was a few years ago. During the recent months some influential criminals have been detected, tried, convicted and punished. The servants of the law are on the trail of others. The prospects are brighter than they have been for years. Popular discontent is diminishing. Popular confidence is being restored to those courts whose judges are showing themselves the servants of righteous judgment.

We have a long way to go. All the evils have not been eliminated, all the wrongs righted. It is still true in many instances that eastern methods are pursued by those who ought to be without stain or reproach. The criminal who is able to hire an able and unscrupulous attorney or to bring powerful influences to bear in his behalf still escapes too often unwhipped of justice. Too often the poor wretch who has neither friends nor influence goes into retirement for a long term of years, or even to the gallows, while his powerful neighbor, who is resourceful and powerful, escapes.

Nevertheless improvement is discernible. The people realize that they are still the governing force in this country, and are showing a marked disposition to use their power. They will use it not for the purpose of putting sham reformers into power, but that they may promote the ends of justice, dignity and law, enlarge the sphere of truth and hasten the millennium. They will use to emphasize the fact that all men, no matter what their position, must obey the law and that other vital fact that all are entitled to the protection of the law. They will use it to put into the judicial office, beginning with the justices of the peace, strong men, pure men, sympathetic men, wise men, to the end that the law may be honestly and impartially administered, not luskstered out to the highest bidder, and that justice may be dealt out always to all men without fear or favor.

The people want to trust the courts. They want to believe that the judges are invincible to any argument save that which the law presents. They know that many of the judiciary are men of stainless character and unquestioned honesty. They intend that the number of good judges shall rapidly multiply in this great republic, and that the failure of justice shall be the rarest possible exception to the rule.

Needs Vast Sum.

State Highway Commissioner Hunter wants the legislature to appropriate $6,000,000 for the improvement of the roads in Pennsylvania during the next two years. This sum, with the $3,000,000 available out of the fund of $6,500,000 appropriated by the legislature of 1905, would give the department a fund of $4,500,000 annually the next two years. With $9,000,000 for two years we could build from 900 to 1,000 miles of a year of scientific road in Pennsylvania, said Highway Commissioner Hunter in discussing his plans for road legislation. "Many of the counties have already been allotted their share of the present fund, and unless the legislature makes an additional appropriation we cannot continue the work in these counties."

"Certain legislators and other advocates of the 'good roads' movement have suggested that the legislature appropriate more than $6,000,000 for the next two years, but I do not agree with them. It would be simply impossible for this department to expend judiciously more than $4,500,000 or $5,000,000 a year for road building in this State."

Robbers' Desperate Work.

SCRANTON, Jan. 9. A daring and sensational robbery took place last night at the office of the Mountain Lake Coal company at South Scranton, when eight masked men dynamited the safe and secured $25, with which they escaped. The burglary was the most daring known here in years and the boldness with which the desperadoes operated has aroused the officials of Lackawanna county and the city of Scranton.

Shortly after midnight eight burglars armed with revolvers, jimmies, nitroglycerine, dynamite and a full line of other foot pads' paraphernalia, entered the office of the Mountain Lake Coal company and gradually drew closer to the office keeping a sharp look out the entire time for any danger that might present itself. Surprising the night watchman, and two teamsters, who happened to be there, the masked men dragged them to the stable where they were tied after being gagged to prevent an outcry.

The men then returned to the office where they proceeded to blow open the safe without molestation while two of the robbers kept a vigil over the three men locked in the barn. $25 was secured from the safe and the men made their way off into the woods. No arrests have as yet been made.

Counsel for Fisher.

Henry Fisher, accused of the murder of Mrs. Sarah Klinger, and having secured no attorneys to defend him, the Sunbury court has decided to appoint the well known firm of Welsh and Welsh, of Shamokin, to look after the man's interests.

Be On the Watch.

Look out for a fellow, who in some of our neighboring towns, has been passing himself off as an insurance inspector, whose sole intention is to become acquainted with houses for the purpose of committing robberies. Such fellows should be asked to show their authority.

DANVILLE AND TYPHOID FEVER

In view of the terrible epidemic of typhoid fever in Scranton and the fact that the disease seems to be gaining some foothold in Danville there are people in town who are considering the advisability of boiling drinking water.

