Regularity in Feeding. Any good farmer knows that any domestic animal is a good clock— that it knows, almost to a minute, when the regular feeding time has to be fed with accuracy at the appoint-ed period it will not fret till that period arrives, after which it becomes very restless and uneasy till its food comes. If it has been fed irregularty, it will begin to fret when the ear-liest period arrives. Honce this fret-ting may be entirely avoided by strict punctuality; but it cannot be otherwise. The very moment the animal begins to worry that moment it begins to lose flesh; but the rate of this loss has never been ascertained—it is certainly worthy an investigation-and cainly worthy an investigation—and can be only determined by trying the two modes (punctuality and irregularity) side by side, under similar circumstances, and with the same amount of food, for some weeks or months together.

There is one precaution to be observed, in connection with regular served, in connection with regular feeding, where some judgment is need-ed. Animals eat more in sharp and frosty than in warm and damp weather. Hence if the same amount by weight is given at every feeding, they will not have enough when the weather is cold, and will be surfeited when it is warm and damp. Both of these evils must be avoided, while a little attention and observation will ena-ble the farmer to do it.

Pumpkin Meal for Hogs.

Pumpkin meal, formed of dried pumpkin, by grinding, is one of the most valuable articles known for feeding swine. The pumpkin should be cut in thin slices, and thoroughly dried by exposure, in clear weather, to the rays of the sun. The more thorough the process of drying is eff-ected, the more valuable will be the article for this purpose. Good well-matured fruit should be selected for this purpose. When theroughly dried, pumpkins is ground as easily as Indian corn or any other grain. The proper method of using it is to mix it into a thin butter or mush, seasonat a cost of $100,000,000.000.

—Troubles are brewing between the fed warm. Swine are very fond of it. Squashes may be used in the same way, as may also carrots and parsnips, both ef which, when sliced and dried, may be easily converted into meal.

Obtaining T.

Obtaining Eggs.
There is much in breed for egg-laying qualities. But the most is in g od treatment—making the hen at home. A crowded place will not do, foo many hens together is bad.—Why? Because it interferes with tranquility. The points of success tranquility. The points of success are: Warm quarters, roomy, clean and unmolested; plenty of food; a variety of feed, it matters little what; the water changed often; chrushed bones, either burned or otherwise; pulverized earth or spentashes to wal, low in; plenty of light and as much cheerfulness as possible. Select good breeds. The middle sized D miniques single combs and vellow legs, are. ue, single combs and yellow legs, are, berhaps, the best. The Spanish are good layers; so are the Creels.-Avoid all big breeds, and especially the East India fowls.

SOAP SUDS. The Scottin Farmer says that soap suds, although generally deemed onty at for being run off in the most fore the war. ly fit for being run off in the most expeditious manner possible, are highly beneficial vegetable feeders, as well as useful insect preventives.— Hence they should never be wasted by parties having gardens, as their application to the ground, whether in winter or in summer, will show beneficially, not only on ordinary veg-etable crops, but also on berry bushes, shrubs, etc, while, if poured or syringed over roses, cabpages, etc., they will mitigate the mischievous doings of the green fly and caterp'l-
