

The Farmer's Department

TRANSPLANTING LARGE TREES.—The sooner large trees are transplanted after they are done growing for the season...

MANAGEMENT OF RESTIVE HORSES.—A correspondent of the Country Gentleman writes: "After your horse is harnessed to the carriage, procure a piece of webbing as a broad strap around the off foot below the fetlock..."

Indian Legends.—A correspondent of the New York Courier and Enquirer, writing from Frank-lin, N. H., describes the paternal homestead of Daniel Webster, and relates the following interesting legends connected with the farm...

Wintering Bees.—Let the bees stand out until about the time it freezes over for winter, then select a dry spot of ground that will rise one foot in fifteen, take a wide board, lay it flat on the ground, drive a short post at each end of the board for a pole to rest on, each high enough to clear the tops of the hives...

Begin with the strongest stocks; set them on the board, raise each corner half an inch, open every ventilator at the top of the hive; set them one foot apart until you get the length of the board; then put on boards and straw the same as the other side. Cover the straw with three or four inches of earth.

Should the Apian have stocks enough to reach sixty feet, have another tube enter at the bottom as well at the top—and also at the upper end. The boards and straw being all dry absorb the moisture so that but little mold accumulates while the current of air keeps them healthy.

N.B.—When the bees are put up for winter, do it all in one day if possible, so that no rats or mice will enter the straw; and should it not freeze up immediately keep a close watch every day until it does, that no rat holes are made anywhere about.

IF MAJOR GENERAL SHERIDAN ever reads poetry, we think the following verses from the pen of George H. Baker, of Philadelphia, the great minstrel of the war, will touch his heart.

SHERIDAN. From the Press of the 15th. Oct. 1864. Sheridan, Sheridan, cavalier Sheridan! Him of the horse and soldier's eye, Look how he clove them!

Overly and early, thou ruthless invader, Where are the troopers who followed thy raid? What are the bright eyes, shining brightly On the wilds of the West, who rode so trimly, What has the sword said?

On the banks of the stream at the foot of the glen, lived Philip Call. He was one of the first settlers. His wife, his son and his son's wife, the latter of whom had a small child, epitomized his family.