Precautions are always wise. At the same time people should be properly informed that they may understand whether or not there is real danger of infection from any source.

Seven cases of typhoid fever as shown by the report of the local registrar for December, is not exactly reassuring, it is true, in view of the fact that during November there was not a single case of that disease reported. At the same time there is nothing alarming in the present showing, although it might be well enough to set some investigation on foot to determine the cause of the development of seven cases in such a short time. All depends upon whether or not the disease remains near its present limits or should spread rapidly.

As to whether or not the epidemic at Scranton puts the towns further down the river in peril, will, first, depend upon whether or not the sewage from the stricken city finds its way in to the north branch and, second, whether or not the towns further south along the Susquehanna draw upon that stream for their water supply.

As relates to the first, Scranton is situated on Lackawanna creek, a tributary of the north branch, so that it is not beyond the range of possibility that infected sewage from Scranton should find its way into the Susquehanna. It is probable, however, that in the wholesome precautions taken to prevent the spread of the disease the matter of sewage is carefully looked after.

Wilkes-Barre is not believed to be in any peril from the Scranton epidemic, as the water supply of Wilkes-Barre comes from a point higher than Scranton. The cases of typhoid in Wilkes-Barre at present are believed to be due to the victims visiting Scranton and drinking water there.

Danville is one of the towns that obtains its water supply from the north branch. The danger, however, of taking in disease germs that might escape from Scranton is considered remote, indeed.

It will be recalled that the same anxiety was felt when the epidemic of typhoid existed at Berwick a year or so ago, but that Danville even then did not contract the disease—a circumstance that would go to show pretty conclusively that we are removed beyond the limit of danger in the present instance.

Mrs. Amerman Passes Away.

Mrs. Margaret J. Amerman, widow of the late Jesse C. Amerman, departed this life at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon following a brief illness.

Mrs. Amerman, who of late years was a resident of this city, was visiting at the home of William Bishel near Catawissa, when she was seized with grip, which later became complicated with pneumonia. She was only ill about ten days.

Mrs. Amerman was sixty-five years of age. She was born in Montour county and lived in Danville and vicinity all her life. Before marriage she was Margaret J. Appleman. She was a widely known and most highly esteemed woman. She was a member of the Mahoning Presbyterian church and was a devoted and consistent Christian.

Mrs. Amerman is survived by two sons, both attorneys, Charles V. Amerman, of this city and Edwin C. Amerman, of Scranton. Eli Appleman, of Valley township, is a brother of the deceased. Three sisters also survive; Mrs. James Vandevender, of Northumberland, Mrs. Charles Reitz, of Williamsport, and Mrs. George Gilmore, of Linden, Pa.

Mrs. Margaret J. Amerman, whose death occurred Saturday, was consigned to the grave in Odd Fellows' cemetery Tuesday afternoon. The funeral was held in Mahoning Presbyterian church and was largely attended. The services were conducted by Rev. J. E. Hutchison. Two selections were rendered by a quartette consisting of Mrs. Scarlet, Miss Margaret Ammerman, W. R. Miller and J. B. McCoy. The pallbearers were James Shultz, Amos Vastine, David Shelhart, John M. Sechler, John H. Brugler and Henry Divel. The flowers were very beautiful and consisted of a large number of tributes.

The following persons from out of town attended the funeral: Mrs. George Gilmore, of Linden; Mr. and Mrs. James Vandevender, and Miss Bessie, of Northumberland; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reitz, Mr. and Mrs. William Hess, Mrs. C. W. Gilmore, of Williamsport, and Ralph and Mary Amerman, of Scranton.

AN OLD PUBLIC BUILDING.

The city of Chester has a city hall built in 1724, which is claimed to be the oldest public building in the United States. It is a substantial and well preserved structure, and the Morning Republican says that a committee from the Delaware County Historical society appeared at a meeting of the property committee of the city council and made a proposition wherein they offered to purchase the old historic hall provided councils would name a price. As the building is eight years older than Independence hall in Philadelphia and eighteen years older than the first Faneuil hall in Boston, destroyed by fire in 1791, and many important historic events took place within its walls, the movement is a laudable one.
